U.S. Prohibition Ends Tomorrow; Imports Curbed

Padding of Applications Causes Suspension of Allocations.

Choate Seeks Time For Examination

Delay in Foreign Supply to Be Slight, Say Officials.

By Frank Getty.

Repeal of the eighteenth amendment—after 13 years 10 months and 19 days of National prohibition—will be proclaimed tomorrow afternoon by President Roosevelt and Acting Secretary of State Phillips.

In the interval remaining before ratification by Utah marks the end of the dry era, Government agencies are rushing preparations to meet the changed conditions, to control the flow of liquor in the wet States and to prevent its transportation into those that are dry.

Swamped beneath a deluge of applications, the Treasury Department yesterday suspended allocation of liquor import permits at the suggestion of Joseph Choate, New York attorney, who today will take over officially the direction of the Federal Alcohol Control Administration.

Choate Explains Move.

Explaining this move, which may means some delay in the importation of foreign wines and liquors, Choate told The Post that exorbitant requests on the part of many importers, together with the unanticipated, last-minute rush of applications, made it advisable to hold up further allotments out of fairness to all.

A number of permits already have been allocated, many to cover shipments already en route to American ports, and these, Choate said, will not be recalled.

Some importers, the new director of the F. A. C. A. explained, have asked for permits to import far more wines and distilled spirits than they could handle, expecting to have their requests pared down.

As a result, to proceed on the basis of handling applications as fast as they are received would inevitably work a hardship to many importers, particularly old established firms which have been conservative in their estimates.

Will Permit Examination.

The plan now is to withhold allocation and permits until Choate can get a fair picture of the situation as a whole. Individual applications now cover importation of more than 12,000,000 gallons, where-

Legge, Farm Board's First Chairman, Dies

Chicago, Dec. 3 (AP).—Alexander Legge, first chairman of the Federal Farm Board and president of the mammoth International Harvester Co., died unexpectedly at his home in suburban Hinsdale today.

Heart disease ended a career that embraced outstanding achievements in farming, big business and Governmental affairs.

Thought to have been in perfect health, Mr. Legge had been busy doing chores about his estate, a hobby with the industrialist, until about 10 a. m., when he complained of feeling ill and servants summoned a physician. Death came within an hour, before the arrival of the doctor.

Three Nephews Survive.

No immediate relatives survive. Mrs. Legge, in whose honor he had erected a woman's memorial in Hinsdale, died about 10 years ago. Two nephews, James and Alex E. Legge, are residents of Schuyler, Nebr., and a third, Roy Legge, lives in San Francisco.

Mr. Legge was born on a farm in Dane County, Wis., and devoted virtually his entire life to agriculture, with the exception of periods during which he was drafted by the Government for Federal service.

Shortly after the outbreak of the World War he was summoned to Washington as a "dollar-a-year" executive and was made director of industrial mobilization.

Later he was assigned the gigantic task of directing the war industries board and as vice chairman was in charge of all munition shipments both to American and Allied forces abroad.

Peace Conference Delegate.

His duties took him to France and, with the armistice, he served as President Wilson's economic expert at the Versailles Peace Conference.

Mr. Legge's career with the International Harvester Co. reads like that of a Horatio Alger character.

A farm hand in 1891, he took a job as a collector for the company in Nebraska, and subsequently was appointed a sales manager. From then on the record reads:

Trusties Lock Up Warden, Surrender Arms After Exchange of Fire.

Pottsville, Pa., Dec. 3 (AP).—Seizing weapons from the prison office, two convicts attempted to shoot their way out of the Schuylkill County Jail today, throwing the place into an uproar until they were trapped and surrendered.

Two trusties, William Kuchinsky and Joseph Mocinicis, entered the prison office, knocked a guard, Joseph Krakuski, unconscious with a piece of hose and secured the keys to the main gate.

When Warden Watson appeared, they locked him in a room. Meanwhile, Roth, another trusty, seized a rifle and opened fire on the prisoners and Karkuski regained consciousness and discharged a tear gas gun at the prisoners. They replied with rifle fire.

Fleeing to the basement, Mocinicis attempted to shoot the locks from a door leading out of the prison. Kuchinsky joined him, but the pair was trapped by guards and four city policemen who surrounded the basement. The prisoners dropped their weapons and surrendered.

Disorders Follow Spanish Elections

Worried Cabinet Declares "State of Prevention."

Madrid, Dec. 3 (AP).—A "state of prevention" throughout Spain was declared at a special cabinet session late today in the face of increasing reports of national disorders scheduled for tonight or tomorrow, following today's reelections in 16 provinces.

Troops were ready for instant action. The streets of the capital were thronged with assault guards who were kept busy today breaking up disorders in connection with the balloting.

Several groups paraded through Madrid shouting "Death to Fascism" and several were wounded when guards dispersed them. Several more were wounded in another demonstration in front of the casino.

Pan-America Keynote Hits War, Tariffs

Western World Called On to Promote Peace in Gran Chaco.

21 Nations Urged to Act as Group Against Trade Barriers.

Montevideo, Uruguay, Dec. 3 (AP). Inaugurating the seventh Pan-American Conference, President Gabriel Terra of Uruguay today exhorted nations of the Americas to put an end to warfare in the Gran Chaco and to lower tariff barriers.

President Terra demanded "a scaling down in all American countries of customs tariffs which President Roosevelt justly termed unsound, fatal and direct originators of world economic disaster."

He referred to Mr. Roosevelt's indictment of the Hawley-Smoot tariff measure and retaliatory acts "to which other nations were forced."

Turning to war in the Gran Chaco between Bolivia and Paraguay, he said, "the noble American juridical tradition can not remain buried in the swamps of the Chaco."

Second in Size to League.

Thus was sounded the opening keynote of the conference among the oldest society of nations and the largest except the League of Nations, constituting a third of the world's governments.

Postponed from 1932 because of the depression, a gathering in which all 21 nations of the Western Hemisphere were participating found uppermost in the minds of delegates a mutual search for cooperative methods to improve the economic status of their countries.

"As a long-time economics professor," said the Uruguayan president, "I recognize in Roosevelt a master of this science. His book 'Looking Forward,' shows with great vision the appalling consequences of the Smoot-Hawley tariff.

"In financial conferences at Washington in 1915 and in Buenos Aires in 1916, I was a defender of the Uruguayan proposal that the American republics grant reciprocal customs facilities to dispose of excess production.

Tariff Peace Thwarted.

"This proposal, which both conferences accepted, has been attacked and thwarted instead of enforced, and therefore we have dislocated and dismembered the commercial structure of the Americas."

The 1934 Pan-American Conference has been called a congress of chancellors, because of the unprecedented participation of ten foreign ministers.

In a bleak rain, Uruguay mustered its most extensive military panoply for the inauguration ceremonies. Flanking the legislative palace were brilliantly uniformed troops which saluted the chief of each delegation as he arrived for the opening ceremonies, with final honors for the presidential entourage as President Terra's automobile reached the palace.

Debt Cancellation Asked.

Santiago, Chile, Dec. 3 (AP).—The Leftist newspaper, Opinion, suggested today the following points to be presented to the Pan-American Conference at Montevideo by the Chilean delegation:

Cancellation by the United States of debts and bond issues contracted by Latin-American countries from 1920 to 1931.

Issuance by the United States of a formal declaration that it will not interfere in the affairs of another country.

Immediate revision of the Platt amendment (to the Cuban constitution).

Rejection of proposals made in some quarters that Latin-American central banks effect a working agreement with the United States Federal Reserve.

3 Die in Quebec Fire Razing 6 Dwellings

Verdun, Quebec, Dec. 3 (AP). — Three lives were lost today in a fire which destroyed six dwellings and damaged three others. The victims were Mrs. Caroline Maude Olsen, 47; Mrs. Ernest Kedger, her sister, 45, and an 18-month-old boy, adopted son of Mrs. Kedger.

Bathurst, Gambia, Dec. 3 (AP).—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh announced late today he and his wife would start at 4 a. m. Monday on a flight to South America.

The announcement was made after two futile attempts today to take-off in their red monoplane on a flight across the South Atlantic Ocean to Brazil from this colonial town on the West African Coast.

A broiling hot sun thinned the air and there was no breeze. (Col. Lindbergh at one point wirelessed Pan-American Airways at Para, Brazil: "Impossible start. Calm sea. Waiting wind.") Spray frayed the propeller of his big ship and he trimmed the splinters by hand.

The Lindberghs had contemplated taking off at dawn. Soon after the vivid tropical sunrise, they started the powerful motor and made their first attempt to get into the air.

They left Halfdie, the native quarter town where the seaplanes of the German Lut Hansa Co. recently were moored, and taxied across the harbor with a roar. Spray flew like a cloud over the pontoons.

Lindbergh flipped the tail up and down, rocking the ship in the water in a strenuous attempt to make it rise, but the ship failed to leave the water.

The colonel whipped the machine about and headed back to its anchorage, where he and Mrs. Lindbergh worked in the severe heat to unload 40 gallons of gasoline and some of their baggage.

The second attempt to take off was made at 9 o'clock. By then the heat was intense, the sky cloudless and there was hardly a breath of air.

Attack Revived On Tax-Exempt Investments

Need for Revenue Prompts Congressional Move to Assess Levies.

A new movement will be launched in the House and Senate to lift the exemption from billions of dollars in securities, now tax free.

A resolution by Senator Henry F. Ashurst (Democrat), Arizona, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, empowering State and Federal governments to tap this revenue, will be revived and pressed at the next session.

The Ashurst resolution calls for a constitutional amendment removing exemptions from the broad field of Federal, State and local security issues.

A group of constitutional lawyers in the Senate, including Senator William E. Borah (Republican), Idaho, regard an amendment to the Constitution as unnecessary. They are seeking more direct means of making these securities amenable to taxation.

Conferences Start Today.

Meantime, a special subcommittee of the House Ways and Means Committee, headed by Representative Samuel B. Hill (Democrat), Washington, has considered extensively means of converting this protected interest-bearing paper into new revenue.

Although no definite agreement was reached, data unearthed in the study will be made available to the full House Ways and Means Committee, which will begin tax revision conferences at 10 o'clock this morning in the House Office Building.

Subcommittee studies disclosed there were $40,500,000,000 in interest-bearing securities of Federal, State and local governments as of August 31, 1933. Of this amount, $22,722,597,530 were Federal securities. On $12,000,000,000 of these a surtax was collected, but $9,000,000,000 were wholly tax exempt.

New Revenue Seen.

Proposals to lift the exemption are not new in either branch of Congress. The Ashurst plan was debated briefly on the Senate floor last session. At a previous session, the House adopted a similar resolution by a majority vote, but failed the necessary two-thirds.

Proponents say the proposed action not only would provide new sources of revenue, but would divert into business, industry and wages money that now goes into tax exempt securities.

Opponents contend higher interest rates would have to be paid by the Government in order to sell its securities and this would cost more than the securities would yield in taxes. They believe the Treasury would have difficulty in disposing of some Government issues if they were subject to taxation.

Four Dead, 10 Hurt In New York Fires

3 Men and Woman Perish; Homes Burned.

New York, Dec. 3 (AP).—Three men and a woman died as a result of fires today. Ten other persons were injured.

Jack Hunter, 36; his wife, Beatrice, 32, and Louis Vadosi, 30, died in hospitals after being removed from a Bronx apartment fire that started, police say, when fumes from a paint-removing fluid were ignited.

Frank Harris, 64, was fatally burned and eight other persons injured when fire swept a West Side rooming house near Polyclinic Hospital. Two painters working with Vadosi were slightly burned.

Quake, 6,500 Miles Off, Recorded Here

An earthquake centered about 6,500 miles from Washington and believed by observers to have been in Asia, was reported yesterday by Georgetown University seismological observatory, according to the Associated Press.

The shocks began at 3:19 p. m., Saturday reached maximum intensity at 4 p. m., and ended at 5 p. m.

Troop Threat Against Foes Made by Long

9 Injunction Suits Filed; Both Factions Hint Resort to Arms.

New Orleans, La., Dec. 3 (U.P.). Senator Huey P. Long indicated tonight that Louisiana National Guardsmen or armed State highway policemen may be sent into the strife-torn Sixth Congressional District to preserve order at next Tuesday's election.

Citizens in that section claim that the Long regime "hand-picked" Mrs. Bolivar E. Kemp as the candidate for Congress to succeed her late husband. In the last few days, bands of men have raided two courthouses to seize and burn ballots, and have halted State Highway Department trucks loaded with campaign circulars and burned the literature.

The third courthouse was raided tonight when over 200 anti-Long men broke into the registrar of voters office at Amite, seized 11,000 blank ballots to be used in Tangipahoa Parish, Tuesday, and burned them on the courthouse lawn while a large crowd of spectators cheered. Amite is the home town of Mrs. Kemp.

Federal Law Invoked.

The citizens were threatened tonight with prosecution under the Federal law, which makes it a crime for "two or more persons to conspire to injure, oppress, threaten or intimidate any citizen in the exercise of his right to vote."

George M. Wallace, first assistant attorney general in the Long administration, sent telegrams to five judicial attorneys in the Sixth District, pointing out the Federal law, and noting that the penalty was 10 years' imprisonment and $5,000 fine.

"The Congressional election has been regularly called according to law by the governor," Wallace's message read.

A mass meeting was held tonight at Donaldsonville, to hear speakers "denounce the fraudulent attempt to rob our citizens of their right to elect freely by ballot a Congressman of their choice." Other mass meetings were scheduled for tomorrow afternoon at Hammond and tomorrow night at Covington.

Determined to Halt Voting.

Local authorities openly discussed fears of violence. Citizens have organized in all parts of the district, comprising 12 parishes, announcing that they would put a stop to the election, "even if we have to resort to shotguns."

Senator Long remained at his hotel headquarters in New Orleans today, in conference with political subordinates, including Gov. O. K. Allen.

"We are going to have that election, and we are determined to have peace at all costs," Long said. He refused to confirm or deny reports that martial law was imminent.

The citizens have filed injunction suits against election supervisors in nine courts of the district in an effort to prevent the election. Hearings are scheduled for tomorrow. Many of the judges have aligned themselves with the citizens and restraining orders were expected to be issued. In that case sheriffs would be called upon to enforce the court orders.

Seek to Evade Writs.

It was widely reported today that the election supervisors, all of whom were appointed by the Long administration, had spent last Friday night delivering ballots to election commissioners or other individuals, so that they would be out of their hands before the injunctions were served on them.

Ballot boxes in West Feliciana Parish, scene of one of the ballot burning incidents, have been placed in custody of the newspaper publisher in St. Francisville, who was instructed to hold them until December 27. The citizens, organized at a tumultous mass meeting a week ago, have called an election of their own for December 27.

Malone Williams, a parish official at Amite, also has announced that he would refuse to prepare ballot boxes for the election. Williams' territory embraces 20 precincts of Mrs. Kemp's home town.

State Representative George M. Lester, a citizen leader, said that "Huey Long's group will have to vote in cigar boxes or whatever they can find, if they want to vote in West Feliciana."

Russo-Japanese War In 6 Months Forecast

Burnley, England, Dec. 3 (AP). Sir Richard Stafford Cripps, son of Lord Parmoor, and solicitor general for the government, said in an address today that he would not be surprised if war broke out between Japan and Russia within six months.

He added that if it started, the conflict might well end in England.

$100,000 Church Burns.

Ashland, Ohio, Dec. 3 (AP).—The worst fire here in 30 years early today destroyed the First Presbyterian Church with a loss estimated at $100,000. Mansfield firemen aided the Ashland Fire Department in fighting the flames, which officials think were caused by defective wiring.

Vital Decisions on Money Policy and Taxes Await Roosevelt, Home Today

Faces Congress In Restive Mood

By Leon Dure, Jr.

With President Roosevelt En Route to Washington, Dec. 3.—Suntanned and rested after an almost care-free two weeks' vacation, President Roosevelt bid farewell to his "other home" at Warm Springs, Ga., today and sped northward to recume the strenuous schedule of the White House by noon tomorrow.

Before him lay a gathering Congress, already with indications its Presidential "honeymoon" was over. Before him lay also another winter of depression, although recovery signs have been noted, coupled with the threat of inflation.

Much water has seeped from the Warm Springs that give his favorite resort its name, much legislation has passed through the congressional mill, since he last left his little mountin cottage, but the minds of many who saw him off this afternoon turned back to that day only seven months ago when the "next President" told his neighbors goodby.

Off to Wars Again.

Since then the "New Deal" he promised is far into the deck; since then the Government has extended the hand of "partnership" to all business; since then, some say, "revolution" has swept quietly the country. And now it was Franklin Delano Roosevelt off to battle again; this time for a new currency—"an honest dollar."

Some saw in the two trips from Warm Springs a striking parallel. In the first case, he faced a banking crisis which he met by proclaiming the "bank holiday." Some thought again he might meet an Administration crisis—such as continued attacks on the gold policy might entail—by positive action.

Drives Topless Car in Rain.

When Gus Gennerich, the President's attendant and bodyguard, drove off in Roosevelt's dusty little automobile for them at the "Little White House," the top to the car was up. But a half hour later, despite a slight drizzle, the President came driving down the mountain road with the top down, as usual. He was enjoying the last possible moment of informal freedom.

With him as the car edged through the crowds at the station were Mrs. Roosevelt, in the front seat beside him; her friends, Miss Nancy Cook and Miss Marian Dickerman, Gennerich and the Roosevelt shaggy dog, which was coaxed aboard the train.

For 15 minutes the President stood chatting with officials of the Warm Springs Foundation and others before mounting the platform of his car. Then he spoke a short farewell, took a last look at the little runabout that bears the one letter "R" and nothing else, and

350-Pound Man Whips Bear, but Dies of Hurts

Salisbury, N. C., Dec. 3 (U.P.).—Sam T. Dorsett, 350-pound giant, who several months ago whipped an infuriated bear single-handed, died today of injuries received in the fight.

He killed the bear, but had been critically ill in a hospital since.

'Rolphing' Urged As Another Name For Mob Killing

New York, Dec. 3 (U.P.).—Mob execution of criminals should be called "Rolphing" instead of "lynching," Dr. Charles Francis Potter, founder of the first Humanist Society, said in an address before the society today.

Dr. Potter traced the history of lynching and pointed out that "lynch law" was named, without justification, for Charles Lynch, of Virginia.

"Col. Charles Lynch," Dr. Potter said, "does not deserve to have his name coupled with crazed mobs of today. To Gov. Rolph, who praises such acts, should go the honor of having his name attached to them."

Warburg Holds World Silver Pact Desirable

New York, Dec. 3 (AP).—James P. Warburg, adviser to the American delegation at the recent World Economic Conference, today wrote Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, that he was "in thorough sympathy" with the projected international agreement between silver producing and silver consuming countries, but that his attitude should not be construed as "opening the door to a consideration of bimetalism."

The letter, in reply to a communication from the Idaho senator criticising Warburg for his stand in the present monetary controversy, said he agreed with the senator that stabilization "in terms of gold" of a metal used as money "by more than half the world's population" is "a most important element in achieving international monetary stability."

"But," he said, "I would not go so far as to say that doubling the price of silver would double the purchasing power of the Chinese, because I believe that the purchasing power of the Chinese depends upon the goods and services that the Chinese can export.

Defines His Stand.

"What I have in mind is simply this, that some small part, let us say one-fifth, of the metal cover required as legal minimum reserve against note issue, might be allowed to consist optionally of gold or silver, provided that a central bank, electing so to hold silver for a fifth of its metal cover, would carry it at or below a price to be agreed upon. This would mean that if central banks must have a minimum of 25 per cent metal cover against their note circulations, four-fifths of this metal cover must be in gold and one-fifth may be in gold or optionally in silver, if obtainable below the agreed price."

He said the chief merit in his proposal is the creation "of a stabilizing factor, in that presumably central banks would be tempted to buy, if silver fell below the agreed price, and to sell if it rose above."

In stating that his position should not be construed as favoring bimetalism, Mr. Warburg added it should not even "be considered as

Woof! Mate Climbs Tree As Bride Races for Gun

Gold Beach, Oreg., Dec. 3 (AP). The bear, as Claude Bardon explained afterward, was not only the largest he had ever seen—but the skinniest. So he took for a tree while his bride, with whom he was strolling, raced to their nearby house for a rifle. When Mrs. Bardon came back she found no bear there.

Bardon's dogs had chased the intruder from the vicinity.

Party Liberals Increase Strain With Assault Upon Program.

May Slash Dollar To Raise Billions

Early Reply to Critics Expected; Will Give Speech Wednesday.

By Elliott Thurston

Vital decisions, notably upon monetary policy, Treasury financing, taxes and the rapidly-shifting political kaleidoscope, await President Roosevelt's return to the White House today.

Fresh dissension has broken out among the so-called Young Liberals of his own camp, some of whom are on the brink of revolt over his heeding the outcry against the Securities Act, while others are disgruntled by developing industrial controls under the NRA or agricultural controls under the AGRA. Monetary policy has added to the confusing conflict inside and outside of Administration ranks.

The Treasury has prepared, and Acting Secretary Henry Morgenthau, jr., who also returns today, will present at the White House a new set of statistics on the gold-buying operations and their effects to date. Whether the President will make his speech Wednesday, before the Federal Council of Churches, the occasion for shedding new light on future policy remains undecided. He has said he would not undertake to defend or explain the monetary program, now the storm center of debate, in this address.

Reply Expected Soon.

Close advisers think, however, he will soon reply to the increasing volume of criticism by explanations intended to diminish the fears of "greenbacking," and to demonstrate that he continues to favor ultimate return to a "modernized" gold standard. They doubt that he will reveal, at this time, the next moves in his experiment in raising prices by monetary manipulation.

The consensus among close observers of the present policy is that the President eventually will declare a devaluation of the dollar, under the Thomas amendment, and then take over from the reserve banks the profits this would represent in their gold holdings. In this way the Administration might find several billion dollars to meet maturing debts or possibly to finance the fast-mounting outlays for relief

Storm Traps Russian Ship

Scientists' Craft, Caught in Arctic Ice, Drifts Helplessly.

St. Paul Island, Alaska, Dec. 3 (U.P.).—The Russian steamship Cheluskin, carrying a Soviet scientific expedition, was disabled and drifting helplessly in ice in a heavy storm tonight.

The vessel's radio operator gave the position as 60.80 north, 173 west, which is approximately 100 miles north of Pitlekai, on the coast of Siberia, north of the Arctic Circle.

Two in Car Killed As Ohio Span Falls

Four Others Hurt; Bridge Collapses in Creek.

Oak Harbor, Ohio, Dec. 3 (AP).—Believed damaged by a heavy truck, a bridge over a small creek near here collapsed tonight while an automobile was passing over it, killing two girls and injuring three other young persons.

Gladys Strauch, 17, and Jeanett Soenchsen, 18, were killed; Myron Bloom, 18, suffered a fractured skull, and Malinda Hetrick, 16, suffered a broken jaw.

Boston Women, Too, Stung By Ethel Barrymore's Lash

Boston, Dec. 3 (U.P.).—Because of her "ungracious" conduct before the Professional Women's Club, of Boston, a year ago, Ethel Barrymore is the subject of a "negative ban" against her appearance at Women's Club functions here, it was learned tonight.

Miss Barrymore erupted recently in defense of Eva Le Gallienne at Philadelphia. Mrs. Francis J. Flagg, disclosed tonight the actress also had incurred the displeasure of Boston women.

"I can not say definitely that Miss Barrymore has been banned, because no action has been taken," Mrs. Flagg said, "but it might be called a 'negative ban.'

"The Professional Women's Club was having its international luncheon and a great many distinguished persons were present. Miss Barrymore arrived five minutes late and was given a very cordial reception.

"As president, I introduced her, mentioning that while several members of European royal families were present, we had a member of still another royal family with us, the royal family of Broadway. I had not seen the play or the moving picture of that name and so did not know Miss Barrymore's attitude toward it.

"Miss Barrymore was very indignant. She denied that she was of Broadway and said that Broadway produced only bilgewater by the scum of the earth. She made other insulting remarks and left immediately. The women were indignant and many of them canceled their reservations to see her play."

Pittsburgh, Dec. 3 (AP).—Eva Le Gallienne "wouldn't dream of criticizing Ethel Barrymore for what she said" to a Philadelphia audience last week in defending the former against charges that she failed to keep an engagement.

"But she didn't call them 'morons.' I don't think 'moron' is in her vocabulary," said Miss Le Gallienne, arriving here today.

Duce, Litvinoff Agree to Seek Arms Solution

Nonaggression Pact Also Furthered; Religious Issue Avoided.

Rome, Dec. 3 (AP).—A solemn agreement on Soviet-Fascist collaboration to improve the situation in Europe was reached today at two conferences between Premier Mussolini and Foreign Minister Maxim Litvinoff of Russia, who arrived yesterday from the United States.

Tonight the two statesmen broke bread together at a brilliant banquet tendered to Litvinoff by Il Duce.

Reading between the lines of the official communique, issued by the Italian government, well-informed circles were convinced Mussolini has obtained support of the Soviet in his efforts to solve the disarmament snarl. Outside of this and an agreement on early ratification of the Italian-Soviet pact of nonaggression, nothing definite was known of the nature of the bilateral conversation.

The official communique said the two statesmen "discussed problems of international policy, particularly those directly interesting the two countries, and have considered the possibility of betterment of the general political situation in the spirit of the Italo-Soviet nonaggression pact."

Arms, Major Topic.

Ratifications of this pact are to be exchanged "as soon as possible," it was officially stated.

It was generally believed the conversations embraced major international problems of the moment. Both Italy and Russia are known to favor radical slashes in international armaments, so Mussolini and his visitor had no occasion to find any great differences in their discussions of methods to achieve disarmament.

They were confronted with the problem of adapting Il Duce's favored four-power project to Russia's insistence on being included (as a fifth power) and being put on a basis of complete equalty in negotiations.

Religion Not Mentioned.

It was considered most likely that Mussolini and Litvinoff were in accord on continuance for the time being of direct diplomatic negotiations between the major powers.

Mussolini's previously announced plan to broach the subject of restoration of religious liberty in Russia was not mentioned in the official communique.

The question of using American cotton for payment of Russian commercial debts to Italy was scheduled for the conversatons, but there was no official mention of the subject after the noon meeting.

Two Bandits Shot In Holdup at Club

Meet Bullets in Brookline, Mass., Robbery.

Boston, Dec. 3 (AP).—Two bandits were seriously wounded today after they had been routed by gunfire from the clubroom of the Brookline Associates in Brookline.

One of the men, John J. Norton, 22, was shot down by State Detective Michael F. Fleming, who was passing the club. A second was wounded inside the club and a third escaped. The second wounded man, George Farley, 21, of Decatur, Ill., staggered into a Boston hospital several hours later in a dying condition.

Farley was shot by Hugh Farley, manager of the club, after the men had taken $80 from a club attendant and $40 from the cash register.

Richard Henry Warren, Noted Musician, Dead

South Chatham, Mass., Dec. 3 (U.P.).—Richard Henry Warren, 74, famous organist, composer and conductor, died of a heart attack today at his home.

An intimate of Robert Louis Stevenson, Brander Matthews, Victor Herbert, and J. Pierpont Morgan, he was known in Europe and America for his remarkable qualities as a musician and had been guest organist at churches in London and Geneva. Among his best loved works were the romantic opera, "Phyllis," and the operetta, "Queen of Hearts."

Sham Air Raid Ignored; Town to Feel Tear Gas

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Dec. 3 (U.P.).—Authorities decided today to use real tear gas bombs in the forthcoming sham air raid over Zagreb.

They said the inhabitants had not taken the recent series of raids on various towns seriously enough.

County Soon to Own Its 1903 Courthouse

Oklahoma City, Dec. 3 (AP).—One more payment and the courthouse here will belong to Oklahoma County. The last installment of $10,000 will be paid next month on a structure 30 years old.

Interest on the $100,000 issue of 1903 has cost the county $114,750.

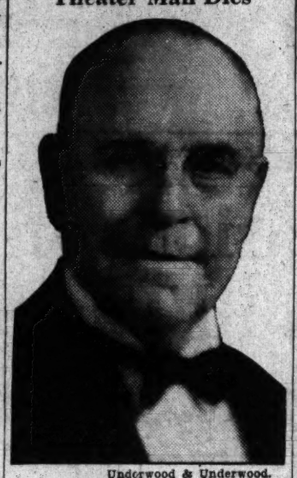
Theater Man Dies



Underwood & Underwood.

W. H. Rapley, Famed Theater Operator, Dies

William Harryman Rapley, dean of American theatrical managers and part owner of the National Theater, died last night in his suite at the Shoreham Hotel. He had been ill more than six weeks.

Since 1885, Mr. Rapley had shared the ownership of the National Theater. He succeeded his father, W. W. Rapley, as manager and joint owner.

From the administration of President Grant, Mr. Rapley and his father had been showman host to each Chief Executive, with the exception of President Hoover. He was a friend of the famous in theater history and knew all major stars dating from the original Barrymore.

With E. J. Walsh and Benjamin S. Minor, Mr. Rapley at one time was part owner of the Washington Baseball Club. It was from him the name "Nationals" originated.

Liked "First Nights."

There were but few "first nights" that he failed to attend in Baltimore, Philadelphia, Atlantic City and New York.

The night he took over active management of the theater, newspapers of the day described him as "a fine, rugged young man with a wonderful career ahead."

Mr. Rapley often said that under his management the National Theater held a "long distance" record for keeping open. For five years the house was never dark.

In search of talent he journeyed to Europe and completed arrangements for the importation of stars for the American stage. He was the first to present Gilbert & Sullivan light operas in Washington.

During his active management of the National Theater, Mr. Rapley served as president of the American Theater Owners Association. He was appointed by that body to represent theater interests before Congressional committees.

Feted on Birthdays.

Mr. Rapley's birthday was an occasion to celebrate in the theater world. The great and near great journeyed from New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore to take part in an annual fete.

Outstanding events in his life, as only he could remember them, are set forth in his memoirs which he had just completed.

Mr. Rapley was born in Washington, April 26, 1857. He was the son of William Washington and Charity S. Rapley. He was educated in District Schools, and by appointment of President Grant attended the Military Academy at West Point.

Mr. Rapley is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary Rapley, a son, William B. Rapley, and three grandchildren.

Richberg Discounts Tampa Ruling; Holds Interstate Commerce Affected.

The NRA will contend it has a right to regulate local business because chaotic conditions are creating havoc in interstate commerce, Donald R. Richberg, general counsel of the Recovery Administration, said yesterday.

Richberg said undue importance had been attached to the ruling of Federal Judge Alexander Akerman in Tampa, Fla., that provisions of the recovery act as they affect business entirely within a State are unconstitutional. He said the decision was on a minor point and does not have the force of a binding court decision.

NRA officials are proceeding in their efforts to obtain compliance in every line of business for which a code is in effect, in spite of the court decision.

The NRA codes are looked upon as voluntary contracts and binding as such. A case in point is that of the dry cleaners, more than 100 of whom have been cited for alleged violations of the price-fixing agreement. They have been asked to appear December 11 for a hearing and have been instructed to justify their action or face prosecution.

Eagle Display Held Binding.

In these cases, it was pointed out, many of the cleaners against whom complaints have been made have been displaying the Blue Eagle. NRA's legal theory is that display of the Blue Eagle constitutes agreement to a binding contract to abide by the code.

In the Tampa case dry cleaners at St. Petersburg, Fla., sought to restrain a competitor who refused to charge the minimum prices provided in the code. The court refused to issue the restraining order.

The NRA legal department points out that it is extremely difficult to draw a line between interstate and intrastate business. They point out that the Interstate Commerce Commission establishes freight rates within a State, on the theory that conflicting intrastate rates would break down the National rate structure.

Richberg's Statement.

The Richberg statement follows:

"The decision on application of a private individual for an injunction can not be regarded as an important determination of the validity of the recovery act.

"This partciular decision of a Federal judge was based, first, upon a denial of the right of an individual to seek an injunction which the law specifically conferred on the district attorney; and second, the statement as to the applicatoin of the law to local business, which is not based on a finding of fact after hearing evidence as to whether the local business did or did not affect interstate commerce.

"The recovery act as a whole is undoubtedly constitutional. This is the prevailing opinion among all competent legal authorities, and any determination that a particular method of administering the act is invalid would not affect the general administratoin of the act."

Two Republicans Laud Decision.

Representatives Dickinson, of Iowa, and Beck, of Pennsylvania, both Republicans, told the Associated Press they concurred in the decision of Judge Akerman.

"I concur in the decision absolutely, and think it will have a far-reaching effect on the NRA program," Representative Dickinson said. "I am very anxious for it to get to the Supreme Court."

Representative Beck said:

"The greater part of the industrial activities of the Nation which are now sought to be regulated by Nation-wide codes are in fact wholly intrastate, and the importance of this decision is that the Federal Government has no constitutional power to regulate an industry whose operations are wholly within a State."

and the innumerable other Federal commitments.

Committee for the Nation leaders, whose proposals have been followed repeatedly, recently began to agitate for taking over reserve bank profits on revalued gold, using the money to pay off closed bank depositors, to expand public works and otherwise flush the buying power of the country.

Could Double Value.

Reserve banks now hold $3,591,000,000 in gold valued at the statutory rate of $20.67 an ounce. If the President were to revalue, by the full limit of his authority, this gold would be booked at $7,182,000,000. And if the example of France and Italy were followed, when they revalued their gold, the Government would take over the "profit," or $3,591,000,000 to meet debts. Were it to be taken over and used as a basis for the issue of currency, it would support an issue of $8,977,500,000, at the present rate of gold cover.

Advocates of this procedure, accordingly, scoff at the talk of "greenbacks," insisting that these fresh rivers of money would still have a gold bed and backing. They are likewise but mildly concerned about the bond market or the problems of raising funds for the heavy financing ahead in the usual way. Their point is that the President can find plenty of money by revaluing and impounding the profits on the Reserve Bank gold.

"Technically this profit would accrue to the Federal Reserve Banks," according to Editorial Research Reports, "but in actuality it probably would be turned over to the Treasury. This profit might be used in various ways. It might go to current expenditures or to the purchase of government securities from private holders, thus reducing the public debt (now at a new peacetime high.) Or it might be used to buy up government securities held by the Federal Reserve Banks. This last method was pursued in France and Italy when those countries returned to the gold standard with a reduction in the gold content of the franc and the lira."

Action Now Doubted.

While this future possibility has engaged much attention here, few observers think the President will make any such dramatic move yet or that he will deviate from the immediate program of continuing to buy foreign and domestic newly mined gold, the latter at the R. F. C. artificial price, now up to $34.01 an ounce. Prof. George F. Warren and the other commodity dollar advisers tell him the gold buying needs much longer trial to produce the price-saving results claimed for it. They profess to be well satisfied with the progress so far. Their theory is that the lag between the cause and effect is prolonged and indefinite. Hence they advise the President to keep on indefinitely.

Apparent concern over the complaints that the securities act is preventing necessary corporate financing and refinancing led the President to assign Henry Bruere, his credit liaison, to a study of the facts. At Morgenthau's request, the Senate Banking Committee probably will consult with Bruere with a view to possible relaxing of the liability clauses.

This move, however, has alarmed the "young liberals," who see in it a capitulation to the bond sellers and a threatened scuttling of what they have proudly proclaimed was a bomb-proof law. Some of their fire is directed at the new order in the Treasury, which they suspect of sympathizing with "Wall street" on bond selling, while ready to follow Prof. Warren on the path to his commodity dollar.

Action Unexpected.

In any case, the President exhibited an unexpected interest in the pressing problems of corporate financing, now at a virtual standstill, when he agreed to reexamine the facts. His interest is represented as based on a realization that the R. F. C. or some other Federal source must supply funds if they can not be obtained from the issuance of securities in the regular way.

Treasury officials exhibit no uneasiness about December 15 financing of some $727,000,000. The President and Morgenthau must decide at once, however, how these maturities are to be met. The general expectation is for more short-term financing, now that the Fourth Liberty 4¼ bond conversion offer proved unproductive after the gold-buying program began.

Difficult as the next steps are becoming in the gold-buying program, the finding of funds for the fast-increasing outlays, and the load of taxation needed to achieve at least a paper balance of the budget, the political complications are even more disturbing at the moment to the President's counsellors.

Young Liberals Dissatisfied.

The Treasury overhauling, both in the manner of its accomplishment and the nature of the new personnel, served to spread disquiet and discontent among a group of young lawyers and budding "brain trusters," scattered through a number of departments. Many of them, like the erstwhile Undersecretary Acheson and the former Treasury adviser, Prof. Sprague, were recommended by Felix Frankfurter. Most of them were drawn from the ranks of the country's "young liberals." They look upon the forces now taking possession in some departments as exponents of the old order.

One hotbed of discontent is the A. A. A., where the views and policies of George N. Peek are in collision with those of Prof. Rexford G. Tugwell and Jerome N. Frank, general counsel of the A. A. A. Another undercurrent of unrest exists in the NRA and arises from a multitude of causes, including hostility between the so-called liberals and the conservatives, who allegedly are given dominion. Upward of 20 young lawyers and experts in other professions are listed in the ranks of the deeply discontented who have been induced to hold on until the President returns and can hear the case more intimately.

While discontent is always prevalent, the existing unrest threatens to strip a number of departments of more than a score of the ablest men, chiefly of the younger generation, who have had much to do in drafting legislation and shaping policy and now feel they are being sidetracked for a new and different order. The monetary storm has added to the disaffection.

For many of these men, including Tugwell and Frank, to resign now would create a political uproar which Administration political advisers think would be a serious blow, particularly at an hour when the monetary battle threatens to recast party aligments completely, quite possibly with the West and South forming the long-predicted alliance against the rest of the country.

The break between the President and Al Smith is now considered irreparable; the manner in which Acheson and Sprague were shelved has disquieted their sympathizers and alienated some hopelessly; the installation of changed forces in command of policy in some departments is too much for the "young liberals" in many cases. Hence, the President returns to face political problems which are as urgent as the economic and fiscal dilemmas just ahead.

And the time element is further narrowed by the assembling of Congress in a month, renewing the open forum for accumulated grievances and the major battles over policy on which every President stands or falls.

U. S. in League, Held Duce Aim

French Hear Mussolini Will Urge Joining to Save Plan.

Paris, Dec. 3 (U.P.).—Persistent although unconfirmed reports were current in well-informed circles here tonight that Premier Benito Mussolini, of Italy, intends to invite the United States to join the League of Nations.

Il Duce was said to believe that President Roosevelt's next important step—following recognition of Soviet Russia—would be toward closer official collaboration with the League in international affairs.

Mussolini was said already to have sounded out Washington's reaction to an invitation to join the League as one move which could save that organization from almost certain collapse. The Italian government may withdraw from the League, if such a move is approved by the fascist grand council this week.

Such a move, following withdrawal of Germany and Japan would leave the League practically useless, it was felt—and Mussolini, rather than see it die, would strengthen it by having the United States join. In such an event, it was doubted Italy would quit.

Nearby Liquor Sales Delayed Until Thursday

Even When Licenses Are Issued, Rum Will Be Sold in Packages.

Although the eighteenth amendment will be repealed tomorrow afternoon, Washingtonians won't be able to buy any legal liquor in this vicinity before Thursday and then probably in packages only.

Liquor will be on sale in 24 States immediately after the thirty-sixth State has acted on repeal, but the National Capital will have to wait until temporary licensees begin operation in Prince Georges County—or else patronize the old bootlegger and speakeasy.

Washington police will be lenient, however, in permitting Washingtonians to bring home small quantities of whisky when sales begin in Prince Georges.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, said yesterday no attempt would be made to halt the flow of liquor from nearby Maryland into the District via private buyers so long as the purchasers "behave themselves." He asserted the law prohibiting bringing liquor into the District is still in effect, but there will be no patroling of the roads leading into the Capital from wet territory.

Virginia Bone Dry.

Virginia is bone dry, save for 3.2 per cent beer, and will remain so, at least until the General Assembly meets January 17. Unless an emergency act is adopted then, whatever legislation is passed would not become effective for 90 days.

Legalization of liquor sales will not be effective in Montgomery County before the first of January, because of the time required to establish dispensaries.

While the present Maryland control bill now restricts sales in Prince Georges County to bottle packages, the measure may be modified early this week to permit restaurants to sell liquor for consumption on the premises.

A delegation from the Hyattsville Chamber of Commerce and several county Democratic clubs yesterday called on the Prince Georges County delegation at Annapolis and asked that the State bill be changed so as to allow on-sale licensing in Prince Georges metropolitan areas. This appeal will be considered today, according to Senator Lansdale G. Sasscer.

Wines with alcoholic content up to 14 per cent will be on sale immediately after repeal, however, and will be relatively easy to obtain.

Dry History Ignored.

All beer licenses in Prince Georges will be permitted to handle the stronger beverages at once, providing the Maryland bill passes by Tuesday afternoon, and Montgomery beer dealers presumably will be granted the same privilege.

Although the southern section of Prince Georges, including Hyattsville and Mount Rainier were dry long before prohibition and while Maryland was wet, there is scarcely any likelihood the town authorities will attempt to prohibit liquor sales after repeal.

With the District and Virginia, as well as Montgomery County dry until the first of the year, Prince Georges licensees are expected to do a large business this month.

Henry Morris, chairman of the Prince Georges County liquor board, said a meeting has been called for Wedensday morning to arrange immediate issuances of temporary licenses, providing the Maryland bill has become a law. He predicted, however, that sales could not begin before Thursday.

Licenses probably will be limited to 250, he said, although the type of establishments licensed has not been determined. As the State bill now reads, liquor can be sold only in bottle packages of a half pint or more. No sales would be permitted for consumption on the premises, even in exclusive clubs, such as is planned for Montgomery.

Price schedules are uncertain, Senator Sasscer, of Prince Georges, predicted prices would be similar to those of preprohibition days.

Agents of distillers and wholesale importers are understood to have been soliciting orders in anticipation of repeal so as to assure an ample supply of liquor for retailers.

Montgomery County commissioners will take no steps to put the county dispensary system in operation until the State control bill becomes a law, according to John B. Diamond, jr., one of the commissioners.

3 Towns Get Dispensaries.

Dispensaries are to be established in Bethesda, Silver Springs, and Rockville, one only in each community, and on-sale licenses will be issued to any country club having a nine-hole golf course and two tennis courts prior to repeal.

Persons who do not belong to these exclusive clubs will have to do all their drinking at home, as liquor will not be on sale in restaurants or hotels.

A liquor board will be appointed as soon as the Maryland control bill is enacted and will handle all details relative to establishment of dispensaries. It will be impossible, however, according to commissioner Diamond, to open dispensaries before the first part of January.

Liquor will be sold in the dispensaries to all, without limitation, Diamond said.

Maryland Rum Rules Will Bar Sales to Minors

Miss Engle Wins Battle in Sunday Session of Assembly.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 3.—Sale of liquor to minors will be illegal in Maryland, due to a fight in the State Legislature today led by Miss Lavinia Engle, Montgomery County delegate.

Meeting on Sunday for the first time in many years, the House considered more than 200 amendments to the administration-sponsored alcohol-control plan in an effort to permit whisky sales with the end of National prohibition this week. The measure was approved yesterday by the Senate.

Among 160 amendments favorably reported by the ways and means committee was a proposal to permit purchase of alcoholic beverages by persons under 21 possessing consent of their parents or guardian.

Amendment Pledged.

"By allowing the sale of liquor to minors," Miss Engle objected, "I think the House will be taking us back to a condition that did not even prevail before prohibition."

Delegate James J. Lindsay, jr., Baltimore County, defended the amendment. He explained its primary purpose was to permit drinking of beer and wine by minors when they accompany their parents to hotels, restaurants or beer gardens, "to eat, drink and hear the music."

Miss Engle said she would have no objection to sale of beer and light wines to minors when with their elders. Upon the woman delegate's insistence, Baltimore legislators agreed to draft and introduce an amendment to comply with her wishes.

The House approved an amendment authorizing establishment of dispensaries for the sale of liquor, wine and beer in three Montgomery County towns, Rockville, Bethesda and Silver Spring.

"Taverns" for Beaches.

"Taverns," to all intents and purposes open saloons, were voted for North Beach and Chesapeake Beach in Calvert County, popular watering spots frequented by Washington and Baltimore throngs. Sale of whisky and wine by the drink without mandatory purchase of food will be permitted in such establishments.

Other amendments adopted called for sale to Cecil County hotel guests of a maximum, a quart of liquor a day; authorized whisky dispensaries for Wicomico and Worcester Counties, prohibit sale of whisky, wine and beer by drug stores for consumption on the premises and authorized any person to bring into Maryland from other States a maximum of a quart of liquor a day.

After spending several hours considering amendments, the House adjourned at 7:15 p. m., until 11 a. m. tomorrow.

Chicago Liberal On 'Tavern' Rules

Bottle Buyers May Drink After "Curfew" Hour.

Chicago, Feb. 3 (AP).—Just because there is a 1 o'clock curfew for saloons—beg pardon, taverns—under the new Chicago liquor ordinance, it does not mean the doors close at that hour.

It merely means, Police Commissioner James P. Allman explained today, that sale of liquor must halt at 1 a. m.

If you buy a bottle just before the closing hour and elect to sit around a couple of hours drinking it, Allman said, there is no law to stop you.

Women Fliers Meet Delay on Trip South

Charleston, S. C., Dec. 3 (AP).—Viola Gentry and Mrs. Frances Harrell Marsalis, New York, aviatrices, landed here today from Raleigh en route to Miami, where they will attempt an endurance flight in their plane, "Outdoor Girl."

They had hoped to proceed to Jacksonville today, but strong headwinds and carburetor trouble delayed their flight.

North Carolina Forest Fires Checked by Rain

Sylva, N. C., Dec. 3 (AP).—Light rains helped check several forest fires in western North Carolina mountain counties today.

Blazes in Swain and Jackson Counties were brought under control. The Jackson County fires were threatening four homes when the rain fell.

Chicago Office Robbed Twice Within an Hour

Chicago, Dec. 3 (AP).—It was a busy day for Jonas Schneiderman, office manager of a coal company.

Four men carrying a shotgun and revolvers appeared at his office took $61 in cash, $200 in tax warrants, and $70 in checks. Within an hour appeared two men armed with revolvers.

"Where's the dough?" they asked.

"Sorry," said Schneiderman, "four other fellows beat you to it."

Disbelieving him, the men forced him to lie on the floor for several minutes while they ransacked the office. They got no money but walked away with a revolver Schneiderman had to protect himself from robberies.

Future activities and policies will be discussed by church and temperance leaders. The meeting will continue until January 10, and new officers of the National board of directors will be elected.

The repeal vote and problems of liquor control will be main topics of discussion. The convention will initiate a campaign to "inform young people about the nature and effects of alcoholic beverages."

Cherington, Westerville, Ohio, educational director; S. B. Dunford, local attorney, legal adviser; Dr. A. J. Barton, Wilmington, N. C., chairman of the executive committee.

Rebel Chinese Towns Bombed

20 Killed When Nanking Sends Plane Force Against Fukien.

Hongkong, Dec. 3 (AP).—Four towns of Fukien Province, where mass meetings were being held in celebration of the new dissident provincial government, were bombarded today by airplanes of the Nanking Nationalist army. Twenty persons were killed and at least 10 injured.

The population was thrown into panic and much damage was done to property in Shahsien, Changchow, Yenping and Chuanchow.

Meanwhile the south China government at Canton urged as a solution that Marshal Chiang Kai-shek, generalissimo of the Nanking forces, offer his resignation.

The Canton government is confining itself to defensive military preparations and it was unofficially reported that they would not join in attacking Fukien unless payment of $3,000,000 is forthcoming from Nanking.

It was reported here that many pro-Nanking Fascists, including army and navy officers, had been secretly executed at Canton.

Ship Officers Ask Code by Christmas

NRA Lifts Prices of All They Buy, Seamen Find.

New York, Dec. 3 (AP).—"A code by Christmas" is the slogan of the United Licensed Officers, an association of masters and officers including engineers on American ships, it was announced today.

Capt. John F. Milliken, president of the association, said he recognized the difficulties in the way of formulating a code for the shipping trade, but said seafarers and their families were paying more for everything because of the NRA, making a code for seafarers necessary.

Dime Novel Costs $25.

Chicago, Dec. 3 (AP).—The price of the dime novel has gone up. Connoisseurs have gone in for collecting the old paper-back thrillers. Charles Bragin, of Brooklyn, who has a collection of dime novels on display today, said they sell for as high as $25—and on rare occasions, $1,000—to collectors.

Car-Crash Toll Mounts to Two; Driver May Die

Collision on Mount Vernon Boulevard Fatal to D. C. Women.

With a toll of two dead in yesterday's early morning head-on automobile crash on the Mount Vernon Boulevard near Four Mile Run, described by Park Police as one of the worst on record, physicians at the Alexandria Hospital reported a third, driver of one of the cars, had slight chances for recovery.

Mrs. Ethel Pierson, 25, of 614 Sixth street northwest, at first erroneously identified, died soon after the accident. A companion, Miss Dorothy Furr, 18, of 110 C street northwest, succumbed about 9 a. m., yesterday. Both died in Emergency Hospital.

The two women were riding in an auto which collided with a taxi cab. Both cars overturned.

Dean May Recover.

Meanwhile, Woodrow Dean, 21, of 253 Kentucky avenue southeast, was given a "fighting chance" at Alexandria Hospital. He suffered a compound fracture of the skull, internal injuries and cuts and bruises. He is under police guard as driver of the pleasure car.

The taxi was en route to North Carolina. The driver, James Lyles, 22, of 1317 Columbia road northwest, and his wife, Mrs. Lorrene Lyles, escaped with cuts and bruises.

Edwin Anderson, 20, of 1869 Ingleside Terrace northwest, also was reported in a critical condition in Emergency Hospital. He was a passenger in the taxi. Miss Marie Furr, 15, sister of one of those fatally injured, is recovering in Alexandria Hospital. She received a fractured collar bone and several fractured ribs.

Six Others Hurt Slightly.

Six others, none seriously hurt, were released after treatment. They are:

Woodrow Acton, 21, of 100 M street southeast; Helen Davis, 20, of 614 Sixth street northwest; Lee Cannon, 24, and L. C. Cannon, 19, brothers, of the Park Central Apartments; Mrs. Nina Hines, 21, of 1413 Newton street northwest, and James T. Warring, 20, of 1900 M street southeast.

Witnesses said a fog hindered vision of both drivers. Anderson, the Cannon brothers and Mrs. Hines were in the Lyles' taxi.

Warburg in Favor Of Silver Accord

a suggestion that silver be used along with gold for the settlement of international balances of payment."

Talks of British Deal.

In answering Senator Borah's contention that cooperating with England in revaluing money "is unlikely and therefore too remote," Mr. Warburg said he gathered a "very distinct impression from direct contact with various elements in the Brtiish government" that "they realize we have a mutual interest in establishing international monetary stability which far outweighs national considerations."

"I am quite prepared to say that if my assumption should prove wrong," the letter said, "and the British should be unwilling to cooperate upon a reasonable basis, I should then not advocate delaying our return to a modernized gold standard until their cooperation could be secured. I should then be in favor of doing the best job we could, either by ourselves or with the cooperation of such nations as might wish to cooperate."

Mr. Warburg said he could not escape the conclusion that "if we revalue alone, we shall be subject to having our revaluation upset by the subsequent action of others."

"It is precisely for this reason," he added, "that I think Great Britain would likewise be unwilling to revalue alone, but would be willing to revalue in cooperation with us."

Mayor Would Keep Women From Bars

Seeking to Forbid Them Before or Behind Rail.

Atlantic City, N. J. (AP).—Women won't drink or serve drinks at bars in this city, if Mayor Bacharach has his way. He will incorporate two rules in a proposed ordinance:

1. No women shall be allowed to stand either in front of or in back of the bar.

2. No saloon shall be permitted to maintain a sideroom.

Delay Ordered In Allocation Of Alien Rum

as the original plan was to admit 4,800,000 gallons at this time to meet the immediate domestic demand.

The financial standing of prospective importers—one of whom applied for a permit to bring in liquor cargoes from Rum Row, off the New Jersey Coast—will be checked by the F. A. C. A. when Choate takes charge today, and trade agreements with exporting nations will be discussed.

Choate, whose administration is empowered to regulate all branches of the liquor industry, has called an informal meeting of the Government officials appointed by President Roosevelt under the distillers' code for this morning. The organization of the F. A. C. A. will not be completed until after repeal is proclaimed Tuesday.

President Roosevelt and Acting Secretary of State Phillips will issue their proclamations immediately after conventions in Pennsylvania, Ohio and Utah ratify the twenty-first amendment. Governors of these three States have been requested by Phillips to notify him immediately after the conventions have acted.

Brewers' Code Ready.

The President's committee and a committee of brewers agreed yesterday on the Government-drafted code for the brewing industry. It was signed by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and will be submitted to President Roosevelt upon his arrival here today from Warm Springs, Ga.

Hearings will open today on a code for wholesale liquor dealers. Tomorrow, a code for rectifiers and blenders is to be considered. Wine growers will be heard regarding an agreement for their industry later in the week.

It is planned to rush all three codes through before next Saturday.

A plan for blanket licensing and permit systems for liquor importers was discussed yesterday, as a means of expediting importations to meet the holiday demand.

1,000 Permits Asked.

Dr. James M. Doran, industrial alcohol commissioner, who with Ray Miller of the Farm Administration, has been assigned the duty of passing on importers' applications, found his office swamped with more than 1,000 requests for permits yesterday. He said he hoped the delay in acting on applications would not be for more than a day or two.

Dissatisfied with relatively small allotments already made, importers are bringing pressure on the Government to increase the 4,800,000 quota. Officials have indicated the quota may be raised if the supply is such that bootlegging and rum-running would be encouraged.

Dr. Doran is expected to resign from Government service to become head of the distillers' code authority. His only comment yesterday was that he still is on a Government pay roll. Others who were considered for the post were Alfred E. Smith, Newton D. Baker and Jouett Shouse.

The President's interdepartmental committee on liquor also considered yesterday recommendations for legislation on increased taxes and permanent control of the liquor business. The tax recommendations are to be submitted at a hearing before the Senate finance and the House Ways and Means Committees in joint session, December 11. Those for control are to be submitted later, as for the time being the F. A. C. A. is established as a dictatorship over the industry.

F. A. C. A. Has No Jobs.

The F. A. C. A. announced last night that it would accept no applications for positions in its organization. In order to keep administrative expenses at a minimum, the Administration has decided to carry on its work through details of personnel from various bureaus in the Government service whose work is more or less closely related to that of the new Administration. Such few positions as may not be filled by details from other departments will be filled from the present civil service registers of eligibles.

Roosevelts on Way Home From South

He had timed his visit well, companions reflected, since only one rainy day served to turn him from his regular routine of swimming and motoring. Perfect summer-end weather had given him a "grand time," but now the chill of winter is becoming noticeable and an overcoat a comfortable essential.

Few knew of the President's departure elsewhere, however, so only small clumps of people gathered along the tracks as the Presidential special passed northward through Georgia. For companions as far as Atlanta he had Senator R. B. Russell, jr., former Senator John S. Cohen, L. W. (Chip) Robert, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, and Clark Howell, sr., Atlanta publisher.

The President continued to maintain silence concerning the gold operations. No inkling of any contemplated answer to opponents has been given, although it has been reported he is framing a decisive reply. All he has said is that by working on the train he will clear his desk of all pending matters before arrival.

While he has indicated only that his monetary policy will be maintained, the President's visit was not unfruitful in other respects. The vacation afforded quiet conferences with such lieutenants as Secretaries Ickes and Wallace, Gen. Johnson, Gov. Black, of the Federal Reserve, and many others.

It's Roosevelt Or Ruin, States Rev. Coughlin

Morgan Loan Statement Repeated Over Radio; Foe Apologizes.

Detroit, Dec. 3 (AP).—Asserting it is either "Roosevelt or ruin," the Rev. Father Charles E. Coughlin, pastor of the Shrine of the Little Flower, in a speech today renewed his defense of the Administration's monetary policies and reiterated his attack on the Administration's foes.

Father Coughlin's speech was broadcast over an independent hookup of radio stations.

Father Coughlin repeated statements regarding the controverted Alfred E. Smith-J. P. Morgan incident referred to in his speech last Sunday, remarking that he believed his statements were "misquoted to Mr. Smith" and that "no one has said that Mr. Smith obtained a loan" on the occasion of his reputed visit to the offices of Mr. Morgan.

Mgr. Belford Apologizes.

Almost simultaneously with Father Coughlin's speech of today, the Right Rev. Mgr. John L. Belford, of Brooklyn, was stating publicly that he desired "to broadcast a very humble and sincere apology to all whom I offended" in his remarks regarding Father Coughlin's monetary speech at a New York mass meeting last Monday night.

"It was uncharitable and I deeply regret it. I am not explaining, extenuating or excusing. No one has ordered it or suggested it."

In his interview early last week Mgr. Belford had referred to Father Coughlin as "an infernal nuisance" and "a public enemy * * * who makes it his business to cater to the mob."

"John Raskob Next."

In giving out Mgr. Belford's telegram of apology to newspapermen, Father Coughlin remarked that "John Raskob will be next and Al Smith after him."

Both Mr. Raskob and Mr. Smith have taken issue with Father Coughlin's utterances.

Referring to the Smith statements in his speech today, Father Coughlin said:

"If I disagree with Mr. Smith's financial philosophy, let no man—no editor, except a liar—maintain that I do not admire the former governor's Christian morality."

He repeated his previous statement that two Roman Catholic bishops accompanied Mr. Smith by automobile to Morgan's office "when there was occasion to arrange a substantial loan to finance the Empire State Building."

Danes in America Hear King on Air

Greeted and Felicitated for Homeland Zeal.

New York, Dec. 3 (AP).—King Christian of Denmark sent a holiday greeting today to Danes in America, who he said are preserving the best of what they brought with them from Europe. The King added:

"I think with gratitude about the faithfulness with which they are watching over their homeland, despite their change surroundings and the long distance which separates them from it."

He spoke during a trans-Atlantic broadcast.

Baltimore Newspaper Man Dies in New York

His sister, Mary, was notified in Baltimore.

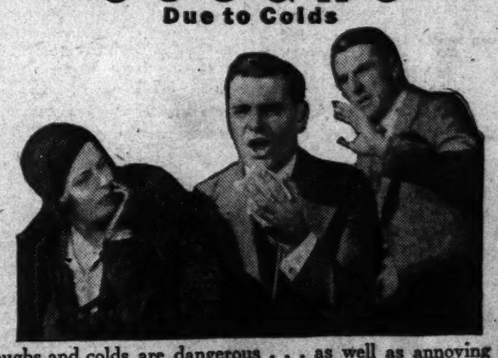
By Checking Dangerous
COUGHS
Due to Colds



Coughs and colds are dangerous . . . as well as annoying to yourself and others. Check energy-sapping coughs at their inception. Protect the health of your immediate family and prevent the spread of cold germs.

Most of us are prone to look with indifference upon the necessity of "breaking up" a cough at its beginning. A cough due to a cold is perhaps not alarming at first . . . but if allowed to continue it lowers your vitality, saps your strength and makes you easy prey of many dangerous illnesses.

For more than 25 years Hall's Expectorant has brought prompt, safe relief in cases of coughs due to colds. Hall's is a scientifically compounded preparation containing, among other beneficial drugs, creosote, which medical science considers a great healing agency for irritated bronchial tracts caused from coughing.

Hall's does more than stop the cough; it goes directly to the seat of the trouble by entering the blood stream . . . in this way cold germs are checked and prevented.

Irish Republic Issue Is Put Up To Commons

Thomas Holds Power of War or Peace in Tilt With De Valera.

London, Dec. 3 (AP).—Whether Ireland will remain a British commonwealth or secede and become an independent republic, with thousands of Irish in England subject to deportation unless they choose British citizenship, is expected to be presented to the House of Commons Tuesday as a clear-cut issue.

Bluff Jim Thomas, secretary for the Dominions, and the dour Irish president, Eamon de Valera, have joined in a battle which it is feared will revive all the bitterness of the ancient Anglo-Irish feud.

If a Free State political crisis is created, it is believed in authoritative quarters that De Valera will call a general election on a platform of an all-Ireland republic, that is, a de jure republic for all Ireland, and a de facto republic for the 26 counties of the Irish Free State.

The six counties of Northern Ireland are not a part of the Free State.

As secretary of the Dominions, Thomas, by his expected declaration in the House of Commons Tuesday, has power to make peace or war between Britain and Ireland, according to those in touch with Free State opinion.

If De Valera declared outright for a republic after Thomas declares Britain's stand on Tuesday, political observers in London believe the British Government will proclaim all Irishmen now living in England aliens, but with the opportunity of taking British citizenship.

Such action, however, would have to be prefaced by an imperial conference to consider Irish secession, a problem which the empire never has actually faced.

De Valera, who is considered a law unto himself in the present crisis, steadfastly refuses to discuss the situation.

Navy Yard employes honor Bernard G. Ladd as he retires after 35 years service in the sight shop. W. L. Friedell (right), senior inspector, is shown presenting a handsome traveling bag, one of several gifts, to Mr. Ladd as his daughter, Miss Virginia Ladd, and grandson, Bernard Marshal, look on.

WITH the strong impetus given the program of the National Legislative Council of Federal Employe Organizations last week, its leaders are moving forward toward drafting a bill to present to Congress next month.

Prospects for conciliation committees or courts of appeal and liberalization of the retirement law are considerably brighter. Behind this program is what is claimed to be a substantial majority of organized Government workers. The total membership of the six constituent organizations is said to be more than 150,000. The Council is acting as a clearing house on legislative matters of mutual interest to the following groups:

A platform embracing the following points as bases has been adopted:

1. Maintenance and extension of the merit system.
2. Restoration of pay.
3. An equitable retirement system for all Federal workers.
4. Establishment of a full-fledged Civil Service court of appeals.

Nations' Hopes Appear Bright In Montevideo

New Issues Push Former Western World Worries Aside.

By Kendall Foss.

Pan-American prospects were brighter in Montevideo last night than had been generally expected prior to the formal opening of the seventh gathering of the Americas.

Twenty-one nations of the western world, ten of them represented by their foreign ministers, began their quinquennial discussions in the Uruguayan capital yesterday under vastly different world conditions than prevailed at Havana in 1928.

The old sores remain—Monroe Doctrine, intervention, "Yanqui" imperialism—but new sources of national concern have pushed these time-honored thorns somewhat to one side. No doubt at least some of these explosive subjects will be mentioned, but apparently it will be the smaller countries who bring them up.

Neighborly Air Prevails.

The larger Latin-American nations seemed concerned primarily with responding, if possible, to the new Roosevelt policy of "good neighbors." Reports from beyond the equator indicate a desire to have things go smoothly and an understanding of Secretary Hull's difficult position.

Instructed not to commit himself on such matters as tariffs, quotas, and stabilization of currencies, he will be forced to devote his attention to noncontroversial subjects. Six of the eight chapter headings on the official agenda fall in this classification, so there is plenty of opportunity for constructive, if unsensational, work.

The headings "Organization of Peace" and "Economic and Financial Problems" are the two which will tax the Secretary of State's diplomatic powers. For under the first there occurs the innocent subtitle "Rights and Duties of States" which is just another way of saying intervention. And intervention, in Latin-American eyes, means American intervention only.

Cuban Policy Pleasing.

This Administration's refusal to intervene in Cuba and the improved terms of the Haitian financial agreement signed last August have gone some distance in convincing Southern neighbors that there really is a new deal on.

Reports state that some of the delegations at Montevideo already are studying ways and means to postpone economic and financial subjects until the American domestic experiment reaches such a point that foreign trade negotiations are possible. This move would make it possible to get down to brass tacks on the mutually important problems before the next conference five years hence and at the same time increases the chances of a "successful" Montevideo session.

Much preliminary work in study and drafting having been done on the six noncontroversial categories, it is believed real progress may be achieved in these fields.

The topics are problems in international law, political and civil rights of women, social problems, intellectual cooperation, transportation, and international conferences. The Pan-American Union regularly spends its time preparing material for conference adoption and has turned out a large amount of draft material in preparation for Montevideo.

Erupting Mauna Loa Casts Red Glow 100 Miles Off Isle

Hilo, Hawaii, Dec. 3 (AP).—From an interisland plane 3 miles high looking down through clouds of steam rising from the ring of hot lava pouring from the Mauna Loa volcano, the island of Hawaii today resembled a land of seething fire.

Mauna Loa began coughing early Saturday and there has been a constant cascade of fiery lava flowing across the plateau since. Inhabitants of the lower slopes of the mountain are ready to move at an instant's notice.

Persons approaching the island aboard the Coast Guard cutter Itasco last night from Honolulu saw the dull red glow of the volcano reflected on clouds 100 miles at sea, giving the appearance that the entire island was afire.

Today, as the plane climbed higher the grand panorama of steam, like a smoke film, rose in a column a mile high, with an unbroken cloud field extending about two-thirds up the slope of the volcano, 13,000 feet high.

Over Mauna Loa a chain of geysers was visible spouting hot lava several hundred feet into the air, but there was no lava flowing over the edge.

Volcanologist Thomas A. Jaggar has taken up headquarters on the summit of the crater and is making scientific observations.

The Army Signal Corps has brought 10 miles of telephone wire to provide constant reports of the volcano's activity.

Swanson Stirs Japan's Anger On Navy Pact

Approval of Ratio Brings Demand in Tokyo for Revision.

Tokyo, Dec. 3 (AP).—Secretary of the Navy Swanson's outspoken approval of present treaty ratios in his annual report, made public yesterday at Washington, was subjected to a vigorous counter-attack today by a spokesman for the Japanese naval office.

The spokesman declared that Japan was thoroughly dissatisfied with her present allotments under the 5-5-3 ratio and was determined to demand an upward revision of Japan's quota when the naval powers reconvene to consider extension of the Washington and London treaties.

"In a changing world, nations can not remain bound forever by old agreements," the spokesman said. "The Washington treaty is 12 years old and totally inadequate from Japan's standpoint."

In Japanese eyes, reference to present ratios was the outstanding feature of Secretary Swanson's report (which also stressed the need for "an orderly building program" and a "treaty navy").

His statement that "I believe in the present treaty ratios" was boldly headlined in Japanese newspapers.

With a majority of the navy's demands successfully incorporated in the 1934-35 budget, the naval office announced it will push a construction program designed to fill Japan's treaty quotas before the end of 1937.

Oklahoma Cleaner Defies NRA Prices

Says High Scale in Code Ruins His Business.

Oklahoma City, Dec. 3 (AP).—With one Oklahoma City cleaner cited to explain alleged NRA code violation, J. E. Moore, owner of three plants here, announced today he would reduce his prices to the old level despite the code.

"We don't want to do anything to impair NRA; we're among the first to subscribe to it, and every employe is under it, and the hours and wage policies are followed to the letter," he said.

"However, these new prices are ruinous; they have cut business to nothing and forced the laying off of five employes instead of putting on more as the recovery code contemplated. There is nothing we can do but go back to the old prices."

Houston Police Quell Nazi Riot

Ship Crew Denied Right to Parade Storms Captain's Cabin.

Houston, Tex., Dec. 3 (AP).—Houston police made a riot call to the German freighter S. A. Nedenfels last night to quiet an outbreak in the crew after Capt. Oetmanns, the master, declined to authorize a Nazi parade in downtown Houston.

Capt. Oetmanns countermanded the plan on the ground it was likely to cause trouble. He said he fired a mate, the most aggressive advocate of the parade, when the seamen's demonstration reached mutinous proportions.

The situation attracted Marine Detective C. Hancock, who arrived aboard ship with drawn pistol and drove the crew from the captain's cabin door. A few minutes later he was reinforced by five officers, all armed with tear gas bombs, sawed-off shotguns and pistols.

The mate, whose name was not disclosed, acceded to the captain's order firing him and strode jauntily down the gangplank while the crew lined the rail and gave him the Nazi salute.

Then they sang "Deutschland Uber Alles."

Clouds Gather As Congress Session Nears

Inflation, Liquor and NRA to Range Dissenters Against President.

(Associated Press.)

A month from yesterday the seventy-third Congress meets in its first regular session.

Predictions are heard around Capitol Hill that the session will be spectacular in view of statements by some Democratic and Republican members attacking President's recovery policies.

Both branches are predominately democratic, however, and leaders assert that regardless of some disaffection among their ranks, there always will be sufficient votes to establish a majority for the President's proposals.

Already Mr. Roosevelt has signified a desire for a change in the Federal Securities Act to make it more workable and to permit legitimate enterprises to obtain capital through sale of stocks and bonds.

Liquor Bill Comes First.

Amendatory legislation also is to be asked on the Agricultural Adjustment Administration Act to increase the number of basic commodities. Additional funds for the public works employment and relief programs also are to be asked.

First on the legislative program is enactment of a new liquor tax bill. It is to be followed by a measure tightening the income tax law, and legislation looking to permanent Federal control of the liquor industry.

Mr. Roosevelt is prepared to renew his efforts for ratification by the Senate of the St. Lawrence waterway treaty, held up at the special session last spring.

Inflation Threatens Storm.

Inflation legislation is expected by administration followers to cleave the ranks of both Democrats and Republicans. There is a large bloc of inflationists in both the House and Senate. The progress of the administration's present monetary program will have a great bearing on the outcome.

Legislation regulating stock and commodity exchanges is being proposed by members as the aftermath of the Senate Banking Committee's investigation.

The House Ways and Means Committee meets today to study a report of a subgroup on the income-tax law. It will begin hearings probably later in the week.

Liquor Tax Raise Predicted.

On December 11 the Ways and Means and the Senate Finance Committee are to meet jointly to consider the Administration's recommendations on liquor taxes. Indications are that proposal to increase the levy from $1.10 to $2.20 a gallon will be made.

Representative Bachrach, Republican member of the Ways and Means Committee, in a statement yesterday said "the burden of taxation in this country is now so great that any further increases in the burden will have a disastrous effect on business."

Because of the increase in the public debt to $23,000,000,000, Bachrach said material tax reduction can not be hoped for soon, but the "existing burden may be distributed so that it will be easier to bear."

Four of Family Killed in Crash

Fifth Seriously Injured as Chicago Auto Goes Over Bank.

Cincinnati, Dec. 3 (AP).—Four persons were killed and another was injured critically today when their automobile overturned at a bridge near the Indiana-Ohio State Line. The dead, all residents of Chicago, were A. F. Knight, his wife, a daughter and a son. A younger daughter, Betty Jane, was seriously hurt.

The accident occurred on U. S. Route 52 between Harrison, Ohio, and New. Renton, Ind., while the family was returning home after a visit in Cincinnati.

The automobile hit a rough spot in the highway as it reached the bridge, and after crossing the span ran down an embankment, hit a tree and overturned.

The former Cuban executive returned here several days ago after an absence of a week.

Janice Bradshaw, of North Woodside, Md., who wants Christmas to be a happy one for some little girl who likes baby dolls. She brought a doll and lots of other toys to swell the ever-growing Washington Post Toy and Doll Fund.

Post Toy Fund Urges Aid in Filling 25,000 Empty Stockings.

More than 25,000 Washington children are counting on The Post Toy and Doll Fund to provide for them a merry Christmas. This conservative figure was arrived at yesterday after consultation with social service agencies and a survey of the child welfare institutions.

In order to provide these children with even a single toy each several thousand dollars are needed, as well as the toys generous-hearted children of the city may spare from their own playthings and that adults may purchase and contribute to the fund.

The attention of The Post Toy Fund managers was called to the fact yesterday that, due to the continuance of the depression, many additional Washington families have been placed on relief rolls and welfare agencies have not a single penny to spare to purchase Christmas toys, even for the children under their direct care in institutions.

The Faith of Children.

Little stockings will be hung up in childish faith in all these institutions on Christmas Eve as usual. Whether or not they will be filled depends entirely upon the success of The Post Toy and Doll Fund and similar movements.

The new Post Toy and Doll Fund Headquarters at the New York avenue entrance to the Washington Building, Fifteenth and New York avenue northwest, will be open daily from 9 a. m. to 8 p. m. The evening opening has been arranged in order that Government employes may have an opportunity to contribute.

Janice Bradshaw, 6, of North Woodside, Md., hurried into The Post Building yesterday afternoon carrying a box of toys almost as large as herself. She insisted on carrying the box herself. They were many of her most cherished playthings she was giving away to some little girl who might be forgotten by Santa Claus Christmas morning. Janice looked rather longingly at a baby doll in a pink sweater among her gifts, but bravely said that she hoped it would go to a little girl who liked baby dolls. "Santa Claus is going to bring me a new doll and a doll house," Janice declared. "There will be baby dolls in the beds in the doll house." Of course, there will be, little Janice, because Santa Claus never forgets little girls who think of others at Christmas time.

Free Trimmings Sought.

What is Christmas without a Christmas tree in the home? One of the well wishers of The Washington Post Toy and Doll Fund has written valuable suggestions to those who want to help to make Christmas bright in the homes of boys and girls of Washington. She lives in Virginia and has expressed to The Washington Post a whole box full of last year's Christmas tree trimmings and a number of little artificial trees used for decorations in her home last year.

Many of the letters written by boys and girls to the Santa Claus Lady ask for a Christmas tree, if only a small one. The Santa Claus Lady and her assistants will be glad to receive any trimming at the headquarters, in the store on the New York avenue side of the Washington Building, at Fifteenth and New York avenue.

The letter in childish scrawls continue to come to the Santa Claus Lady's desk.

One of the letters reads:

"Dear Santa Claus Lady: I am a little boy 6 years old and have a little sister 21 months old. We lost our dear father and my mother can not find any work to do. We would like it very much if you would remember us this year. I love you Santa Claus Lady."

Will the good people of Washington permit such appeals to go unanswered?

Cabmen Aid Toy Fund.

A telephone call to the Terminal Cab Association, Metropolitan 8540, is all that is necessary to deliver gifts of toys to The Washington Post Toy and Doll Fund. At the suggestion of J. Mouser, president of the Cab Association, their several score of owner-drivers unanimously voted to cooperate with The Post's annual Christmas campaign by calling for toys, to be taken to Toy Headquarters in the Washington Building, without charge.

When more convenient, Mr. Mouser also announced that any of their cabs may be hailed on the street and directed where to call for toys or dolls. Terminal cabs may be identified by their distinctive cream color and black tops and by the blue triangles painted on the side doors.

The W. D. Campbell Office Furniture Co., 1022 Fifteenth street northwest, is another of the firms to join in the good work by providing furniture for the newly opened Toy Fund Headquarters in the New York avenue store formerly occupied by the Parker-Bridget Co.

The store itself has been donated by Weaver Bros., realtors, and decorations by the Palais Royal and by John J. Hughes, landscape artist of East Falls Church, Va.

Dr. Koch Reads Yule Tale in Chapel Rites

A responsive audience last night sat in the darkened chapel at Mount Vernon Seminary and heard Dr. Frederick Koch, of the department of dramatic literature, University of North Carolina, read by candle light the world famous "Christmas Carol" of Charles Dickens.

During brief intervals between the reading, a chorus of girls' voices sang unaccompanied in the gallery. Lovers of drama filled the church as Dr. Koch paraded before them the figures in Dicken's dream fantasy of Christmas time.

Police Jail Two, Hunt Missouri Mob Leaders

Expect Arrests in "Tips;" Man Caught Trying to Sell Sheriff's Gun.

St. Joseph, Mo., Dec. 3 (AP).—With two men in custody, officers today were investigating "tips" which they said may lead to additional arrests of men sought as possible leaders of the mob that lynched Lloyd Warner, 19, Negro, here last Tuesday.

Officers admitted they were in possession of information which they believed would enable them to identify leaders of the mob.

Police arrested Carl Fisher, 24, after they learned he was attempting to sell a revolver. The revolver, officers said, was the property of Sheriff Otto Theisen and was taken from the jail after the mob forced entrance.

Frank Jutten, a deputy sheriff, said Fisher denied he was a leader of the mob, but admitted being present when the Negro was hanged and burned.

Jutten said Fisher named one of the men, who fastened a chain from a motor truck to the steel rear door of the jail, by which means the door was torn from its hinghes.

This man also was taken into custody. Officers said the man denied he was a leader of the mob. He admitted he had been around the jail.

The Negro was lynched in the presence of 7,000 persons, including many women and girls, after the mob had stormed the jail for three hours. Officers sought vainly to defend their prisoner by using tear gas.

Anne Arundel Girl, 13, Tells of Attack

Youth Who Enticed Her Into Car Sought.

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 3 (AP).—A young white man who attempted to attack a 13-year-old girl, and nearly severed her thumb with a knife when she defended herself, was being sought today by Anne Arundel County authorities.

The girl was roller skating on the road close to her home, near here, police said, when a machine drove up. She told Dr. George L. Basil that the driver asked how far it was to the end of the concrete road, and offered to pay her if she would show him.

When they arrived at the road end, the girl said, the man stopped the machine, went to an old barn nearby, and on his return made her get out of the machine.

Boy Killed Reenacting Gun Accident for Pals.

Union, S. C., Dec. 3 (AP).—"It was like this——"

"I was holding the rifle just like this, with my finger just like this, see? I stumbled——"

But the story was never finished. The rifle exploded. Walter, a bullet through his chest, fell to the ground—dead.

Students Picket Church; Pastor Praised Rolph

Two Men, Girl Arrested; N. Y. Recants Approval of Lynching.

New York, Dec. 3 (AP). — Theological students today picketed the Protestant Epicopal Church of the Heavenly Rest, in protests against an indorsement by its pastor, Dr. Henry Darlington, of Gov. James Rolph's commendation of the San Jose lynchings. The demonstration resulted in three arrests.

Although Dr. Darlington recanted his indorsement at the morning service, the students—18 young men and two young women—paced up and down the sidewalks of Fifth avenue bearing placards denouncing his stand.

Police arrested two men and one of the girls on disorderly charges preferred by Mrs. Mary Brown, who tore to bits two of the signs and, in the excitment, slipped and fell to the pavement.

The young woman, Miss Lillian Migrath, 21, of Butler, N. J., preferred a charge of assault against Mrs. Brown, but the desk lieutenant at the precinct station to which they were taken refused to receive it.

The other two arrested were Louis Goldberg, 25, of Brooklyn, and William Chamberlain, 27, of Lakeside, Mich. All have been ordered to appear in Harlem Court tomorrow morning.

The picketers, students at the Union Theological Seminary, said they were members of the Intercollegiate League for Industrial Democracy.

Dr. Darlington, during the reading of church announcements prior to his sermon, told the congregation he had come to the conclusion he should not have sent his telegram to Gov. Rolph of California, in which he had said:

"Congratulations on the stand you have taken."

"It was the result," he said today, "of being deeply stirred at the time."

Lone Woman Scores Crowd That Condemns Mob Violence

New York, Dec. 3 (AP).—Over the defiant "no" of a lone woman heckler who called herself "Madame X," a mass meeting of Protestants, Catholics, Jews and Negroes adopted a series of resolutions today condemning mob violence.

The resolutions denounced "the recent lynchings and Gov. Rolph, of California," urged Govs. Ritchie of Maryland, and Park of Missouri, to continue their efforts to punish lynchers and called for a fair trial of the Scottsboro defendants.

Pale with anger and shaking her fist, the minority member of the meeting took up a position at the foot of the dais in the great hall of the College of the City of New York and cried that New Yorkers should "wash their own dirty linen" before questioning the acts of citizens of other States.

Charles H. Tuttle, former U. S. Attorney and chairman of the meeting, who had accorded the young woman the right to speak, sought to quiet her tirade, but she turned upon him with: "You filthy thing."

"Throw her out," shouted the crowd, but the young woman, tall and spare, held her ground, frequently trying to interrupt the other speakers.

Assailing Tuttle for inaction at the time of the Seabury investigation and of the Lindbergh kidnaping, she said:

Brotherly!

Each Tells Police Other Fleeing Justice.

Chicago, Dec. 3 (AP).—The Abbott brothers, whose name, incidentally, isn't Abbott, according to one of them, had the Des Plaines police station in a turmoil today.

First came John, 36, claiming his brother, Jackson, had threatened to shoot him.

"And," he said, "I might add he is a very undesirable man. Further, he is an escaped convict from Bismarck, N. Dak."

Thereupon, a police squad locked up Jackson.

"Certainly I was in jail," he said. "But I was pardoned. But if my brother thinks he can start something, I will finish it. And I will say that he is wanted in our old home town of Ashland, Ohio, for stealing an automobile. And further, I will say he is just a big, loud mouth."

Police took him to confront John. Said John:

"He is the loud mouth, not me. And his name isn't Abbott. It is Lybarger. And his first name isn't Jackson, it's Joseph."

R. W. Meade, 63, Bus Head, Dies

Pioneer Transportation Leader Introduced Taxi Meters.

Mount Kisco, N. Y., Dec. 3 (AP).—Richard W. Meade, 63, pioneer motor bus operator, died today of heart disease.

Meade, who had operated bus companies in New York, St. Louis, Detroit and Chicago, was credited with bringing the first gasoline driven bus to the United States and with the adoption of taxi meters in this country.

He was employed by the New York Central and the Metropolitan Street Railways until 1904, when he became president and general manager of the New York Transportation Co.

Meade's father was Rear Admiral Richard B. Meade and his great uncle, Gen. George Gordon Meade, the Union commander at the Battle of Gettysburg. His maternal grandfather, Hiram Paulding, was in charge of the New York Navy Yard during the Civil War.

He was born in Cold Spring, N. Y., February 7, 1860. Surviving are his widow, the former Helena Ely; two sons and a daughter.

Body Carried To Wynekoop Home, Claim

Attorney for Doctor Says Witness Available; Plea Due Today.

Chicago, Dec. 3 (AP).—Frank Tyrrell, attorney for Dr. Alice Wynekoop, accused of murder in connection with the death of her daughter-in-law, Rheta, 23, today said he had found a witness who says she saw Rheta's body lying in the back seat of a taxicab some time before the death was discovered in the physician's basement office at the Wynekoop home.

"This witness informs me," said Tyrrell, "that she saw a cab drive down an alley in the neighborhood of the home. It was forced to stop because of a street laboring crew blocking the alley. During an argument between the cab driver and the laborers, the cab door swung open and the witness says she saw Rheta's body lying on the back seat."

Charles S. Dougherty, assistant State's attorney, and prosecutor in the Wynekoop case, said he attached little importance to the supposed development.

Tyrrell also said that his father, Frank T. Tyrrell, 72, former police captain, had come out of retirement to investigate for the defense.

Dr. Wynekoop tomorrow is scheduled to appear in court to enter a plea to the murder charge. Her physical condition remained unchanged today, doctors at the county jail said. She collapsed a week ago and doctors said they feared she might contract pneumonia.

Tyrrell said Dr. Wynekoop would plead not guilty tomorrow.

Outlook for the Franc.

Universal suspension of gold payments is no longer regarded as a remote possibility, as the French financial crisis approaches a climax and the fate of the franc becomes increasingly uncertain. During the past five weeks the Bank of France has lost about 4,000,000,000 francs of gold as a result of withdrawals chiefly to London, Holland and Switzerland. These losses, heavy though they are, could be viewed with equanimity, if it were not for the conditions which have given rise to the outflow of gold. As a matter of fact, the Bank of France has immense reserves and is in a position to withstand any gold drain due to a withdrawal of foreign balances. The chief danger to the stability of the franc comes from within the country, not from without.

If it were certain that a French government could be formed that would succeed in securing support for a sound fiscal program and put an end to the budgetary deficits, the external loss of gold would not be a cause for alarm. Undoubtedly our efforts to depreciate the dollar are responsible in part for the outflow of gold from France, but this movement has merely called attention to the internal fiscal difficulties which have led France to the brink of inflation and are likely to push her over the precipice unless corrective action is taken speedily.

The French public demands assurance that a continuous policy of deficit financiering will not be tolerated. If that assurance is not forthcoming, the alternative will be to borrow from the Bank of France in order to cover recurrent budgetary deficits. The French know from bitter experience what are the consequences of that kind of inflationary credit operations. Resort, or rather return, to these discredited methods of financing government expenditures probably would precipitate a general flight from the franc in which the French as well as foreigners would participate. Under such circumstances, external gold drains and domestic hoarding would lead inevitably to the declaration of a gold embargo, which would be equivalent to abandonment of the gold standard.

Should France suspend gold payments, the chief responsibility for her defection from the gold standard must be charged to the political weakness which has made it impossible to cut government expenses in face of the determined opposition of organized civil servants to reduction in salaries, and public resistance to proposed tax increases. Our action in depreciating the dollar, thereby causing Great Britain to buy francs and withdraw gold in order to prevent the pound from rising too rapidly, is an unfortunate development, coming at a critical time. But it is not a factor determining whether France can or can not remain on the gold standard.

If the French have the resolution to put their internal financial affairs in order, there is no reason to fear for the gold standard. Not only would the present gold outflow be checked, in that case, but the chances are that gold would again flow into the country in large amounts, if the rest of the world were convinced that there was no danger of domestic inflation.

Decline in Savings.

According to reports received by the American Bankers Association there has been a reduction of nearly 25 per cent in the so-called savings deposits held by banks and trust companies from the high point reached in 1930. During the year ended June 30, 1933, the reduction amounted to 11.8 per cent, or $24 per inhabitant. Since 1930, it is estimated that the per capita savings of the people have fallen from $232 to $170, while the number of savings depositors has dropped from a peak of over 53,000,000 in 1928 to approximately 39,000,000.

These figures are rough estimates which, because of duplication, give only an imperfect picture of the actual number of savings banks depositors. Furthermore, the line of demarcation between savings accounts and demand deposits is not well defined, but the record brings impressive evidence of the inroads that four years of depression, accompanied by bank failures, have made upon the reserves of the great masses of the American people. In the early stages of the depression savings accounts were increased, partly as a result of a change in the spending and investing habits of individuals with surplus income. The rise did not represent a real addition to saved income, but it served to conceal the extent to which saving capacity had suffered with declining employment and increasing destitution.

A reduction of about $7,000,000,000 in savings accounts over a three-year period not only means the loss of funds which might have been available for investment by the banks and trust companies holding these deposits, but it means in many cases, an exhaustion of individual resources which has increased the extent of the demands made upon relief agencies even in face of an improvement in general business and employment conditions.

So far there is no evidence that a substantial part of the loss of savings is attributable to popular fear that inflation will dissipate funds placed on deposit, although isolated instances of spending of savings funds are met with. In other countries, however, in which inflation has taken heavy toll from small savers, the building up of mass savings accounts following the restoration of currency stability has been a slow and difficult proceedings. The United States with its millions of small savings depositors, controlling billions of funds, needs these resources. They constitute the backbone of the capital market and provide support for high grade public and private bond issues, and above all in more normal periods the requisite supply of real estate mortgage funds.

The Securities Act.

President Roosevelt has evidently come to the conclusion that the securities act is unworkable in its present form. Proponents and defenders of the legislation have had several months in which to convince public authorities and investment bankers that the limitations and restrictions need not prevent private finance from functioning.

The necessity for greater supervision than has been exercised in the past, for greater care in placing issues with the public and for some definitely higher degree of responsibility for honesty and due diligence in determining facts and conditions underlying investment issues can not be questioned. The public will not tolerate such ignorant and irresponsible conduct of the investment banking business as characterized it during the late twenties.

The time has come, however, to recognize that a sincere effort must be made in the public interest to make the act workable in a way that will maintain the necessary safeguards, but which will also permit resumption of capital issues, which are so badly needed as the key to the revival of the construction industries. It is a truism, and a well-understood and generally accepted one, that the re-employment of labor upon a scale necessary to bring about a genuine revival of industry, buying power and higher price levels in this country, is dependent upon the revival of activities which must be financed by capital issues placed with the investing public.

In Better Spirit.

Gen. Hugh Johnson modified his attitude considerably in his Philadelphia speech when he said:

> Labor has plenty to complain of in the NRA. So has industry. You can't inaugurate a new system of economic relations without making mistakes, but the essential question is not of the mistakes. It is of the system itself.

No general attack has been made from any quarter of which The Post is aware upon the NRA as an institution. Whatever criticism has been made has been directed to specific methods and practices, but even such localized criticism as that has been met by Gen. Johnson with epithets and opprobrious phrases. His output of such terms as "corporals of disaster," "social neanderthalers" and "dead cats" has been much too high for a man in his responsible, dignified and difficult position.

The general will find the public, even his critics, anxious to be responsive to indications of a desire to carry on discussions in a spirit of common sense and reason, instead of epithets and abuse.

Melancholy Reflection.

Waxey Gordon, self-confessed robber, pickpocket and beer runner, was sentenced to 10 years in jail and payment of fines and costs totaling $80,000 in Federal court in New York Friday. In 1930 and 1931 Gordon paid taxes on an income of approximately $43,000, whereas, according to Government evidence, it was more than $1,000,000.

All good citizens, of course, ought to clap their hands in pleasure that a professional criminal who has so long defied the law is now going to jail to join Al Capone and his brother, Ralph, who are serving long terms for income tax evasions.

The glee is tempered, however, by melancholy if one reflects upon the manner of their getting into jail. For years they made vulgar display of their contempt for law and those who enforce it. Crimes attributed to them included hijacking, extortion, gambling, brothel-keeping, bribery of public officials, assault and murder, to mention only a few.

Yet, it was for none of these things that they had to serve time; State courts broke down in the face of their challenge. They were doomed to prison because they short-changed the United States Government in dividing up the spoils of their rackets. At least we may be thankful that the Government is diligent in looking after its interests.

The Confused Filipinos.

Manuel Quezon, president of the Philippine Senate, accompanied by a delegation of his countrymen, is en route to Washington to lay before the President an appeal for revision of the Hawes-Cutting independence act, recently rejected by the Legislature at Manila.

If President Roosevelt can furnish assurance that Congress will consider the Filipinos' amendments to the act, Mr. Quezon told his fellow legislators, he will wire immediately to Manila advising them to reverse their decision so that the independence act may be accepted before the time limit expires on January 17.

No one can give assurance of action by Congress, and in view of the fact that the points now raised by the Filipinos were thoroughly discussed when the act was under consideration, it does not seem likely that the requests of the delegation will save the independence measure.

Of course, the Filipino leaders who are coming here understand this situation. A similar group came to Washington just after enactment of the Hawes-Cutting act, to investigate the possibility of obtaining more favorable terms. They were unable to discover any prospect of further action by Congress. Hence, the politicians at Manila felt compelled to kill the independence measure in a way that would not put them in the position of denying the political aspirations of the Filipino people.

While the ostensible purpose of this visit to Washington is to obtain amendments to the independence act, it seems apparent that new legislation would not overcome the fundamental objections of the Filipino leaders. They fear that the cessation of free trade with the United States would result in economic chaos in the islands.

"It is obvious," says Rafael Alunan, former secretary of agriculture, "that the acceptance of the Hare-Hawes-Cutting independence law means the entire liquidation of the sugar industry of the Philippine Islands within ten years. And that means collapse of Government revenue, no more money for schools and health service, possible disorder * * *."

Exports of sugar, coconuts, hemp and tobacco to the United States furnish 65 per cent of revenue of the Philippine government. Schools, public works, sanitation, pensions, the administration of justice and various other governmental activities are supported by this revenue. In spite of their long devotion to the ideal of separate political existence, the majority leaders of the Philippines refuse to risk the economic upheaval which they feel will occur upon the termination of free trade with the United States.

The leaders responsible for rejection of the independence act are ready to guard against the dangers of a separation from Uncle Sam, and yet are not willing to face the issue of future relationships which thus is presented. Under these conditions no solution of the Philippine problem appears to be in sight.

Melodrama.

Not all the melodrama these days is in the movies. As thrilling as the arrival of the hero to rescue his lady-love from the clutches of the villain were two football games Saturday afternoon.

Three teams were apparently in a tie for the mythical national championship: Princeton, Army and Duke, matched to play Yale, Notre Dame and Georgia Tech, respectively. Up at West Point, the trophy room was being tidied up to make way for the symbol of Army's first undefeated season in 17 years. Down at Duke, the football boys had their bags packed, ready to go to the Coast for the Rose Bowl game.

Notre Dame had had a miserably poor season; the team that had formerly been the Ultima Thule of football had been so kicked and cuffed about that it did not even expect to do more than take a graceful licking. Notre Dame alumni have been mumbling to themselves and whetting their knives for Coach "Hunk" Anderson, successor to the incomparable Rockne.

The situation was pretty much the same down at Georgia Tech. A fair team had lost all its major games and Coach Alexander, who has been there so long he has seen most of the building corner stones laid, was beginning to get a generous collection of "dead cats."

But football fate, dressed in hero's clothes, dashed up just in time. The dispirited, harrassed and beaten Horsemen from South Bend, became, in a mad last quarter, a team of fighting catamounts before whose ferocity Army lost its ability to act in unison and even to think clearly. And in Atlanta, the great Wallace Wade's victorious machine collapsed before a squad of youngsters who fought better than they knew how.

In South Bend, the alumni and students are singing of Anderson, "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" and in the Flats at Tech the "dead cats" intended for Coach Alex are being carted away.

There Is a Strange Resemblance.

"Unfortunate."

The following editorial was published in the Lynchburg (Va.) News on November 26. Senator Carter Glass is publisher of the News.

When President Roosevelt attacked as "tories" those who disagreed with his monetary experiments he set an example that was unfortunate. Underlings take their cue from the powers above and it is not surprising that after the President had indulged in the doubtful luxury of calling names his subordinates should go further and deliver themselves of epithets.

So it happens, Gen. Hugh Johnson, who is in charge of the National Recovery Administration and who has nothing to do with the Treasury Department and nothing to do with the President's financial policies, comes forward with an attempt to answer Alfred E. Smith's broadside against gold cutting and other inflationary expedients. Being no economist Gen. Johnson despises economists and says so. Being no economist he is unable to discuss economics. But being a thunderer he thunders and being somewhat addicted to blustering he blusters. He substitutes epithets for arguments. Dr. Sprague is "an obscure college professor" seeking notoriety. He is the rabbit that spits in the bulldog's face. He is the dog that bites the man. Those who disagree with the President's policy are "silly" and they impugn the Nation's credit, thereby "impugning (sic) the Nation's welfare." These and other expressions of contempt, of scorn and of villification he pours out. And against whom? Who are these silly persons, impugning the Nation's credit, strutting upon the stage for a little notoriety. The erstwhile adviser to the Bank of England, the erstwhile adviser to the American delegation at the London economic conference, the erstwhile adviser to the Treasury Department, a present leader among economists and students of financial affairs is one. And who else? There's James Warburg, there's Bernard Baruch, there's Dean Acheson, there's Alfred E. Smith and others. These are the strutters, these are the silly ones, these are the unpatriotic ones, these are they who act only to obtain notoriety. And it is Gen. Hugh Johnson, until recently unknown and who knows a little himself about strutting, who brings the charge!

Before Johnson there was Henry Morgenthau, jr., doubtless an estimable young man and son of a most estimable and patriotic and capable American, but not hitherto known outside his immediate circle. He attempted flippancy in meeting the arguments of a man like Dr. Sprague.

After Morgenthau, and also before Johnson, there was the Committee of the Nation, a little known organization with a high sounding title and headed by J. H. Rand, jr. Being an organization of the kind that would assume such an imposing name it was to be expected that when it spoke it would speak with a show of arrogance and attempt to brush aside as of no consequence any one daring to disagree with it. So it is not surprising that, disagreeing with Dr. Sprague, it should undertake to belittle him. "It is humiliating," says the committee's statement "that a servant of the Government whose personal opinion would carry little weight should disregard the obligations of his position and use its prestige" to criticize and attack the President's policy. "Prof. Sprague's disloyal statement confirms misgivings long held by American industrialists and leaders of agriculture regarding him."

The three tailors of Tooley street all over again! One little organization comparatively unknown, dressing itself up in a comprehensive title, seeking to speak for "American industrialists and leaders of agriculture," is more provocative of laughter than of anything else. But it ought to be provocative of more than that, for the statement itself is misleading and as it has received publicity and apparently has impressed some persons because of that publicity, that misleading statement should be checked. The plain intent is to impress the uninformed with the idea that Dr. Sprague has little prestige and that such as he had came to him as result of his Government position. The contrary is true. Dr. Sprague brought prestige to his position. He was not known as an adviser to the President; he was one of those that made industrialists, financiers and others respect advisers to the President. Unlike Prof. Warren and Prof. Moley who became known because of basking in the radius of the President's smile, he was an economist, a student, a financial expert of standing in his own right. His attack on the President's gold policy was an important event not merely because it came from an adviser to the President but also and chiefly because it came from Dr. Sprague. Secretary Woodin's retirement, Dean Acheson's retirement and other shifts created interest and aroused discussion, but Dr. Sprague sprang a sensation because Dr. Sprague was known as an expert and as a man of practical as well as of theoretical knowledge and because of the force, clarity and earnestness of that statement.

Such a man can not be disposed of with wisecracks such as indulged in by Acting Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, or by the blustering of Gen. Johnson, or by attempts on the part of a handful of industrialists out of step with others to minimize his importance in the world of affairs. Those who wish to discredit him have got to discredit what he says by proving it wrong.

And those wishing to discredit Baruch and Warburg and Smith and all the array of sound-money Democrats and sound-money Republicans must answer their arguments, meet their references to history and discredit their facts and figures. Apparently, it is not to be done by those surrounding the President; certainly, it has not even been attempted by those who so far have volunteered to speak for him.

President Roosevelt has proved that he is amply able to speak for himself. It will be better for his cause if these volunteers will keep quiet and leave the speaking to him. If they will not of their own accord refrain from rushing into a debate in which they are not qualified to hold their own and during which they must resort to name-calling and epithets, the President may have to restrain them. Until he is prepared to speak it were better there were no speaking.

Daily Talk About Books and Authors

Reading Daily Newspapers.

Although I am a busy man, I read six newspapers every day; it is impossible to read them minutely or carefully, but I find that each one always has something of special interest to me, not to be found in the others. My father, who took in one paper every morning and one every evening, used to sit down and read them from beginning to end, the way he read a book. I believe he read all the advertisements.

It is an art worth cultivating to read newspapers rapidly and yet miss nothing of importance. Every page of every newspaper has something that interests me. The greatest contact, of course, is between the front page and the sports page. The front page is usually a record of tragedy and failure; robbery, kidnaping, murder, suicide, divorces—people who have failed in life and people who have failed in the great art of living together. The sports page is a record of victories and is encouraging. There is almost always one editorial that appeals to me; I read the criticisms of new plays, concerts, books, local gossip, municipal, national, international politics: and many newspapers now have a "columnist" who dispenses humor, as well as specially trained writers on other themes.

When I travel in the South or in the West, I leave the train whenever it makes a stop of five minutes and buy the local newspaper; it is an indication of the local level of intelligence. Those who are dissatisfied with the quality of the newspaper in their "home town" can help to improve it only by first improving themselves.

Along the Potomac

With

Carlisle Bargeron

WHEREVER the trade association men gather these days to talk over their problems, exchange trade secrets and generally do the things men of a particular pursuit do when they get together, they always refer admiringly to Charlie Brand of the National Fertilizer Association. The trade association industry, always more or less a part of Washington life, has been revived considerably, you know, with the Government's regimenting all the business of the country. Heretofore, only the bigger and better industries maintained representatives here and somehow or another they came to be know as lobbyists.

BARGERON.

But under the new scheme the butcher in Podunk has to have a representative here.

Well, Charlie Brand probably will be elected president of an association if they get up one—the countless trade representatives. Indeed, were it not for the fact that he can't claim amateur standing he undoubtedly would be awarded this year's medal for the best code any industry has obtained.

• • • •

FOR a long time Charlie was assistant of agricultural codes, the assistant to Mr. George Peek, who is supposed to give out agricultural codes. A holler was made, though, that this was not fair because, you see, his association was after a code, too.

So Charlie got out. But his experience in the AAA stood him in good stead. For one thing he learned it was like pulling an eye tooth to get a code out of the agricultural administration. To date it has put out only two, one for distillers and one for date packers. The NRA, on the other hand, has put out nearly 150.

There is this disparity in the issuance of codes by the two code agencies, notwithstanding that by executive order Mr. Roosevelt turned over to the AAA the code business of all food products industries on the ground that they related to agriculture, of course.

• • • •

IT would certainly seem that Charlie's industry also came under the AAA. Fertilizer has long been associated rather intimately with farming.

But as his fellows say Charlie had observed the workings and temper of the AAA as compared with the NRA. It seems that in addition to it being much easier to get a code from the NRA, the NRA codes are much easier in terms. The AAA crowd calls the NRA bunch softies, in fact. I am told reliably that if we think Crack-Down Johnson is hard-boiled we should encounter the AAA crowd. The AAA crowd has the knack of keeping themselves out of the newspapers, it would appear. Or, it is not necessarily a knack. Crack-Down simply insists on hogging the space.

• • • •

THE NRA, for one thing, permits a form of price fixing in its codes. The AAA will have none of this. Again, the NRA is said to be more liberal with code authorities set up to administer each code. The AAA, as attested by the distillers' code, insists on holding a tight grip on the industries coming under it.

So, when it came time for Charlie to get his code for the fertilizer industry, he did not go to his former associates. He went over to the NRA and got what his colleagues describe as a most satisfactory code, indeed.

• • • •

HE got the usual NRA provision against any industry selling below the cost of production, this cost to be determined by the fertilizer people with the approval of the NRA.

Then, out of a great feeling for the farmer or, as the code says, "in order to eliminate waste and reduce the cost of manufacture, bearing in mind the economic interest of the farmer," a list of grades suitable for each State or zone will be drawn up, and only those prescribed grades can be sold in that particular State or zone. If any farmer wants a different grade or a "mixture" there must be an "adequate additional charge" fixed by the code authority.

He would not have fared this well with the AAA, the boys who know say. Wouldn't it be funny if the AAA and NRA got to competing to such an extent that one of them put on a bargain sale and sold its codes below cost? Then we would have to have a code for them.

A BREATH-TEST MACHINE.

Scientists here and there are reported to have been at work for some months on a breath-testing machine which will reveal whether or not a person is drunk, says the Richmond Times-Dispatch, and now researchers in Washington are said to have developed such a mechanism.

Authorities on traffic control are understood to have the machine under consideration for use in detecting drunken drivers. Traffic Director Van Duzer, of Washington, had previously proposed a blood test for this purpose, but the breath test is regarded as perhaps superior.

SHOP EARLY, AVOID ACCIDENT.

Shop early and avoid accidents, is the way in which the National Safety Council paraphrases the old saying in a timely warning just issued. Heavy congestion of pedestrian and motor vehicle travel in the downtown districts of our cities during the last-minute Christmas rush is a prolific cause of accidents, says the Kansas City Times. Pedestrians with their arms full of bundles and their minds on their shopping lists rather than on traffic are inviting trouble.

ADD HORRORS OF WAR.

If ever there is war between Scotland and England again, says the Glasgow Evening Times, we should see that the battle is fought when the Cowal Games are on. No force of Sassenachs could stand up against an army which included 1,000 pipers making as much noise as they did on Saturday, when they were assembled in a vast square and closed in on the grandstand blawin' as if it was their job to blaw doon the wall of Jericho again.

CULTIVATING MARKSMANSHIP.

A mountaineer lad from Kentucky who joined the Marines without ever having seen an army rifle hung up a new record for consecutive hits on the rifle range, says the U. S. S. Maryland Catapult. He explained it to the major this way: "Every morning for years Pa's been handin' me the old muzzle loader with a charge of powder and just one bullet. And he sez, 'here, boy, go git breakfast.' So, you see, I ain't used to missing much."

Bridge Unknowns Feared.

Cincinnati, Dec., 3 (AP).—Experts whose names dominate every bridge game fear the worst from the unknowns and the ladies in the National championships of the American Bridge League opening here on Monday. His wife, generally regarded as the originator of the psychic bid, is just as sure that bridge is one sport in which women have an equal advantage with the men.

A Grand Slam.

Despite the present Slam bonuses and the sound operation of the Four-Five Notrump Convention, in actual play Grand Slams are still not an everyday occurrence for the simple reason that the Gods of Chance do not give one side the great preponderance of honor strength and good distribution necessary to take all 13 tricks. Naturally, this is the way it should be, as otherwise Bridge would develop into a gambling game like Twenty One, or even Roulette.

Today's hand shows the simple bidding of a lay-down Grand Slam in which the five-notrump bid, the more retiring older brother of the four-notrump bid, played a prominent part.

North, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

	♠ 7 ♡ 7 5 ◇ A K Q 10 9 5 4 2 ♣ K 6
♠ Q 10 9 5 ♡ Q 10 8 6 ◇ 8 6 ♣ Q 7 3	N W E S	♠ 8 6 4 3 ♡ K J 4 3 2 ◇ — ♣ 10 5 4 2
	♠ A K J 3 ♡ A 9 ◇ J 7 3 ♣ A J 9 8

The bidding: (Figures after bids refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

North	East	South	West
1◇	Pass	2♠	Pass
4◇ (1)	Pass	5NT (2)	Pass
7◇ (3)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—The Jump trump Rebid in response to a Forcing Takeout. A Jump Rebid in your own suit shows a solid or near-solid suit with a maximum of one loser. The suit, however, need not be more than six cards in length. Of course, if this bid is made on only a six-card trump suit some extra outside honor strength should be held to avoid getting into an unmakable contract.

2—South has complete faith in his partner. After North's four-diamond bid he knows that there must be a good play for at least a Small Slam. He accordingly bids five notrump, which shows three Aces and the King of a bid suit.

3—North can now tell almost to an absolute certainty that there are no losers in the hand. He knows that South has the Ace of clubs, which takes care of all club losers. He also knows that South has the Ace and King of spades and the Ace of hearts, which take care of all losers in those suits, and furthermore he knows that there is only one chance in a thousand that there will be a diamond loser. Even if South is void of diamonds, the suit should break, but in addition, on the bidding, South is marked with, at the worst, a singleton and probably two or more cards of that suit. Thus 13 tricks are assured and there is practically no danger of a ruff. North's bid is seven diamonds rather than seven notrump, so if there is a diamond loser the contract will be defeated only one trick.

Of course, there is no play whatsoever to the hand. After the Opening lead, Declarer spread the cards.

Tomorrow's Hand.

If North is playing a contract of six spades, what is the safest method of insuring the fulfillment of his contract?

South, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ Q 10 9 7 3 2 ♡ — ◇ 6 3 ♣ A 6 4 3 2
♠ J 8 6 ♡ K Q J 10 7 4 ◇ 10 ♣ Q 8 5	N W E S	♠ 4 ♡ A 9 6 2 ◇ J 8 7 4 ♣ K J 9 7
	♠ A K 5 ♡ 8 5 3 ◇ A K Q 9 5 2 ♣ 10

The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Suzanne C. Hill To Make Debut In Baltimore

Miss Suzanne Carroll Hill, returned from a Mediterranean cruise with her uncle, Capt. Eben Clayton Hill United States Army (retired), will make her debut at the first Monday German in Baltimore this evening. Miss Hill is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Philip Hill.

The tercentenary of the settlement of Maryland, which is now being celebrated in Maryland, and the recent return to Maryland of the Calvert portraits, makes it of interest that Miss Hill is descended from the first Governor of Maryland, Leonard Calvert, and is also a great-great-great-great-granddaughter of the beautiful Lady Baltimore, Jane Lowe Calvert, wife of Charles, third Lord Baltimore, whose portrait by Sir Geodfrey Kneller has just been returned to Maryland from England, and also a great-great-great-great-great-grandniece of Benedict Leonard Calvert, fourth Lord Baltimore, whose portrait also has been returned to Maryland.

The beautiful Jane Lowe, daughter of Vincent and Anne Cavendish Lowe of Denby, County Denby, England, and sister of Col. Vincent Lowe, of Grafton Manor, Talbot County, Maryland, married first, Hon. Henry Sewall of Mattapany, secretary of Maryland, and after his death in 1665, became, in 1666, the bride of Charles Calvert, governor of the province and afterward third Lord Baltimore. This marriage was the clumination of a romance that began on the ship on which Gov. Calvert and Mrs. Sewall came to Maryland.

Wedding Announced.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Dec. 3 (Spl.). Announcement was made today of the wedding of Mrs. Margaret Hoffman to Mr. Fred E. Shaffer, Saturday. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. E. Sumpter, uncle of the bride, in the parsonage of the Central Baptist Church, Lowesville, Va.

The Post's HOLIDAY HINTS

Women of Pan-American Conference Open Battle For Equal Nationality Rights

Young people enjoy the quiet homelike atmosphere and the opportunity for good times afforded them in the clubrooms of the Americanization Association. Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, vice president of the Board of Education, urges that similar club facilities be thrown open to young boys and girls in the public schools of the city, to take care of graduates who have neither jobs nor money to spend on simple pleasures. Right environment and recreation is an urgent need, she insists, as a check to youthful delinquency.

Stylish Plaid Raincoats Come In Four Colors

Rubberized and Tailored They Have Hats to Match.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

The stormy weather sets are all their name suggests. Let the wind blow, and the rain pour in torrents, but the sweet, young thing clad in one of these may snap her fingers at the raging elements. She has the assurance that the waterproof coat and hat with the umbrella to match can stand the siege of many storms.

It's fairly easy to be clad for rain, but to be attractively clad is more difficult. These sets have the practical and pretty side of the problem well under control. The smart plaid rubberized material of which they're made comes in brown, black, green and vintage.

The coats are tailored with large roomy pockets and full sleeves. The hats are the vagabond type which have a way of looking well on anyone. The umbrellas have novelty handles, and are built for durability. All the three pieces for $6.95.

The Venetian glassware display in an F street shop indicates in its silent way that Chirstmas is going to be unusually enjoyable this year if presents measure up to the standards set here. If our friends will but linger awhile in front of the table, and finger the exquisitely molded pieces, surely they won't be able to resist them any more than we can. Little bonbon dishes, flower and fruit bowls, vases, all of them twined with wrought-iron vines, come in the loveliest shades. Some are delicate orchid, others the illusive green of the sea, some are deep twilight blue, and others a crimson cherry red. They're priced all the way from $1 to $5.50.

Five different odeurs to suit five different moods, ranging from the light airy fragrance of flowers to a heavy Oriental scent. That is a well-known cosmetic manufacturer's contribution to the season's novelty list.

An attractive black rotating stand holds them all and automatically does away with the ungainly array of bottles which often clutters up a dressing table.

There's no name for them, nor words enough to describe their effect. But they're there, draped on plaster models sitting on the counter of a downtown department store. Chic little caps, round bertha collars, gauntlet cuffs, belts and bags, all made of metal mesh to turn some simple tea gown into a million-dollar outfit.

There's a set of suede cloth over metal mesh which comes in brown, red and black. Another is the white baguette metal, and still another is heavier looking hobnail.

The young lady who walks down the receiving line smartly clad in a simple black satin frock strikingly set off with these dashing accoutrements will be greeted with the flattering "oh's" and "ah's" of enthusiastic admirers.

To lend books is an expensive luxury, and there's a good reason why. First of all, the wear and tear. Second, the hazard of losing them. There are two remedies which will take care of both problems. Books lent only to booklovers of reliable nature will generally find their way home again. Books encased in substantial coverings will resist a world of wear and tear. An F street shop has some genuine hand-tooled leather covers which are now selling for $1. They're beautifully tooled in old designs, which make them highly ornamental in a library.

They're patterned after the kind of outfits Buffalo Bill and all the other brave, bold and bad frontiersmen wear in our mind's eye. There's the rough, tough-looking plaid flannel shirt, red bandana handkerchief, valero vests, chaps of leopard, bear or pony skin, an ominous pistol, and a real Will Rogers lariat.

However, if Junior had rather whoop it up in other styles, there are some wild and wooly Indian suits, or some police costumes that will have him arresting the whole neighborhood gang.

Lalique glassware is in vogue this season and a general favorite with shoppers who can afford it. A downtown store is catering to the means of those who can not with some delightful powder boxes in imitation Lalique which are so beautifully designed that it's a real test to tell them from the genuine ware. They have a frosty, crystallized look which is hard to find in any other make of glass.

Or there's another item which is sure to have a glad hand, and that's towels. There are some on sale this week which it's a positive shame to pass by. They're large hand Turkish towels of a well-known standard make. Striped borders of green, blue, lavender or pink will make them attractive and colorful gifts. They're 11 cents apiece.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Okra in a New Role.

Our old friend okra seems on the point of assuming new duties and responsibilities. The new job it is taking on is that of relieving the discomfort of ulcer of the stomach. It threatens to push bicarbonate of soda and mucin out of their chief employment as a medicine.

A few years ago it occurred to some physician that if "gooey" stuff from animal sources was of service in treating the pain and discomfort of stomach ulcer similar material of vegetable origin might have the same effect, and yet be more pleasant to take. This brought to mind gum arabic, mucilage, flaxseed, psyllium seed, slippery elm, and agar. Trial was given a mucilaginous substance obtained from agar. The results were good. Then it was recalled that okra was used in soups because of some mucilaginous content, and therefore might be worthy of trial.

Different groups have been using it for several months. Drs. J. Meyer, E. E. Seidmon, and H. Necheles publish a report on seventeen cases. The results obtained were quite as good as those given by any other treatment.

The okra pods were dried, ground into fine powder, and this was pressed into tablets, each containing fifteen grains. One tablet was chewed and washed down with a small glass of water every two hours during the waking day. If the person awoke during the night, and there was any reason for doing so, a tablet was taken.

The only other treatment was dietary. For one week the diet consisted of a smooth, seedless diet. This means only milks, butter, sugar, fruit juices, vegetable juices, soups, white bread, eggs, very tender meats. After the first week the diet was made more liberal, but no seeded fruits, no peels, no cores, and no shreddy vegetables, no coarse meats, and no branny cereals or breads were allowed. Beyond this there was no treatment.

In a few cases the use of okra tablets was discontinued because of heartburn. Beyond that there were no unpleasant symptoms. As a rule, the users like to chew the okra tablets. The treatment was popular both on its own account and also because it was a means of escape from more unpleasant "goos." It was found taking okra powder not only eased the discomfort but it caused the stomach to empty more promptly. One physician thinks an abundant use of okra cured one of his patients of mucous colitis. That is about as far as the matter has gone.

Meanwhile, okra surrenders none of its rights as a food. As a vegetable it ranks with any other, and its reputation has remained good in spite of many adversities. What is served as okra soup commonly contains many diverse ingredients, some of which may not add anything worth while to the value of the compound. The title, okra soup, may cover a multitude of things, some of which may be sins.

Mrs. Doyle Asks Recreation Clubs for Youth of Capital

Vice President of Education Board Says Need Is Urgent.

An urgent plea for recreation clubs for young people of Washington who are out of school and out of work was made yesterday by Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, vice president of the Board of Education of the Capital.

Mrs. Doyle, in an interview with The Post, explained the pressing need of something to lift out of their disheartenment thousands of young graduates of the public schools who have no present hope of employment, nor money to spend on amusements. She is pushing forward plans to provide them entertainment and vocational instruction.

"Mrs. Roosevelt, through her untiring efforts for young girls, has set an example for the whole country," Mrs. Doyle declared.

"Youthful delinquency is a desperately important problem, but one which could solve itself if young people were given the opportunity to enjoy themselves under normal and wholesome surroundings.

May Have Talents.

"Naturally something more than mere entertainment must be offered them. But if it is education, then it must not be along academic lines. Plays, writing, art—these are some of the things such young folks are interested in, and in which they may display quite unexpected talent.

Mrs. Doyle cited the outstanding success of the groups already organized by the Americanization Association, which has banded young men and women together under able leadership for recreation and the cultivation of better ideals of citizenship.

The Americanization Clubs were sponsored for many years by the late Walter I. McCoy, chief justice of the District of Columbia, who served as honorary president. His post is now occupied by Mr. Frederic A. Delano, uncle of President Roosevelt.

Mrs. Doyle's purpose is to create a movement which would make clubs of a similar nature prevalent throughout the city. She has made an intensive survey of conditions and of the means by which such a plan might be realized.

"The school buildings could be used for the purpose quite as successfully," she said. "Naturally, the permission of the Board of Education will be needed before any steps toward organizing the groups may be taken.

Fund Available.

"As for the vocational instructors, they would of course be paid. If they were selected from people who are on the relief list, I believe there is a fund available under Federal relief for just such purposes.

"The direct organization of the clubs will be placed in the hands of capable citizens who volunteer their services."

Asked to comment on Mrs. Doyle's project for city-wide young people's clubs, Mr. Delano, president of the Americanization Clubs, which serve as her model for the plan, said:

"I have been interested in the club work of the association for a long time, and have been pleased beyond measure to see the benefits derived from such congenial groups."

Miss Maude E. Alton, in charge of the association's classes, as head of the Americanization School, was also favorable to the plan. She said:

"Here in the school we have a regular clubroom with easy chairs, reading lamps, lots of books and a generally 'homey' atmosphere. The young people can meet here whenever and as often as they desire.

Strengthens Morale.

"They often get together for dances, games, songs and plays. This kind of amusement builds up morale, and helps the young person who is 'down on his luck' to hold up his head.

"Many times we have been unable to give more material aid, but there is an employment committee which contacts corporations, stores and Federal organizations, and acts as a medium between the unemployed and the employer.

"I believe the system of clubs projected by Mrs. Doyle should prove in the long run to have a far-reaching influence on the life of the community.

"We must help young people not merely by 'don'ts,' but also by a few salutary 'do's.'

"These clubs would be a medium to that. I see them as something of which the city might be justifiably proud."

Screen Author Gets The Time to Repent

Orestes U. Bean Figures in Stormy Scene in Court.

Salt Lake City, Dec. 3 (AP).—Orestes U. Bean, author of the stage and screen play, "Corianton," founded on the book of Mormons story of North America's prehistoric inhabitants, was sentenced today to five days in jail for contempt of court.

The playwright took exception to some features of the screen version of the play and litigation ensued. During a discussion over the time a decision might be expected, between Judge Herbert M. Schiller and Bean in the judge's chambers last Wednesday, Bean was alleged to have told Judge Schiller to "shut up."

"I believe it will be very salutary for Mr. Bean to spend five days in the county jail," Judge Schiller said.

Romance That Cost Stardom Has No Regrets

Ann Dvorak Happy on Return to Hollywood From Year's Honeymoon.

Hollywood, Dec. 3 (AP). — Ann Dvorak ran away from Hollywood just when her career was getting a good start. And if she could live her life over, she'd run away again for at least a year.

Looking back on her world-circling honeymoon with Leslie Fenton, an adventure which seriously interrupted her motion picture career Ann has no regrets.

"It gave me a chance to catch up with myself," Ann said today. "I had time to think."

"Nearly everybody thought I was foolish to run away. Once in a while I got panicky too, wondering if I had completely lost my chance at a career in Hollywood. But I never actually regretted my choice."

Before the trip Ann and Leslie lived in a more or less typically Hollywoood manner in a typical movie house just on the edge of the film center. Now the Fentons live on an acreage in San Fernando Valley, 7 miles, according to their count, from the nearest movie actor.

Ann learned soon after her return what the trip was to cost her. She was not to be starred. A year ago she would have been disappointed. But now, being in the "supporting cast" actually fits in with her plans. Her fan mail generally approves her absence in the interests of married happiness.

Women's City Club Meets.

Mrs. William Lee Corbin will be hostess at the meeting of the book review section of the Women's City Club on Tuesday afternoon at 4:45 o'clock. Ellis Meredith, will review "Certain Samaritans," by Dr. Esther P. Lovejoy, the amazing story of the work of the American Women's Hospital in the Near East, full of dramatic and colorful incidents.

Dana Suesse Plays In Modern Program

Author of "Ho-Hum" Featured in Whiteman's "Sixth Experiment."

She came to New York from Freeport, La., where she was born 21 years ago, by way of Kansas City, Mo. She was a prodigy in Kansas City, winning at 8 years a three-State composers' contest.

Now she is a Dr. Jekyl and Miss Hyde, as it were. Example: The other morning at 1 o'clock she was called up by a New York producer. He had a stray lyric, and needed a popular melody to drape around lyric, Miss Suesse thought a moment, hung up, and ten minutes later the tune was on paper.

Miss Suesse's mother vouches for the story, for she was roused out of a sound slumber by the transaction. So does Skippy, who is Miss Suesse's wire haired pup.

The ability to fling off popular tunes is a bread and butter advantage Miss Suesse has over most serious composers. "But," says the author of "Whistling in the Dark," "Ho Hum" and other popular airs, "I've done myself a dirty trick. I did play piano rather well. But I work too hard at composing to practice, really. I do most of my composing in bed; when I took the new piece to the piano the other day I found I had written some scandalously difficult music for myself."

Famed Glacier Priest To Lecture on Alaska

An illustrated lecture by the noted "Glacier Priest" the Rev. Bernard Hubbard, S. J., on "Alaskan Infernos of Ice and Fire" will be given at Gonzaga College Auditorium, North Capitol and I streets, Wednesday, December 6, at 8:15 o'clock. There will be a matinee exhibition for children at 3:30 p. m. the same day.

Father Hubbard has been sponsored three times by the National Geographic Society but his appearance on December 6 will be the first to the general public of Washington. In his series of educational and entertaining films Father Hubbard will tell of numerous hazardous experiences, the seething lava, the resources, attractions and opportunities of the beautiful northland.

The proceeds of the lecture will be applied to St. Aloysius' Parochial School.

Washington Women in Welfare Work

Miss Dunlop on Hand Wherever Social Work Is to Be Done.

"A small bundle of human dynamite" aptly describes Miss Katherine Dunlop, president of the Junior League and a member of the board of the Travelers' Aid Society. Wherever there is a job of welfare work to be done she travels with the celerity that might be engendered by a high powered explosive.

Blithely supervising the major activity of the Junior League, the operation of the social service department at Children's Hospital, Miss Dunlop finds time to aid dozens of charitable activities throughout the year. She does take an especial interest in the Travelers' Aid Society, which assists thousands yearly, and in the Community Chest.

"The Junior League volunteer work is chiefly interested with the social service department of Children's Hospital, a Chest agency," she says. "The league supports one secretary and three social service workers, as well as having over 35 girls who give voluntarily of their service to the bureau. It costs the Junior League $8,000 a year to maintain this bureau for the hospital, for, of course, it is in close cooperation with the hospital, and all the funds for this purpose are raised by outside activities which do not in any way or manner interfere with the Community Chest.

"The Community Chest is to my mind a wonderful education in itself. It makes all the workers charity conscious and brings all the agencies, as well, closer together, united for a common cause, the betterment of mankind."

MISS KATHERINE DUNLOP.

Here Come Knit Silk and Metal Evening Gowns

They Took Paris by Storm With Their Gay and Lacy Ways.

Knitting needles have grown weary of making such practical garments as sweaters and sports suits. They have stepped into the evening mode and are making lovely hand-knit gowns of wool, silk and metal for informal after-dark occasions.

These soft hand-knits have been greeted with enormous enthusiasm by smart Parisiennes. They are designed from canvases and have little in common with the usual knitted shapes.

For daytime wear there is a greige colored redingote in a close, pebbly stitch. The mannish tailored double-breasted top-coat has slanting pockets, notched lapels and a dark-red scarf tied in a bow between the lapels. Dark red also makes a thin piping on the dress.

Not all of the new knitted things are made by hand, but most of them manage to achieve the expensive, handmade look. Some one-piece styles have fragile, lacy yokes. Two-piece dresses have pullover hip-length blouses with ribbed panels or allover ribbing and line or block-checked skirts in two colors. Some three-piece types have ribbed jacket, blouse, and skirt.

Mrs. Preston Appointed.

Roanoke, Va., Dec. 3 (Spl.).—Mrs. J. W. Preston, a member of the board of directors of the Roanoke Y. W. C. A., has been named promotor for the biennial convention of the National Y. W. C. A., to be held in Philadelphia May 3 to 9. She was notified of her appointment by Mrs. George Blackie, of Nashville, Tenn., convener for the South. During the next few months Mrs. Preston will work with the various Y. W. C. A.'s in Virginia in an effort to arouse interest in the convention.

Facing Grave Risk of World Discrimination

Hague 1930 International Code Sanctions Inequality.

The scene of the international feminist struggle shifted today from Geneva to Montevideo with the opening of the Pan-American Conference, which will act upon two proposed treaties, one granting the women of the Americas equal nationality rights, the other granting them complete legal equality with men.

Doris Stevens, as chairman of the Inter-American Commission of Women created by the Pan-American Conference at the Havana meeting in 1928, will bring the two nationality treaties before the conference in her official report to that body.

The announcement of the foreign minister of Mexico, Senor Casaurranc Puig, that he would lead the fight for these measures in the conference, resulted today in the dispatch of cables of congratulations and appreciation from women's organizations in this country. Among those sending cables were Alice Paul, chairman of the nationality committee of the Inter-American Commission of Women; Miss Eleanor Cavanaugh, president of the New York Zonta Club; Mrs. Florence Bayard Hilles, vice chairman of the National Woman's Party, and Mrs. Lola Maverick Lloyd as chairman of the committee on international relations; Mrs. Olive Stott Gabriel, president of the National Association of Women Lawyers, and Miss Dorothy Detzer, executive secretary of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, which has internationally indorsed the nationality convention.

Discrimination Charged.

A nationality convention discriminating against women was adopted in 1930 at The Hague Conference on the Codification of International Law and is now pending before the countries participating in the Pan-American Conference as well as all other members of the League of Nations, it was pointed out. The convention has been ratified by four countries and requires only six more for adoption.

Stirred by the danger that an international code of law might be adopted embodying the principle of inequality between men and women, an international committee of women representing organizations in 45 countries of the Americas, Europe and Asia has for four years been active in Geneva urging reconsideration of the convention. Chief support for this principle of equality has come from Mexico, Chile, Columbia, Cuba, Guatemala, Panama, Peru and Venezuela, and the United States, which at the Conference on the Codification of International Law refused to sign the nationality convention because of its discrimination against women. It has since twice reaffirmed its position.

In only five countries do women at present possess full equality in nationality laws, according to a detailed report on the nationality laws of all countries submitted to the Montevideo Conference by Alice Paul as chairman of the nationality committee of the Inter-American Commission of Women.

Equal Rights in Five Countries.

The five countries in which women now have equality are: Argentina, Chile, Paraguay, Uruguay and the Soviet Union. In eleven Latin-American countries the Soviet Union and Turkey they have equal power to transmit nationality to their children. In eight countries of Latin-America and in the Soviet Union and Turkey the effect of marriage to a foreigner is the same for men and women. In eight countries, seven of which are of Latin-America, men and women have equal rights in regard to changing nationality after marriage. In 72 countries the nationality laws in one way or another give greater rights to men than to women.

"We have high hopes," said Miss Paul, "that our equality convention on nationality at Montevideo will meet with success, because of the extent to which such equality already obtains in the Americas and because the governments which have made a fight for equality at The Hague and at Geneva will naturally support this program at home. Such action would also be in line with a tendency evident throughout the world. Within the last 15 years 17 countries in Europe and Asia have amended their nationality laws in the direction of equality."

The Inter-American Commission of Women is emphasizing at this time the nationality aspect of the struggle for equal rights because of the pending convention discrimination against women. If there is to be a convention on nationality the commission of women feels that it must be one establishing equality and not one lowering the position of the women of this hemisphere.

Chinese Actress Arrives.

Los Angeles, Dec. 2 (AP).—Miss Soo Yong, Hawaiian-born Chinese, arrived here today from Honolulu to play a leading role in a motion picture dealing with China. She has appeared on the New York stage with the Chinese actor, Mai-Lan-Fang. Miss Yong teaches English in Hawaiian high schools when she is not appearing in theatricals.

Morning, After Rain.

By Katherine Smith.

Grey-spun locks of haggard rain
Shake around the face of night
Trembling, with quailing pain,
Quivering, as pity might.

Grey-gold threads the sun has brought
Weaves a gown for dawn to wear—
Brushing past the night, she caught,
Tangled mist-dreams in her hair.

Local Publisher Announces Maxwell Anderson Play in De Luxe Edition.

Mr. Kenneth Anderson, director of Anderson House, publishers in Jackson place here, has just announced that his firm will issue Maxwell Anderson's new play, "Mary of Scotland," in a de luxe edition about December 15. Only 550 copies are to be printed, all bound in leather. The text is taken from the original script of the play.

When M. Litvinoff talked with his wife in Moscow over the telephone recently, the press reported that they made use of "basic English." A study of this modified vocabulary, "The Sytem of Basic English," has been written by C. K. Ogden and will be published by Harcourt Brace shortly after the first of the year. Mr. Ogden, with the help of various specialists, invented this method—the employment of 850 English words to express almost every ordinary meaning of language. It is said that M. Litvinoff spoke very highly to President Roosevelt of the possibilities of basic English. One can't help thinking it easier for a Russian to learn 850 words of English than for an American to learn even 100 words of Russian.

Lorna Rea's "The Armada" is the most recent book in Putnam's "Great Occasions" series. Within its modest covers she tells the whole story of the great naval battle of 1588 and the lucky storm which changed England's history. It was published on December 1.

A View of Dorothy Thomas.

Small and very dark is Miss Dorothy Thomas, newest of the writers on the Middle West. She speaks in a slow, husky drawal, a good story-telling voice, which is perhaps the secret of her smooth, easy prose style. She always tells a tale many times before she writes it, for her goal is pure narrative. In her own words, she writes yarns.

Anyone who has stopped at a Middle Western farmhouse to ask a direction or to get a drink will recognize the salty, pungent idiom which Miss Thomas employs. Nine years as a rural school teacher have given her a familiarity with the twists and turns of farm dialect which lend authenticity and color to her stories. She writes almost entirely of the plains people and presents that American "whipping boy," the farmer, in a rather cheerlur light than usual. The genre side of farm life has been more or less ignored in the past for the "epic" and less happy side. Her humor is of the fields, strong, masculine, with the robust sophistication of the people who live in daily proximity to the farmyard facts of life.

Miss Thomas is the daughter of a clergyman. She was born in Kansas, but spent most of her childhood in Canada. She was educated at Nebraska Wesleyan and the University of Nebraska, where a professor of English first encouraged her to write professionally. Her first novel, "Ma Jeeter's Girls," was published last spring. Her short stories have appeared for two successive years in the O. Henry Memorial Prize volume, as well as in the Atlantic Monthly, the American Mercury and Scribner's.

VIRGINIA FAULKNER.

Saturday's Child.

A dictionary, "INTERNATIONAL BOOK OF NAMES," by C. O. Sylvester Mawson. (Crowell, $2.)

Readers of Saturday's column who plowed on all the way to the bottom without coming across any mention of the pronunciation of "Newfoundland" as promised in the first paragraph may now appease their curiosity. Like Procrustes and his bed, the foot of the review got amputated. So here are the two final books, including the one wherein you can find "Newfoundland" and how to pronounce it. As well as "Van Loon," "Szechenyi" and "Liliuokalani"—all tricky.

"The Hope of the World" contains 25 sermons by the well-known pastor of Riverside Church, New York. You might call it preaching in the modern style. For Dr. Fosdick uses a wealth of allusion to current events, history, the arts and sciences; his language is utterly free from cant and empty phrasing, his mind faces courageously the world as it is now. But never in one instant does he drop the truly ethical purpose, never does he compromise. You may not always agree with him, you may think at times that his words are glibly optimistic, but you must respect his intention. Dr. Fosdick, in an age where youth is widely skeptical, stands as one of the few preachers whom college students throng to hear. Without making them the arbiters of our tastes, we can approve their admiration.

Dr. Mawson (Ph. D., not D. D.), former editor of Roget's "Thesaurus," has provided in the "International Book of Names" a very necessary reference work. Think how likely we are to stumble over the pronunciation of Manchukuo or Dvorak or even Buddha, and then realize the value of a book which gives authoritatively the correct pronunciations, as well as spellings, of a huge number of names in history, geography, the arts and the current world of the newspaper. Dr. Mawson has gone to embassies, geographical societies and sources of all kinds. Most interesting, in many doubtful cases of the names of living persons, he has written to the person concerned. Miss Phyllis Bottome rhymes her name with Rome. That was news to me. There should be "news" here for everybody who wants to be right in these matters.

Items, then as promised: Newfoundland may be—new-fund-LAND or new-fun-LAND or NEW-fund-land (in the United States) or, applied to the dogs, new-FOUND-lund.

Van Loon is pronounced Van Loan.

As for Liliuokalani, like all Hawaiian words, it is very simple if you take is slowly and pronounce each letter—LEE-lee-oo-o-ka-LA-nee.

Simple Menus Newest Vogue In Washington

Excellence More Important Than Elaborate Variety.

Hospitality aplenty, but simple menus are in vogue in Washington, not only at the White House, but at many of the other fashionable homes as well. Hostesses agree that it is important to see and enjoy friends, whether you serve them squab or stew, but that it must be the very best stew one ever tasted.

One hostess, whose Sunday suppers are famous, serves savory stews, and she doesn't dress them up as ragouts either. Here is a recipe for a savory lamb stew, suggested by Inez S. Willson, home economist:

A Stew of Distinction.

2 pounds lamb shoulder or breast
2 tablespoons lard
4 carrots
6 or 8 small onions
8 small round potatoes
1 small bunch of celery
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
Flour

Have lamb shoulder cut into 2-inch cubes. Brown the meat well in hot lard. Add boiling water. Cover closely and simmer gently. Forty-five minutes before serving add the vegetables. Cut the celery in 3 or 4 inch lengths and cut the carrots in quarters lengthwise. In serving, place the meat in the center of the platter with the vegetables around it each in its own separate pile. Sprinkle minced parsley over the top. Thicken the broth for gravy and serve in a separate dish.

Corned Beef Hash.

2 cups chopped corned beef
¼ pound raw liver
2 cups chopped cooked potatoes
1 small onion, minced
½ cup meat stock
2 tablespoons lard
Salt
Pepper

Put the liver through the food chopper, then add to chopped corned beef and potatoes. Season. Pour the meat stock into a frying pan with 1 tablespoon lard, heat and add the hash, spreading it evenly. Cover and cook slowly for 30 minutes. Do not stir Fold as an omelet and serve on a warm platter with hot tartar sauce.

Tartar Sauce.

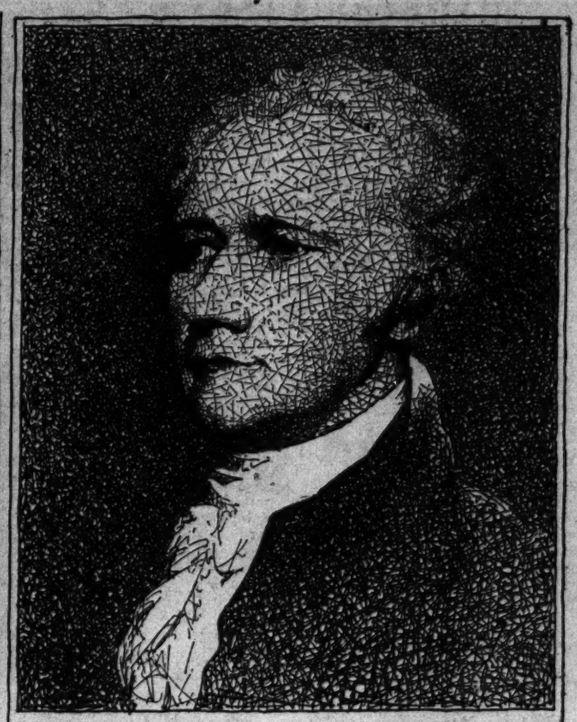
¼ tablespoon finely chopped onion
½ tablespoon capers
1 tablespoon tarragon vinegar
½ tablespoon chopped pickles
½ tablespoon chopped olives
½ tablespoon chopped parsley

Combine the ingredients and serve with the corned beef hash.

Half-Forgotten Romances of American History

Alexander Hamilton—Elizabeth Schuyler



By Elisabeth Poe.

In the halcyon days of his courtship Alexander Hamilton, America's first financial genius, friend of Washington and other Continental notables, wrote of sweet "Betsey" Schuyler, his "nut-brown maid": "You can have no conception of how sweet a girl she is. It is only in my heart that her image is truly drawn. She has a lovely form and a still more lovely mind. She is all goodness, the gentlest, the dearest, the tenderest of her sex. Ah, Betsey, how I love her!"

Nowadays, when currency and finance occupy so large a place in the lives of the people, many a sigh has gone up for the amazing talent of Alexander Hamilton to be manifest in some modern official who might formulate successful plans for handling the people's money. Hamilton lived, of course, long before the days of the "alphabet soup," as Al Smith terms present methods in keeping the Nation in security. He anticipated somewhat the NRA plan of promoting industry and giving it direction, although it was nothing more than a theory in his time. Yet a cursory glance at the history of Hamilton's day shows some striking likenesses to present-day problems. "Bank script," "inflation," "South Sea Bubble," were on the lips of the people. It took a strong hand to lead, and Alexander Hamilton was such a leader.

Romance Little Known.

His National career and his tragic end in a duel at the hands of Aaron Burr, Vice President of the United States are well known. Less is known of his romance with Betsey Schuyler, one of the Hudson River belles of Colonial and post-Colonial days. In his letter of farewell, written to her just before the fatal encounter, Hamilton reiterated the high esteem he held for her. He wrote, "Adieu, best of wives, best of women."

Tragic as was his end, the beginning of life for him was under a shadow. For he was born out of wedlock. This was due to the fact that his mother, the lovely Rachael Lavine, of St. Croix, in the West Indies, unhappily married, could not obtain a divorce in which she might marry again. When she fell in love with James Hamilton, a young Scotchman of good family, seeking his fortune in the West Indies, they contracted a common law alliance. To them in Nevis on January 11, 1757 was born Alexander Hamilton, the younger of their sons.

When he was but 12 Alexander Hamilton lost his mother and thereafter until the advent of Betsey Hamilton into his life his career was to be without the softening influence of a woman. Young Hamilton was taken in charge by his mother's relatives, who saw to it that he received as good an education as was possible in the West Indies at the time. But he was eager to make his own way in the world, and when only 14, he entered the employ of a certain Nicholas Cruger, a rich merchant of St. Croix.

Good Business Training.

During the proprietor's enforced absence and illness, the 14-year-old lad assumed command of the establishment. So successful was he that other business men of the community gave him commissions as their financial representative. This splendid training in trade and commerce and finance stood him in good stead when he became the first Secretary of the Treasury.

Yet Hamilton had ambitions above clerking or even managing commercial enterprises. He longed for more education than was obtainable in the West Indies. College was his dream and to that end he left the West Indies in 1772, and on an October day in that year landed in Boston. He was but 15 and it was his first journey away from his native isles. Colonial Boston was a marvel to his island-bred eyes. And New York, the metropolis of the colonies as it is now of the United States, added still more to the glamor.

The friendless boy from St. Croix soon found powerful friends for himself. All recognized his extraordinary powers of mind and when he enrolled in King's College, now Columbia University, New York, he was surrounded by scions of patroon society—Schuylers, Van Rensselaers, Van Courtlandts, and Stirlings, with whom he soon won favor.

Hamilton determined to be well educated in all costs, took all the subjects available. This even included the study of medicine and when he added to it the duties of membership in the junior debating society one can see how little leisure time he had for social gaieties.

Youth, however, will have its day, somehow. His life was not entirely devoid of feminine influence but as yet he had not met Betsey Schuyler.

A Belle of Old New York.

And who was Betsey Schuyler, one might ask. In colonial New York the answer would have come at once: "One of the belles of little old New York and Albany as well." For Miss Betsey was the daughter of Gen. Philip Schuyler, New York State's first citizen, rich and powerful. Their home, The Pastures, in Albany, was one of the show places of the State. The Pastures was the scene not only of a distinguished domestic and social life but here the Schuylers entertained all the eminent travelers who came to the head of tidewater Hudson during their life times. Her life seemed far removed from that of a West Indian nobody, a student at King's College. Yet Fate had a hand to play and perhaps their lives might be drawn together.

Betsey Schuyler was described by a contemporary writer as a "brunette with the most good natured, dark, lovely eyes that—threw a beam of light and benevolence over her entire countenance." She had attended one of the best schools of the day, a seminary at New Rochelle. Her bent, however, was in the direction of home making and she assisted her mother in the management of their large household.

Suitors had thronged around her and her dashing elder sister Angelica, who electrified her family and friends by an elopement with an Englishman, John Barker Church. This was a new departure for a colonial maid and it caused comment and much conversation, it can be taken for granted.

The American Revolution saw Hamilton rise in military prominence with rapidity. Soon he was the trusted friend of George Washington. It was a day of quick advancement and promotion. With Lafayette a major general at 19, it is not surprising that at 22 it is "Colonel" Alexander Hamilton.

Hamilton Meets Betsey.

When sent on a mission to Gen. Gates, Col. Hamilton visited Gen. Schuyler and there met Miss Betsey for the first time. The young officer from Washington's camp was made welcome by the entire family and Miss Betsey was not laggard in this regard. In the winter of 1779-80 they met again, this time where the Schuylers had taken a house, at Morristown, N. J., to be near headquarters of the colonial army. They were anxious times for patriots, but youth is youth and the belles enlivened the dark days of war by arranging delightful social occasions for the military staff.

Love ever blossoms quickly in war times and the American Revolution was no exception to the general rule. Good looking, well educated and polite of manner, Col. Hamilton could have boasted of many conquests. For as a writer set down "his complexion was exceedingly fair, and varying from this only by the almost feminine rosiness of his cheeks. His might be considered, as to figure and color, an uncommonly handsome face. When at rest, it had rather a severe and thoughtful expression; but when engaged in conversation, it easily assumed an attractive smile." Of course, Col. Hamilton had sworn he would remain a bachelor. But such vows are made only to be broken and Miss Betsey was the instrument of their final disappearance. As Hamilton wrote to her daring sister Angelica: "She has had the address to overset all the wise resolutions I had been framing for more than four years past, and from a rational sort of being and a professed contemner of Cupid has in a trice metamorphosed me into the veriest inamorato."

In December, 1780, Betsey and Alexander Hamilton were married at The Pastures. All the world of their friends were invited and it was a gay and festive scene. The honeymoon was brief, for Hamilton had to return to the wars.

And it was Betsey who staid at his side after the fatal shooting by Burr. She was unaware of the cause, but knew he was mortally ill. Fifty years she survived him—to her he was ever her hero and her lover. She wore a sonnet Hamilton had written to her in those far-away Morristown days near to her heart until her last hour. And she cherished also her memories of the gay and debonair youth who had become one of America's first great men.

What Today Means to You

"Sagittarius."

If December 4 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 3 to 4:10 p. m., from 7 to 7:50 p. m. and from 10 to 11:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to 12:15 p. m., from 1:30 to 2:10 p. m. and from 8:15 to 9:15 p. m.

It is possible that you will get a severe shock of some kind on this date; it may come from almost any quarter and will come without warning of any sort. Avoid travel, particularly travel by boat. If you must send a personal emissary on an errand of trust, it would seem wise to select some one not of your family.

The child born on this December 4 will have a way of saying yes when all the time he means no; you will never know just what to expect of him. Will be rather a complex little one whose parents will probably have to seek outside aid and advice in bringing him up properly.

Born on December 4, you have more than likely been blessed with many very fine traits of character, and, unless you become too much impressed with your own importance, you ought to turn out rather well. People are inclined to do too much for you, to spoil you. Particularly is this true of the men who for some reason seem to be most attractive to older women, who in a motherly way try to lend a helping hand. Many of the women born on this date will seek careers in business. There will be many pitfalls in the way of their success, and they will have to be most careful to avoid the attentions of men. These people are not quick to get wise to the ways of the world; in a sense they are very gullible and make easy targets for flim-flammers and get-rich-quick schemers.

If December 4 is the date of your birth, you will probably lead a useful life and long after you are gone your loving and kind deeds will be remembered. You will not be careless in your handling of money, but you will not be as saving as you might be. You spend most of your money in your own home, for you like to entertain lavishly and frequently. You will not care to travel a great deal, and sea voyages will bore you almost beyond endurance. You have a number of faults which you can curb if you set out to do so. You are inclined to nag and at times you are rather severe in your criticisms of others, even unfair.

The Family Marketer

She Finds Lovely Jars and Chinese Crocks Full of Goodies.

"Yes," agreed the Marketer, "it's all in the way things are put up."

"Lots of people buy different foods and candies because of the jars," said the man in the store. "Then they have not only the delicious things to eat but a useful and lovely ornament for the house afterward."

"You have so many things." The Marketer was enchanted. She spied a graceful blue-green jar, blue-green as the sea. "What's in that?"

"Candied ginger. The large crocks in all the colors are $2.35, the blue crocks are the same. Small crocks are $1.50."

The Marketer stood and admired. The jars are all done up in fiber cords and are painted with delicate Chinese patterns. What perfect Christmas presents they would make — something different, and useful.

"Yes, that's full of Chinese tea. Pot and all, $2.25. The little Chinese jars filled with jasmine tea are 30 cents."

Crocks, crocks, and more crocks! Here's another one. This time it's a cunning earthenware jar, brown on the bottom half and cream colored on the top. It looks like a miniature bean pot. Inside hides Edam cheese put up in Sautern wine, or imported Cheddar cheese in port, or Stilton in port. The jars are $1.25 for the Edam, $1.00 for the Chedder and $1.65 for the Stilton.

The Marketer shut her eyes and let her imagination work. Think of the graceful blue-green jar dripping with bitter-sweet's red-orange berries. Think of the Chinese ginger jar spilling with long trails of winter ivy. Think of the purple honey jar supporting a little shade as a hall lamp. Think of the squat teapot on a low table in a modernly furnished den. The Marketer wants to buy t em all.

shall we pull our attention down to the prosaic business of planning tonight's meal? The beef, purchased Saturday at 15 cents a pound, will be served cold and sliced. Carrots are 15 cents a bunch, or 5 cents a pound, loose. Cooking apples are seven pounds for 25 cents.

It Should Be Placed in Good Light With Comfortable Chair.

Every woman who uses rouge and powder—and statistics show that 97 per cent of us do—should have a dressing table.

It may be an elaborately carved, gilded affair; it may boast ruffles of chintz or taffeta; or it may be only a simple shelf fastened to the wall with a mirror above it. But so long as it exclusively serves the purpose of "making up," it is bound to add dignity and finish to the art. It's in the nature of a moral prop!

A comfortable chair should be placed before the dressing table to encourage leisure in this important part of dressing. If possible there should be a triple mirror above and a magnifying mirror at hand. Make-up must be studied from every angle and this equipment is necessary in revealing the effect on profile as well as full face, and in discovering any imperfections.

Light and shadow are extremely important. They make or ruin one's make-up. For daytime, be sure to do the job in broad, clear daylight. Have the dressing table so placed that the day light falls over the left shoulder. When this can not be managed, carry the hand mirror to the window, draw aside the curtains, and proceed with caution. Tone down the rouge, apply the powder lightly but smoothly.

Lost—Lovely Sun Moi Chung, Windflower of the Spring

Liang Seeks for Her in All the Earth, to Do His Dish-Spinning.

Oakland, Calif., Dec. 3 (AP).—All because Sun Moi Chung dropped a dish and was scolded, great trouble has fallen upon Howard Liang.

If Sun Moi Chung were a mere servant girl who was careless at her work, it wouldn't have mattered. The dish wasn't broken.

But she made the slip while performing at an Oakland theater with the Chinese troupe of which Howard Liang is manager. And that was very bad.

As Howard Liang explained to immigration inspectors it was so bad that he no longer smiled on Sun Moi Chung and called her his "Little Windflower that Blossoms in Springtime." He frowned upon her and scolded. She wept and then vanished.

That was two days ago and Sun Moi Chung hasn't returned. She was the only dish-spinner in his troupe. Howard Liang explained despairingly, and, more than that, he is under heavy bond to guarantee her return to China when her permit to be in the United States expires.

What's in Fashion?

Brighter Sweaters and Gay Hued Scarfs Promise Warmth and Comfort at Christmas

Directed by Amos Parrish.

New York, Dec. 4—They've been saying it's going to be a cold winter. But it certainly should be a warm Christmas for an awful lot of people—judging by the way sweaters are being snatched up by early Christmas shoppers.

They know, of course, that sweaters are one of the most-in-fashion presents any anyone can give anyone. Almost everybody's wearing them and nobody can have too many.

For instance, there's the sweater set. Twins . . . a simple slipover with long or short sleeves and a matching, high-buttoned cardigan; or triplets . . . this same combination plus an extra slipover in stripes or some pattern which picks up the cardigan color.

Turtle Necks.

A girl who goes in for real sport will adore a turtle neck sweater. (One is sketched at the lower right in the illustration.) They're as practical as they're smart.

Then there's the classic cardigan . . . usually V-necked with four or five butons. And the uses for this sweater fashion are legion.

Business girls like them to keep at the office and slip on when it's draughty. Home women like them to throw on when they go out for a moment into the yard—or dash down the street after the puppy.

Older women find them becoming and convenient to have at hand when the sunset chill settles down. And, of course, they're great for extra warmth if you drive a car. Or for under your topcoat when you're walking.

Slipover blouse sweaters of many kinds are worn just as you'd wear a silk blouse. They have soft details, such as draw-string or scarf necklines and in gay colors make a fashionable accent with a dark outer costume.

The shirtwaist sweater is a favorite, too. (One of these is shown in the lower left sketch.) They can have mannish collars, as in the sketch, or just open at the neckline with yoke effects done in a different stitch.

These sweater yarns are soft. The most fashionable stitches give the effect of being hand-done. And the simple stockinette stitch, ribs, waffle and lacy patterns are much in fashion.

Bright Scarfs.

Gay scarfs are another fashionable accessory anybody can use. Especially since bright color accents are so smart.

Ascot ties still win the vote of most folk. But triangles and squares make a welcome variation in the wardrobe.

Farm Leader Dead

Alexander Legge Dies Unexpectedly

1913—General manager and vice president.

1919—(A lapse while he served as economic advisor to the American Peace Commission.)

Hoover Appointee.

In 1929 Mr. Legge was named chairman of the newly formed Federal Farm Board by President Hoover, a position that often threw him into violent controversy with former close associates of the grain trade. He had been noted for his taciturnity. Although glad enough to meet callers he was more likely to be the questioner than the questioned. To photographers he sent a firm "no."

His new position, however, stripped from him the mask of silence, drove him to the front pages of the press and forced him to swing around the great American farm community in a speaking campaign to enunciate the policies of and solicit cooperation for the Farm Board.

The board's market activities engaged him in sharp controversy with the private grain trade and his advocacy of diversification of crops and smaller wheat acreage encountered mingled opposition and cooperation of agriculture.

Gave Up $100,000 Salary.

When Mr. Legge gave up the presidency of the International Harvester Co. for the Farm Board post, he foreswore a $100,000 yearly salary for $12,000 from the Government.

Mr. Legge resigned the Farm Board position in 1931, having been recalled by the Harvester company after serving several months more than he had agreed to at the time of his appointment.

"The Farm Board is now a going concern," he said in his letter of resignation, "Congress decided after a year of deliberation that the agricultural problem should be attacked on the basis of cooperative action. After 20 months of effort along that line, I firmly believe that Congress was right."

Of late Mr. Legge had been engaged in the work of drawing up a code for the agricultural implement industry.

Fix U. S. Trade, Advises Moley

Return to Gold Standard Would Be "Tragic," He Declares.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Dec. 3 (AP).—A reorganization of economic conditions in the United States before attempts are made to rejuvenate world trade was advocated today by Prof. Raymond Moley, former Assistant Secretary of State, in an address before the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences.

President Roosevelt, he said, was seeking a form of currency which would bear a direct relationship to the goods it purchased for future generations as well as for the present.

"A return to the gold standard," he said, "would be the most tragic shock this country ever had. You go down to the lower end of Manhattan and ask 10 bankers what they think of it. Nine out of 10 of them would say no.

"I don't know where Mr. Smith got his ideas on that score. I think silver ought very definitely to be reestablished as a medium of exchange through raising its price."

Theft of Current Hits Hagerstown

Violator Fined and Others Warned in Drive.

Hagerstown, Md., Dec. 3 (Spl.). C. B. Smith was fined $5 or 5 days in jail for detouring electric current used in his home around the meter, and Magistrate Richard Sweeney warned that future violators would be dealt with severely.

The city, which owns the light plant here, has lost heavily because of this practice.

F. P. Palen, President Marine Journal, Dies

New York, Dec. 3 (AP).—Frederick Pomeroy Palen, former vice president of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co., and president of The Marine Journal, shipbuilding trade monthly, died last night of pneumonia at the Rockefeller Research Hospital.

Mellon Empire Partner Buried In Pittsburgh

Laborers and Capitalists Bow Along Route of Procession.

Pittsburgh, Dec. 3 (AP).—Humble and wealthy alike paid silent tribute at the bier of Richard Beatty Mellon today and as twilight cast its gloom across the huge steel city toward whose growth he contributed so much the body of the noted banker was laid to rest.

Funeral services for the partner in the Mellon empire of industry, who died last Friday at the age of 75, were held in the massive Mellon mansion on upper Fifth avenue.

Throngs of every rank of life, laborers, clerks, multimillionaire industrialists and bankers, bowed their heads as the procession passed through the streets to Allegheny Cemetery.

Hundreds Stand in Rain

Although the interment itself was private, hundreds stood outside in a drizzling rain as the body was placed in the receiving vault near those of the parents of the three brothers who built a fortune variously estimated to total as much as $8,000,000,000.

Members of the family attending the funeral were Andrew Mellon, former Secretary of the Treasury and Ambassador to the Court of St. James; the third brother, James Ross Mellon; the widow, and a son and daughter.

$300,000 Given Church.

The Rev. Stewart Nye Hutchinson, of East Liberty Presbyterian Church, which Richard Mellon erected at a cost of $3,000,000 as a gift to the congregation with which he worshiped, officiated.

Standing in a pulpit at the head of the broad staircase in the massive hall of the Mellon mansion, he said:

"There are few spheres in the complex life of this community that Mr. Mellon has not touched and adorned.

"His humility and kindness and Christian faith will be a heritage laid up in heaven for the resurrection of the just."

Although not so well known as his internationally famed brother, Andrew W. Mellon, he had been in almost complete control of the vast Mellon interests for more than 10 years.

He was active until he contracted a cold a week ago, which led to his death.

Slashed Fight Victim Buried

Hundreds Jam Church at Funeral Services for Dorsey Gilbert.

Middletown, Md., Dec. 3 (Spl.).—Funeral services were held at Harmony today for Dorsey Gilbert, who died Friday at the Frederick City hospital, from abdominal wounds inflicted Wednesday during a fight at the home of Elmer Kline, near Wolfsville.

More than 700 persons crowded into the church for the services, while at least 300 were unable to gain admittance and stood outside for an hour during a rain.

Gilbert was an employe of the Maryland State Roads Commission, and many fellow workmen attended the funeral. He is survived by his widow and five small children. Burial was here.

Luther Jackson, of near Wolfsville, is held on a first degree murder charge. Kline is held as a material witness.

Virginia Prisoners Gained Last Year

369 More Committed and Fund Deficit Looms.

Richmond, Dec. 3 (AP).—The State Prison Board in its annual report to Gov. Pollard reported 1,911 commitments to the State Penitentiary during the past year, or an increase of 369 over the previous year. The board said penitentiary population averaged 900 instead of 800 provided for in the budget.

Asserting a deficit is expected, the board repeated its recommendations that the penal system be unified under the control of a superintendent of prisons, and that Virginia establish a modern system of intermediate sentences and paroles.

Jail Fugitive Found By Trailing Car Wreck

West Chester, Pa., Dec. 3 (AP). Seeking the driver of a wrecked automobile, a Delaware State police captain found Walter Anderson, 35, a fugitive from the Elkton Jail since 1932. Anderson was taken back to Elkton.

He was recognized by Capt. H. C. Ray, who came to West Chester because the license plates on the wrecked car had been issued to a woman here. Ray knocked at her door and was admitted by Anderson.

Warning on Plant Scale.

Richmond, Dec. 3 (AP).—White scale, a West Indian plant disease, is being found widely in Piedmont and Tidewater Virginia privet hedges and owners advised by G. T. French, State entomologist, to take proper precaution.

2,993,360 Get Work on PWA Allotments

Ickes Includes CWA Jobs and Forestry Corps in First Report.

For the first time since the organization of the Public Works Administration, figures on the number of men put to work with the $3,300,000,000 fund provided by Congress in its special session last spring were made public yesterday, showing that 2,993,360 men are working now under P. W. A. allotments.

This number includes 1,183,267 employed by the Civil Works Administration under an allotment of $400,000,000 from the public works fund, as well as 347,623 persons of all classes employed under the Civilian Conservation Corps, now financed by the P. W. A., it was announced by Administrator Ickes.

A close watch is being maintained by the Public Works Administration on employment provided by strictly Federal construction projects. For the past seven weeks, Mr. Ickes said, this employment has experienced a steady rise of from 6 per cent to 13 per cent over each preceding week, with a cumulative percentage of increase amounting to 195 per cent.

By the end of November, contracts had been awarded or construction started by means other than contracts on $579,395,689 of Federal projects alone, exclusive of civic works projects or non-Federal projects. In addition, Mr. Ickes pointed out, contracts of a value of $138,085,061 were under legal advertisement for award, with awards scheduled for any time from 1 to 30 days.

Reports received by Mr. Ickes from regional P. W. A. officials up to November 25 give the following weekly totals of men employed under P. W. A. allotments actually at work, exclusive of those on C. W. A. jobs: October 5, 1,216,500; October 12, 1,251,612; October, 19, 1,049,464; October 28, 1,459,111; November 4, 1,583,517; November 11, 1,703,378; November 18, 1,771,218; November 25, 1,801,093.

These figures include individuals employed both directly and indirectly with P. W. A. funds, the former classification numbering 607,967 as of November 25, and the latter, 1,202,126. The decline in October was due to expiration of enlistments in the Civilian Conservation Corps.

102.2 Increase Shown.

The value of contracts awarded on October 5 out of P. W. A. funds was $216,096,247 and by November 25 these had increased to $437,171,467, or a cumulative increase of 102.2 per cent over the week preceding October 5.

The value of work begun, other than by contract, on P. W. A. projects was $119,540,308, and on November 25 had increased to $142,224,222 of the P. W. A.'s original fund of $3,300,000,000 only $438,118,961.71 remained unallotted on November 28.

Of allotments already made, approximately a half billion dollars went to 900 non-Federal projects found qualified. Of this total, 500 contracts have been sent out to applicants covering the major part of non-Federal funds involved. One-fifth of 1 per cent of the total sum has been allotted and transferred for P. W. A. administrtaive expenses and only a part of this fraction has been used to date.

Hyattsville Aids Plan for Boys' Club

Many Donations Received and Others Sought.

Much community interest is shown in the plan of the Associated Charities of Hyattsville and vicinity to establish a boys club in Hyattsville.

Many donations have been received. Mrs. K. J. Morris, head of the organization, announces. The club will open soon at the Charities' headquarters. Games, puzzles and other equipment that would interest boys are being solicited. Proceeds of a wrestling show at the National Guard Armory in Hyattsville Friday night will be given to the organization.

Contributions were generous at the offerings Thanksgiving Day at the union service of the two Methodists, the Baptist, and the Presbyterian churches, and at Pinkney Memorial Episcopal Church, to be given to the Associated Charities.

County Still Has $81,199 Road Fund

Hagerstown, Md., Dec. 3 (Spl.). The county board has been notified it still has a balance of $81,199.72 with the State Roads Commission, which is due the county out of the highway appropriation made under the State maintenance and construction act at the last Legislature, and may draw upon it at any time.

Fifteen of the State's 23 counties have overdrawn their appropriations.

The balance does not include the money to be spent in the county on the State-wide system, but only on the county systems now under State maintenance.

Cattle Market At Record Low; Farms Glutted

Northern Virginia Area Has Large Supply as Sale Season Passes.

Winchester, Va., Dec. 3 (Spl.).—Stockmen estimate there are more fat cattle today on the farms of northern Virginia and adjacent West Virginia than in recent years.

One of the poorest markets of the twentieth century is given as the paramount reason for the farmers keeping their fat steers which, ordinarily, find their way to the metropolitan markets by December 1, the date when heavy feeding of grain and cottonseed meal is usually begun.

Fat Lot Brings $4.35.

This past week a leading stockman of this section sent a load of fat cattle to the Jersey City market, getting $4.35 per hundred. The farmer realized only about $200 more than he paid for the cattle two years ago, and this advance did not include the cost of feed for 24 months or any remuneration for labor.

Stock cattle have sold in this section during the past two months for as low as $2.50 per hundred. Early in the fall, good stock cattle were bringing $5 per hundred and farmers who bought stockers at that figure declare that unless the price gains greatly their lot, after fattened, will hardly pay even the purchase cost.

Pastures Abundant.

Heavy rains the past summer and early fall made pasture abundant in this section, and the absence of snow to date has enabled farmers to graze cattle later than usual. In southwest Virginia and Tennessee, the stockmen were not so fortunate because of severe droughts, and during the past three months the movement of cattle from those sections to Northern markets has been exceptionall- heavy.

Although cattle are selling at the lowest price in a score of years, observers in northern Virginia are almost amazed to find such a good demand for stock cattle. One farmer who had just bought a carload of stock cattle at $3 per hundred was asked why by The Washington Post reporter. The farmer replied, "If we can't make money next year on 3-cent cattle bought this year, all of us farmers had better stop and let someone else feed the people." His statement appeared to be the general consensus held by the farmers buying cattle this fall.

Oil Station Death Trial Opens Today

Both have confessed, police state, to participating in the attempted robbery, but each accuse the other of firing the fatal shot. Both youths were traced through Fair's car, abandoned near the scene of the shooting. Bingaman was captured the day following the shooting and Fair the day after by a Washington traffic policeman.

The largest application was that of the City of Norfolk seeking $220,635.20 for street grading and other purposes, representing a total of 215,100 man-hours of work.

Woman Kills Man With 'Empty' Gun

Norfolk, Dec. 3 (AP).—The "empty" gun claimed another victim when Frederick H. Ziegler, head of the Consolidated Dental Laboratories, was fatally wounded at Cape Henry by a .22-caliber rifle bullet, fired accidentally by Miss Mamie Light.

Miss Light, Ziegler, Miss Flossie Jackson, and O. B. Warren were shooting at a mark.

Miss Light had pulled the trigger, but the gun did not fire. Ziegler was about to help her with it when she pulled the trigger again, and the rifle, believed empty, went off. The bullet struck Ziegler in the chest.

Hunter Aimed, Fired at Child, Says Mother

Greensburg Boy, 7, Taken to Hagerstown Hospital; Police Investigate.

Hagerstown, Md., Dec. 3 (Spl.).—A 7-year-old boy was wounded by a hunter who deliberately fired a shotgun into his face, police here were told today.

The boy is John Burcker, son of Raymond Burcker, of Greensburg, Md. An examination made at the hospital here, where the boy lies unconscious, leads police to believe young Burcker knew he was being fired upon, for he had apparently placed his hands over his face to shield it.

Hands and face were badly injured by shot. Mrs. Burcker told authorities she looked out the window, saw a hunter she did not know stop, deliberately point the gun at her son and fire, then leap into a car and disappear.

Annulment of Student Marriage Is Sought

Hagerstown, Md., Dec. 3 (Spl.). The annulment of the marriage of Annabel Farley Thomas and Mahlon Thomas, Montgomery, Pa., is sought in a bill filed here yesterday.

Sen. McKellar Sees "Battle" Of Financiers

Senator Kenneth McKellar (Democrat), Tennessee, in a statement last night, charged Wall Street "has opened a battle upon the program and policies of President Roosevelt."

"It is a death struggle," he said, "between the speculators in New York City, who produce nothing and who create nothing, and the great wealth-creating masses of our people."

Espousing the monetary and recovery policies of the Roosevelt administration McKellar declared "the high financial forces of New York City" are taking sharp issue with the President's program.

Hits at Foreign Critics.

"The sole question is whether the country will support the practices which wrecked our country from 1929 until 1933," he said, "or get solidly behind President Roosevelt in an effort to save our country and restore the general prosperity of all the people."

The Tennessee senator extended his criticsm to the international bankers and British and French financiers.

"We find the leading British financiers objecting to our reducing the value of the dollar abroad, when it is less than a year that the British government did exactly the same thing with the English pound," he said.

"And yet they would fain make us now believe that they do not know what the President's plan of buying gold is.

Assails French Default.

"Echoing this criticism from London comes France, whose franc went to less than the American nickel, to 25 per cent of its prewar value, and which now holds the whip hand in European finance through the restoration of gold, which she owes to the United States and will not pay."

Second Within Family Marks Golden Wedding

Hagerstown, Md., Dec. 3 (Spl.). Like his parents, who lived to celebrate their golden wedding anniversary, D. Paul Russell and Mrs. Russell were able to celebrate their golden wedding anniversary this week.

MODERN

EGYPT

under King Fuad

The stupendous relics of a distant past lend scenic glamour and historic splendor to the land of the Nile. Electric railways and new concrete roads border the Tombs of the Kings and bring modern civilization into immediate contact with the Arabs of the desert and the tents that are in striking contrast to industrial enterprises . . . EGYPT will exercise the imaginations of students for generations to come. Here is an unusual opportunity to become acquainted with its past history and present development as it will be presented by an authoritative lecturer—supplemented by motion pictures and stereopticon views—IN COLOR.

WASHINGTON, D.C.

Young Actress Confronted by HeavyProgram

Every Hour of Day Packed; Blanche Bates Returns; Theater Chats

Charlotte Henry, the 19-year-old Brooklyn girl selected from among approximately 7,000 aspirants for the roles of Alice in Paramount's picturization of Lewis Carroll's "Alice in Wonderland," scheduled for Christmas release, will arrive in Washington, according to present plans, at 7 o'clock Thursday morning for one of the most hectic days of her transcontinental tour of personal appearances.

Miss Henry's visit is under the joint auspices of the Washington Kiwanis Club, the Loew Theaters and Paramount Pictures—a coalition of resources and personnel that insures Miss Henry a full day to overflowing with events of more than casual interest and importance.

She will be met at the station by a committee of distinguished citizens who will whisk her at once to the Mayflower, where she will occupy the Presidential suite, the beginning of an adventure in a "wonderland" entirely new to the ingenuous young Brooklynite, a fellow-townsman of Clara Bow, Barbara Stanwyck, Alice Lake, the Talmadges and numerous others who have achieved fame before the cameras.

How Not to Grow Old!

Following breakfast and a brief respite at the Mayflower will come a quick succession of carefully planned events, including visits to many of the District's orphanages, especially sponsored by the Kiwanians; a possible visit to the White House, lunch at the Kiwanis Club, at which important civic figures will be present; a tour of the points of major historical interest in and about the Capital, a radio interview, a meeting with the members of the cast of the recent local production of "Alice in Wonderland" and, finally, a personal appearance Thursday night at Loew's Fox.

Washington's "wonderland" will end for Miss Henry on Friday morning, when she is to leave for Philadelphia.

"And That Reminds Me!"

All this is strongly reminiscent of another day a good many years ago when the late President Harding was in the White House and Joe Morgan, general manager of the Crandall enterprise; Jack Pegler, a brother of Westbrook and a high pressure publicist then attached to the Washington office of First National, and this column—although in a slightly different capacity—were delegated to guide Master Wesley "Freckles" Barry, then the screen's foremost juvenile actor, through a day of slimilarly crowded events.

By the time we had delivered Master Barry to B. F. Keith's to witness the last performance of the day of Mildred Harris Chaplin, headlining the vaudeville bill that week, we were all fit to be tied and shipped away to a rest cure.

Unless Miss Henry is made of sterner stuff than Master "Freckles" Barry and the rest of us, the sponsors of her local vist, at the end of the day, may confidently look forward to having a charming young woman in a state of complete collapse on their hands.

Those in charge of the festivities will do well to take the word of one who knows and cut their proposed program exactly in two, for the mental, physical and spiritual benefit of all concerned.

Lest the impression become prevalent that Katharine Hepburn and her admirable supporting cast in Louisa M. Alcott's "Little Women," at RKO-Keith's, is the only attraction in town that is doing a consistently abnormal business, it should be known that "The Invisible Man," over at the Rialto, is enjoying a comparable popularity. "The Invisible Man" opened to the biggest midnight preview crowd at the Rialto since "All Quiet on the Western Front," and the next day played to the biggest opening day's business since "Back Street." That is what may be denominated an auspicious debut for a star who reveals nothing but his voice in his first film. Until the last minute of the picture, his voice is all one "sees" of Claude Rains in the title role of this extraordinary exploitation of an astounding and utter vacuity.

They Always Come Back.

Once the theater gets in the blood there is no escape for the victim. Sooner or later it always reclaims its own. The latest exemplification of this axiom of the playhouse is found in the case of Blanche Bates, former Belasco star, in retirement these past twelve years.

Miss Bates left San Francisco Saturday by airplane for New York where, it is reported, she plans to resume the stage career from which she retired in 1921 with the avowed intention of "never returning."

Miss Bates, in private life Mrs. George Creel, wife of the publicist, who is now Pacific Coast director of the NRA, will join the cast of a new play in rehearsal under the aegis of Jed Harris, it is reliably reported.

Miss Bates, a native Californian, last appeared in "Mrs. Partridge Presents," in 1921, at the Belasco Theater in New York. Her name, of course, is indelibly linked in the memory of veterans in the theater with such of the late David Belasco's notable productions as "Under Two Flags," "The Darlings of the Gods," "The Girl of the Golden West," and other plays of similarly colorful melodramatic content and treatment.

With the Ziegfeld "Follies" at the National and Billy Rose's "Crazy Quilt" revue at Loew's Fox, the Capital this week is hosting more musical revue talent than it has seen since goodness knows when. Incidentally, the "Crazy Quilt" cast will probably "act pretty" throughout the remainder of the current engagement, Fannie Brice being in our midst as chief comedienne of the "Follies." Miss Brice, in private life, is Mrs. Billy Rose, wife of the producer of the revue at the Fox.

Taps on Tap.

Washington women are to be given an opportunity to gain first-hand information on tap dancing from one who is reputed to be the world's greatest exponent of this dancing style, when Eleanor Powell conducts a special "class," for women only, on the stage of Loew's Fox Theater on Wednesday morning from 9:45 to 10:30.

Women of all ages will be admitted free of charge to the Fox during this 45-minute period of instruction in the trickiest kind of dancing, requiring the utmost in agility, muscular control and coordination.

Miss Powell not only will answer all queries relating to this type of dancing, but will demonstrate her remarks with some of the steps that have earned her the title of the "world's greatest tap dancer." Miss Powell, by the way, was one of the sensations in the last edition of the Ziegfeld "Follies" and is currently stopping the show at every performance at Loew's Fox.

Those wishing to attend this Wednesday morning "class" are requested to present themselves at the regular F street entrance to the theater.

Miss Powell's claim to the title of "world's greatest tap dancer" gains something of authenticity from the fact that Bill Robinson himself, recognized as the foremost of the male tap dancers, has conceded that Miss Powell is the greatest he has ever seen. Their styles are almost identical, entailing the maximum in coordination and minimum in visible effort.

The time of year has arrived when the motion-picture critics of the Nation begin to tear their hair, cudgel their brains—if any—and examine the record.

They are about to be faced by the annual acid test to which they are regularly subjected by Mr. Jack Alicoate, formerly of this dependable family journal and now editor and publisher of the Film Daily.

Mr. Alicoate has sent out his yearly call to the dramatic desks to nominate those pictures which, in their estimation, deserve to be included in the Film Daily's annual list of "Ten Best Pictures of the Year."

With his appeal Mr. Alicoate, as usual, submits a printed list of some four or five hundred titles of films eligible to compete for the National honor roll.

Good Fun, But Futile.

It is, of course, impossible that any single individual should personally have viewed all of these releases. The individual selections must, perforce, be on the basis of such films as the voter has seen, and those only. This pretty thoroughly does away with the possibility of anybody's coming off with a perfect score. If one manages to get half of his selections on the final list, he may be said to have done surprisingly well, everything considered.

At any rate, it is an exhilarating, even if futile, pastime and enlists the serious interest of practically all of the critics of standing in the United States.

The pictures finally elected to Mr. Alicoate's list of the "Ten Best Pictures of the Year" are pretty apt to be, the method of their selection being what it is, the ten best pictures of the year.

Backfire.

Gayety

"GIRLS FROM PAREE." Wilner Wonder Wheel presents a new burlesque show, featuring Jerri McCauley, Mike Sacks and Billy Fields, with June St. Clair, Frances Mazza, Cheri, Alice Kennedy, Charby Bonneau, Charles Dane, George Kinnear, Three Dayton Boys and the Fernando Threesome. Reviewed Sunday matinee by W. A. W.

Showing a great advancement in all branches of burlesque, "Girls from Paree" offers the best all 'round show since the Wilner Wheel has included Washington in its circuit. More genuine comedy, without any diminution in the number of girls or the quality of their work, sets this show off from its fellows and, consequently, forces at least a partial retraction of last week's arraignment.

With the Ninth street sector's favorite—the buxom, blonde Jerri McCauley—heading the line-up, complemented by June St. Clair, Nazzaro Hallo, Charby Bonneau and Frances Mazza, there remains but little that need be said for that side of the show. Cheri also did her stuff, but it remained for Miss St. Clair to stop the show cold in its tracks. Jerri came close to doing the same thing, but the orchestra wanted to get through the first act in record time!

'Twixt Billy Fields and Mike Sacks, abetted by Alice Kennedy, Harry, Rose, George Kinnear and Charles Dane, the comedy was fast, furious, and, what is more important, plentiful and good.

Adding zest to the program were the Three Dayton Boys, a trio of tap dancers, who effectively varied their routines with harmonica melodies. In the Fernando Threesome the bill has a great adagio team who deserve a much better hand than they received.

"The Invisible Man" Made Visible

Scarcely more than a resonant voice and a bundle of unoccupied bandages in Universal's unique picturization of a story by H. G. Wells, packing them in at the Rialto, Claude Rains deserves to be known as he appears when not "The Invisible Man." Here is his excellent, if slightly disheveled, likeness in persona propria—an authoritative and resourceful actor.

Cossack Songs Of Old Russia Stir Audience

Pain of Exile Mirrored in Moving Music Here by Russian Male Chorus.

By Ray C. B. Brown

No strangers to the public of Washington, where they have sung before, the Don Cossack Russian Male Chorus was enthusiastically received at their concert yesterday afternoon in Constitution Hall. The exiles from Russia, who have been wandering in many lands for the past 10 years, carry ever with them their nostalgic sorrow, which imparts to their music-making a peculiar quality of indefinable appeal.

Whether or not they are all from the region of the Don, these Kazaks are singing soldiers, with a unity of spirit that welds the organization into perfect cohesion. To their diminutive and doughty hetman, Sergei Jarov, they respond with the precision of military discipline and the accuracy of schooled musicians. The results of this combination are so admirable that one is tempted to suggest the parade ground as best training field for choruses and orchestras in general.

Religious Numbers Appealing.

In the history of this band of former Russian army officers is a chapter concerned with their experience as a choir in the Orthodox Church of Sofia. What an impressive choir they must have been was demonstrated in the first group of religious compositions by Kastalski, Chesnokov and Chaikovski. The great range of tone from the bourdon of the bassos to the falsetto of the tenors simulated the resources of the pipe organ, and the command of crescendo and diminuendo increased the illusion of instrumental timbre, Particularly was this noticable in the sustained pianissimo chords that faded away into silence.

The second group of songs began with the stirring opening chorus from Glinka's opera, "A Life for the Tsar," a fitting introduction to the folk music that followed. Humor abounded in the two folk songs arranged by Shvedov, and in Issai Dobroven's setting of the old nonsense rhyme," My Lady," in which the words were intoned by a soloist to an excellent imitation of a balalaika orchestra.

Volga Song Applauded.

The haunting sadness of "Beneath the Snow My Russia Lies" will dwell long in the memory of yesterday's auditors. It was the authentic expression of a racial melancholy, fraught with infinite and indefinable pain. Something of its poignancy was carried over into the next selection, Gogotski's "Holy Night," with its vocal suggestions of pealing chimes on Christmas Eve.

The concluding group on the program was, with the exception of the director's arrangement of a traditional Kazak war song, filled with a carnavalesque gayety. In the "Nonsense Songs" of Napravnik and the two folk songs by Grechaninov, fun frolicked and danced. As an extra number the chorus gave the familiar chant of the Volga bargemen. Even then the audience was not satisfied, but recalled the singers for a concluding number.

THE LIQUOR CZAR.

Under repeal, the country is to have a Liquor Czar, a Distilleries Dictator, a Grand Exalted Ruler of Rum.

It asks that the distillers be a little less selfish than the bootleggers and that they give the consumer as much of a break as he got from "Tony" and "Gus."

It bars formaldehyde, ship varnish, brass polish, rubbing liniment and oxalic acid as necessary ingredients of good whisky and asks that no more than three types of label be used on any one case of rye.

That the distillers will have to cut the stuff is admitted, but the Government expresses a hope the cutting will be nonpoisonous and it will not be carried to such extremes that the consumer always will wonder whether he is drinking a cut whisky or a charged water.

Modern Egypt Is Next Theme Of Travel Talk

Hamilton M. Wright Will Speak Tomorrow in Post-Guild Series.

The land of the Pharaohs under the modern rule of King Fuad I will be the subject of the weekly illustrated travel talk to be presented at the Masonic Auditorium, Thirteenth street and New York avenue northwest, tomorrow night, under auspices of the Washington Travel Guild cooperating with The Washington Post.

With the desire to acquaint its readers with all parts of the world from which news is gathered every day by the Associated Press and other agencies serving The Washington Post, this newspaper is sponsoring a series of 20 travel talks supplemented by motion pictures and colored stereoptian views. The lectures are conducted every Tuesday evening, beginning at 8:15 o'clock, and will continue up to and including Tuesday, April 3. To partially defray the cost of this undertaking a modest admittance charge of 25 cents is made for each individual lecture, or season tickets are obtainable at the cost of $4, which will reserve seats for each of the remaining lectures in the series.

The Washington Travel Guild assumes direct charge of each program and provides recognized authorities to explain the historical, sociological and geographic facts about the various countries that will be visited by the medium of pictures.

Tomorrow's lecture on "Modern Egypt under King Fuad" will be conducted by Hamilton M. Wright, who has made a close personal study of the modernizing of this ancient land to contrast with the mystery and historic splendor of its past.

IT TAKES HEALTHY NERVES TO BE THE CHAMPION TRAP SHOOTER

SHOOTING FROM SCRATCH, 25 yards behind the traps, Walter Beaver pulled out of an exciting tie to win the 34th Grand American—the first time it has been won by a limit contestant! He has been a steady smoker of Camels for years, and says: "I like their taste and mildness...they never jangle my nerves."

HOW ARE YOUR NERVES? If you smoke a lot...inside...outdoors...wherever you are...join the Camels. You'll like those costlier tobaccos in Camels. You'll find them milder, better tasting, and they never get on your nerves.

A MATCHLESS BLEND

IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW
Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

Steady Smokers turn to Camels

WALTER BEAVER, holder of the coveted Grand American Handicap, says:

"Winning a trap-shooting championship is partly a matter of luck, partly the result of practice and partly healthy nerves. I'm a steady smoker. People kid me about it at the tournaments. They say I never have a cigarette out of my mouth. During all these years I've been smoking Camels, not only because I like their taste and their mildness, but also because they never jangle my nerves."

It's no fun to feel that your nerves are ragged—and to wonder why. Check up on your eating...your sleep ...your cigarettes. Get a fresh slant on your smoking. Switch to Camels. Your nerves and your taste will tell you that Camels are a more likable cigarette—and that they don't upset your nerves.

Car Riders Take to New Pass System

There wasn't much clicking in the street car cash-or-token boxes yesterday, but conductors' pockets bulged with currency as Washington started riding on weekly passes.

The street car users apparently have adopted the new system almost to a man, according to John H. Hanna, president of the Capital Transit Co.

While no figures will be available before today, Mr. Hanna said the demand for passes had been so great that a new supply had to be sent to conductors for today. Conductors became supersalesmen and few passengers failed to buy one of the seven-day certificates.

Good for Week.

The passes, which sell for $1 and $1.25, are usable throughout the week and constitute one of the first efforts of the merged transportation company to win back thousands of patrons who have used taxicabs and their own cars in recent years.

The $1 pass entitles the holder to an unlimited number of rides on all street cars and buses which take tokens. The $1.25 pass includes the buses which still charge 10 cents cash fare. Both are transferable.

Conductors and bus operators were obviously under instruction yesterday to acquaint patrons with the opportunity to buy the weekly tickets. Everyone purchasing tokens was advised of the new policy.

Offices Moved.

The Capital Transit Co., which became a reality last Friday, is now engaged in moving certain offices about to effect a coordination of the former two railways. Ultimately, all offices will be located in former headquarters of the Capital Traction Co., in Georgetown.

A colored man, they said, demanded his money back from a conductor when he learned that the weekly card wasn't a permanent pass on the street car lines.

New Pass System Inaugurated on Street Cars

Under the merged District street railway system, a weekly pass entitles the holder to unrestricted rides. Miss Eva and Lillian Etta are shown using their passes for the first time yesterday. The passes are priced at $1 and $1.25 per week for the two types.

Rail Lines Slash Holiday Charges

Fares Almost Reduced to Half Throughout U. S.

Reductions of almost 50 per cent in round trip railway fares during the Christmas and New Year holidays have been announced by Eastern railroads.

The special fares will be offered by the Baltimore & Ohio, the Delaware & Hudson, Erie, Lackawanna, Lehigh Valley, New Jersey Central, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Reading, and West Shore lines.

Tickets will be sold at the new low fares between all stations on these railroads and their connections, with certain exceptions in local territories, and will apply generally throughout the United States, Canada and Mexico. They will be accepted on trains leaving any time between December 14 and January 1. The final return limit is January 15, with stop-over privileges on the return.

Stolen: About Quart Of Cash, Also Paint

Police Are Looking for Burglar Who Jingles.

Police of the Eighth Precinct are scratching their heads. Between scratches they are keeping eyes open for some sort of a walking hardware store and money exchange.

Yesterday Jesse Anthony, 3735 Jocelyn street, Chevy Chase, reported his home entered. He listed the following as missing:

One pair of opera glasses, 15 silver dollars, about $6 in change, a quantity of old Spanish coins, 3 decks of playing cards, 2 sets of automobile tire chains, and last of all, a 1-gallon can of varnish.

Chilly Thieves

Wintry Blasts Blamed for Three Coat Thefts.

Fear of discomfort in winter's chilly blasts sent Washington's burglars shopping for overcoats yesterday with nimble fingers.

The District's church burglar stole a $75 black cloak from Mrs. Winifred Albather, of 3521 W place northwest, as she worshipped in the Church of the Covenant at Eighteenth and N streets northwest.

Gardner Marsh, of 2101 Connecticut avenue, told police his topcoat was taken from the dining room of the Highlands Apartment yesterday. He valued it at $30.

Dr. Sizoo Urges Church Amity Toward Russia

Commending America's action in recognizing Russia, from the pulpit of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church yesterday the Rev. Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo said "it is high time" religious leadership does likewise.

Dr. Sizoo denied that Russia has lost faith in God. Rather, he said, they are denied the right to hold such a faith.

"Bolshevism itself is a religion," he said. "It grows from a passion similar to that from which our own religion developed. It has leaders and ideals. We may not think it moral, but it is a religion.

"It is not a religion in that, according to its doctrines, man is self-sufficient. It denies the Ten Commandments, the supernatural, the Golden Rule and the right to worship."

Paradox of Nations.

Dr. Sizoo called attention to the paradox wherein "the peace of the world depends on the one godless nation; while Christian nations, supposedly wanting peace, are all but at each others' throats."

"Communism has no chance in the world outside of Russia as long as peace exists," he continued. "Russia is ending its dreams of world control. It now wants only the right to its own government. These old ambitious dreams were the cause of Russia's unpopularity.

"Under the czar Russia had only two classes, the intelligencia and the peasants. The lack of a middle class led to the rise of Bolshevism. In the United States, where the members of the middle class are leaders and patriots, Bolshevism could have no place.

"Much Russia Can Teach."

"Russia's world-wide ambitions grew from an inability to appreciate the power of the middle class elsewhere."

In justifying the church's recognition of Russia, Dr. Sizoo said: "If Russia is wrong, she needs a brother. Perhaps some day she will see good in our system. And there is much we can learn from a whole people organized unselfishly for the advancement of an ideal. That is a great lesson to cynicism."

Guild Park Talk Urges Life Plan

Catholic Evidence Speech Calls It Necessary.

"Unless a man knows the purpose for which he was created, he can not live intelligently," said John J. O'Connor, of the faculty of Georgetown University, yesterday in an address in Franklin Park sponsored by the Catholic Evidence Guild.

"The Catholic possesses a standard of conduct, a design for living, that is not man-made but God-made," he continued. "God has not left us to grope in the dark in this matter."

Mrs. Frank O'Hara and Francis Barrett also spoke.

Man Slashed by Razor In Fight; Suspect Held

Stillwell Johnson, 26, of 1067 Thirty-first street northwest, was slashed by a razor, allegedly wielded by James O'Neal, 21, colored, 1310 W street northwest, during an altercation in front of 1439 W street northwest early yesterday.

Cuts on Johnson's neck and leg were treated at Freedmen's Hospital. O'Neal was arrested.

Clean Sweep

Burglars Leave Woman Holes of 4 Sinks.

Those traditionally thorough thieves who took "everything but the kitchen sink" blushed, ghost-fashion, last night as Mrs. Mary Sherburn, of 1526 Seventeenth street northwest, reported her robbery to police.

Hoodlums obtained not one sink, but four, all porcelain and valued together at $50, from a house she owns at 1919 S street northwest. They entered by shattering a basement window.

Home Builders Meeting Today Seek U. S. Aid

Request that the Government help finance new low cost homes is being made by the Home Builders and Land Developers National Committee, prior to the opening of a two-day session here today.

A preliminary survey, the committee reports, shows that 50 home building companies in 35 cities want a total of $27,035,485 to construct 7,350 homes. At the opening of the meeting a poll of the builders on amounts wanted will be taken.

An analysis, the committee says, shows teachers, public utility employes, clerks and salesmen lead in the desire for new low cost buildings.

The average down payment ready to go into the buildings, according to the survey, is $1,043. The average loan would be $3,678 per house and prices would range from $5,000 to $10,000, with the majority under $6,000.

One Cleveland home builder, the report says, wants $5,800,000 for 1,650 homes in that city.

The committee will submit to President Roosevelt a petition signed in 25 cities by 2,438 families asking Government assistance in home building. The committee declares that in many cities a shortage in single residences exists.

The convention, to be held at the Washington Hotel, will be addressed by experts on home building and will hear reports on the survey and other home building problems.

Aims of Italy And U. S. Same, States Envoy

Closely parallelling President Roosevelt's recovery program, Mussolini is working for peace and international cooperation in political and economic fields, Signor Augusto Russo, the Italian Ambassador to the United States, told a radio audience yesterday.

"I know that your great President Roosevelt and our great Duce Mussolini regard each other with profound respect," the Italian Ambassador said, "and each nation has respect for and has no desire to interfere with the rights of the other nation."

Recalling help extended to Italians in 1918 when troops and ambulance equipment were sent, Rosso said that friendships cemented then exist today.

"We have no governmental nor personal rivalries. Historically we are friends. Ours is a mutual hope that future generations shall, in our respective countries, be given every opportunity of life, and a fine, clean country in which to live," he said.

"We Italians and our Government accord to every Nation that which we want for ourselves, the right to work out our own salvation in our own way. That, I understand, is the same liberal attitude of the United States," he continued.

Italians were extremely appreciative of the welcome extended to Gen. Balbo and his fleet of 24 planes last summer, and a like welcome is ready in Italy for fliers from the United States, the Ambassador said.

To his own countrymen in America, Rosso extended greetings and congratulated all who have been honored with citizenship.

Navy Officer Reports $500 Dog Missing

A black-and-tan bloodhound, valued at $500, was sought by its owner, Lieut. Comdr. W. O. Thomas, of the Greystone, Rock Creek Park, yesterday.

A tan German police dog and a heavy-set French brindle bull strayed from their owner in front of his home at 2319 Wyoming avenue northwest, Wrisley Brown informed police. Both animals were licensed.

Pipes Show That Smoking Was Rather a Chore in Those Days.

A collection of rust-eaten articles from the colony established by Capt. John Smith at Jamestown, Va., in 1607, have come into the possession of the Smithsonian Institution, a gift of Martin L. Ehmann, of New York.

Among the relics are a broken sword, tobacco pipes, keys, hinges, bars of lead, bullets and bullet molds, iron mattocks and other agricultural instruments, horse trappings, a number of bottle necks, fragments of pottery and pewter dishes and spoons.

It was possible to date the articles through the keys, which are of a type that have not been in use since 1650.

The tobacco pipes are particularly interesting. They are shaped much like cigar holders, with the bowl ends slightly tilted. Only a small quantity of tobacco could be used. Some of the pipes are of Indian manufacture and others were made in England.

The Indian pipes were made of clay molded over reeds. The English evidently pushed a wire through wet clay to make the hollow stem. The passages in the English pipes are so small that smoking must have been difficult.

Bazaar Today Benefits Church at Clarendon

Pastors Join Gen. Pershing In Chest Plea

Workers Report Today on First Half of Extra Week.

Ministers Issue Appeals; Curley Asks District Catholics to Help.

Washington's response to the solicitation of the Community Chest "army," during the first half of the one week's extension of the campaign decided upon last Wednesday, will be made known today at the report meeting of the Chest at 12:45 p. m., in the ballroom of the Willard Hotel. Gen. John J. Pershing will be chief speaker.

Presenting the needs of unfortunates who can not speak for themselves, members of the Metropolitan unit yesterday offered an opportunity to Washingtonians to participate in the work of 60 agencies financed through the Community Chest. Testimony to their activity was noted by many calls received at Chest headquarters for additional pledge cards.

Following the request of Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, chairman of the speaker's unit, who wrote personal letters to every clergyman in the city, appeals were made in behalf of the Chest from every pulpit in the city.

Curley Sends Pastoral Letter.

The Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, Archbishop of Baltimore, again sent a pastoral letter to every Roman Catholic Church in Washington, which was read to congregations by priests in charge. His letter follows:

"To the pastors of the city of Washington: The Community Chest campaign, upon which our eight Catholic charitable institutions depend, is lagging and threatens to fall short. If these institutions are again required to take a serious cut it will impose a grave hardship upon them. This is particularly true of our homes for children. Already crowded to capacity, they are called upon to do more work than ever before.

"I would ask you to call this to the attention of your congregations, urging those who have not yet made their pledge to do so promptly. Those who can give more should increase the pledges already made.

"Sincerely yours in Christ,
"MICHAEL J. CURLEY,
"Archbishop of Baltimore."

In addition to the personal solicitation of the Metropolitan unit, plans were announced yesterday to give to any person who has not yet been solicited an opportunity to subscribe.

Banks Help Campaign.

Arrangements have been made with all the member banks of the District Bankers Association to receive pledges at their windows from now until Thursday. Pledges may be received at the offices of the Washington Gas Light Co., 711 Tenth street northwest; the Georgetown Gas Light Co., at Wisconsin and Dumbarton avenues; the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., 723 Thirteenth street northwest; the Potomac Electric Power Co., Tenth and E streets northwest; the J. T. Richards Co., Inc., 1213 Water street southwest; Friendship House, 326 Virginia avenue southeast; the Northeast Building Association, 2010 Rhode Island avenue northeast, and Henderson's Cigar Store, at the southeast corner of New York avenue and Fourteenth street. Additional stations will be announced.

Joseph D. Kaufmann, chairman of the Metropolitan Unit, stressed the fact that pledges and not cash are desired. The organizations whose buildings are being used for the acceptance of pledges will also arrange to accept payments throughout the year.

Today's report is expected to give an accurate idea of just how much of the Chest goal can be expected during the extension of the campaign which ends with next Thursday's report meeting.

3 Radio Stars Sing On Seal Program

Coast-to-Coast Network Aids Fight on Disease.

Three famous radio stars last night presented a special musical program over a coast-to-coast network as the National Broadcasting Co.'s contribution to the National Christmas Seal sale.

An appeal to the public to buy Christmas Seals was voiced in the American Legion indorsement of the campaign issued in Indianapolis yesterday by National Commander Edward A. Hayes. Commander Hayes said the work carried on by the tuberculosis association all over the country must continue undiminished, and promised the legion's whole-hearted support in the Christmas Seal distribution.

Eastern Star Chapter To Hold Annual Bazaar

The annual bazaar of Ruth Chapter, No. 7, Order of the Eastern Star, will be held Wednesday and Thursday nights at the Masonic Hall in Hyattsville.

A supper will precede the affair Wednesday. Mrs. Peter Duguid is in charge of arrangements.

Zoo Wants Birds, But They Must Have Inspired Poets

A Cuckoo or a Jackdaw Might Be Added to Growing Group.

Have you a cuckoo in your home? Or a jackdaw? If you do, and would like to round out the Zoo's collection of "birds of literature," get in touch with Dr. William M. Mann, director of the National Zoological Park.

Dr. Mann wants at least one specimen of every bird which has received literary treatment by writers of prose and poetry. The collection was enhanced recently with the addition of a nightingale, skylark, European shrike, blue tenager, chaffinch, green hawfinch, European goldfinch, English robin redbreast, linnet, bullfinch, waxwing and a bulbul, which is the Persian nightingale.

Hail to thee, blithe spirit!
Bird thou never wert——
That from heaven or near it
Pourest thy full heart
In profuse strains of unpremeditated art.

Keats' "Ode to a Nightingale" probably is the best-known poem inspired by that bird. There is a legend that the bulbul sings with its breast pressed against a rose thorn to ease its heart's pain, a fancy which is the basis of other poems. From Matthew Arnold's "Philomela" come the following lines:

Hark! Ah, the Nightingale!
The tawny-throated!
Hark! From that moonlit cedar what a burst!
What triumph! Hark—what pain!

Eagles, hawks, doves, birds of paradise, thrushes, cranes, crows, ostriches, pigeons, ravens, storks, swans and vultures are some of the birds which have places in literature and are represented in the Capital Zoo.

Cozens' Death Inquest Called

Missing Money Beclouds Belief Salesman Was Suicide.

An inquest in the death of Frank G. Cozens, 47, salesman, found shot to death yesterday in the garage at his home, 4431 Legionnaire street, Brentwood, Md., will be held tonight in the Mount Rainier town hall.

The hearing was ordered by Robert E. Joyce, acting coroner, after a coroner's jury viewed the body yesterday.

Authorities first believed Cozens had committed suicide, but since a large sum of money which the family said he had on his person was missing, an inquest was deemed necessary.

Cozens was shot twice in the heart. Dr. Oscar LaVine of Mount Rainier said death could have been either suicide or murder.

Motorist Critically Hurt In Collision With Taxi

Frederick Oliver Rinker, 33, of 120 E street northwest, was reported in a critical condition at Casualty Hospital last night, suffering from injuries received when the car he was driving collided with a taxi and overturned at New Jersey avenue and D street northwest.

Physicians said Rinker received a fractured skull and internal injuries. The taxi, police said, was driven by George Turner, 315 L street northeast.

National Guard At Peak Status, Leach Reports

Condition Best in History, Chief Says; Air, Motor Strength Gains.

"The National Guard is in the best condition of its long history," Maj. Gen. George E. Leach, chief of the National Guard Bureau of the War Department, declared in his annual report made public yesterday.

"Never has the guard contained a higher class of personnel," reported Gen. Leach. "Never have standards of character been higher and never has its all-round efficiency been at so high a point."

Present policies will be continued, Gen. Leach said.

The program of motorization had a decided impetus during the year, the report stated. Sufficient new motor vehicles were procured to equip 20 regiments of light field artillery.

On June 30, the strength of the National Guard stood at 185,925, Gen. Leach reported. There are 4,022 units and 1,032 headquarters in the National Guard allotment, he said.

Revision of the Air Corps policy of the Guard now allocates eight standard observation planes to each of the 19 air squadrons, the reporter went on. At present each squadron has five radio-equipped planes, Gen. Leach said, and if present plans can be made effective all service planes will be two-way radio equipped.

Old motor equipment of the Guard is not in satisfactory condition, Gen. Leach declared. Despite rapid motorization, the Guard still has 8,613 horses.

Appropriations for the National Guard in the 1933 fiscal year were $35,484,864, the report stated.

Church Awakening Is Asked by Pastor

Dr. Frantz Deplores Extra Concern on Pleasures.

Deploring the lack of spiritual feeling among most church people today, the Rev. J. Luther Frantz, speaking at St. Mark's Lutheran Church yesterday, charged the spiritually indifferent to awake.

"The two great religious conferences to be held in our city in the next ten days, indicate an awakening interest, but alas! the great mass of the people in the church are as yet more concerned about economic questions and pleasures than about the coming of the Kingdom of God," he said.

Unidentified Man Found Dead on Railway Track

The mangled body of an unidentified Negro, clad in a brown overcoat, gray cap and low black shoes, was found on the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad, opposite the Hudson Brick Co., early yesterday.

Police removed the body to the District Morgue.

19,000 to Get Jobs on Four U. S. Projects

District and Adjacent States Get Big Part of New Pay Roll.

More than 19,000 additional men and women, many of them professional and skilled workers, will return to work today on four Federal projects under the Civil Works Administration, Harry L. Hopkins, administrator, announced yesterday. Several thousand of these additional workers will be employed in the District of Columbia and surrounding States.

The projects are:

United States Navy program of repair work, painting, landscaping, clearing underbrush, and demolition of buildings in 20 States, Hawaii, and the District of Columbia, employing skilled and unskilled labor, total employed 11,631.

5,000 in New England.

Veterans Administration campaign of ground cleaning, and general repair work in all States except New Hampshire, Vermont, Delaware, and Nevada, employing 1,258.

Department of Interior survey of historical buildings in all States and the District of Columbia, employing architects, architectual draftsmen, executives, clerks, secretaries and stenographers. Total employed 1,126.

These projects will bring the total employed on Federal work under the Civil Works Administration to 227,060.

Architectural Survey.

The architectural survey will employ for the most part skilled workers. They will examine historical buildings and monuments and draw plans for their repair and restoration. The Government will file complete descriptions and plans of the buildings so that in case of destruction by fire or otherwise they can be restored.

In this connection four architects, five architect executives, two clerk secretaries and one stenographer will be employed in the District. Twenty-three persons will be employed in Maryland, 33 in Virginia and 17 in West Virginia.

Union to Entertain Federal Workers

Open House Will Be Held Wednesday.

Government employes will be guests of honor Wednesday at "open house" of the National Federation of Federal Employes. The organization's headquarters in the Labor Building, 10 B street southwest, will be open from 4:30 to 9 p. m.

Entertainment has been arranged by the District Federation of Employes Unions. A tour of national offices will be conducted by William S. Kinney, of War Department Local No. 261, and Archie C. Edwards, of Agricultural Department Local No. 2.

Yuletide Lane Opens Tonight

Georgetown Civic Groups Will Participate.

Yuletide Lane will be inaugurated in Georgetown at 8 p. m. today under sponsorship of the Georgetown Progressive Business Club. The three District Commissioners and Maj. E. W. Brown, superintendent of police, have been invited to attend.

Music will be given by the Boys' Band of the Elks. Officials of other civic organizations in Georgetown will participate.

The committee in charge is composed of Percy C. Klein, chairman; W. Raymond Freeman, secretary; Frank H. Rowe, Linden A. Shenk, Edwin M. Schlegel, and John Paul Jones.

Stanford Rose Bowl Bid to Columbia Is Reported and Denied

Tigers, Pitt Also Linked To List

Little's Men Beaten Only by Princeton in Game Marred by Fumbles.

Definite Announcement Due Today; Team Sure to Be From East.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP).—Dr. Edward S. Elliott, director of athletics at Columbia University, tonight denied a published report that Columbia had been invited to play in the Rose Bowl football game at Pasadena, Calif., New Year's Day.

Commenting on a report published in the New York Herald Tribune that an invitation had been received by the New York institution, Dr. Elliott said:

"We have not received an invitation and we do not expect one."

Reported Considered.

The Herald Tribune said that it was authoritatively reported that an invitation from Stanford, the Pacific Coast representative in the Tournament of Roses game, had been received and was being considered by Columbia authorities.

Despite Dr. Elliott's statement that Columbia did not expect an invitation, there remained the possibility that the Lions would be chosen. Despite a defeat by Princeton, Columbia's team is regarded as one of the best in the East and the decision of the Tigers not to accept an invitation if offered left Columbia as one of the few teams in the East with a record which made it eligible for consideration.

Three Reported Considered.

Palo Alto, Calif., Dec. 3 (AP). — Selection of an Eastern team to meet Stanford University in the Rose Bowl football game at Pasadena New Year's Day for the mythical national championship was believed here tonight by observers to have narrowed down to a choice among Pittsburgh, Princeton and Columbia universities.

Alfred R. Masters, graduate manager of Stanford, who is solely responsible for the selection of the Western eleven's opponent, left tonight for Pasadena without giving any indication as to the probable choice.

Early Announcement.

Masters said he hoped to make an announcement in the Southern city tomorrow. It is known that Masters had been in communication with Eastern schools today.

Masters dropped one significant remark which was taken to indicate a team from the Eastern section of the country will be named.

"The real game from a sell-out standpoint would be a return contest with Southern California," he said. "I believe, however, the traditions of the Tournament of Roses game should be maintained by the selection of a team from the East."

Moore, Cue Expert, In Exhibition Tonight

Robert Moore, three-time National junior cue champion and unbeaten as a intermediate, does his stuff on the pocket-billiard table at Lewis and Krauss parlors tonight at 9 o'clock, and is expected to draw quite a gathering. Moore is only 16 years of age, but handles his cue like a wizard. He is being compared with such former boy wonders in green cloth history as Willie Hoppe, Ralph Greenleaf and Welker Cockran, all of whom won world's titles while still in their early 'teens. No admission will be charged for tonight's exhibition.

Les Kennedy to Fight Mickey Walker Tonight

Les Kennedy, Alexandria heavyweight, will meet Mickey Walker, of Rumson, N. J., in a ten-round bout at Newark, N. J., tonight. Walker, former welter and middleweight title holder, was at one time ranking contender for the heavyweight crown, holding Jack Sharkey to a 15-round draw and bowing via the knockout route to Max Schmeling in his quest for the diadem.

Langley Airmen Trim Carlisle to Win Title

Langley Field, Va., Dec. 3 (AP). The Langley Field airmen today won the Third Army Corps Area football championship by defeating Carlisle Barracks, 6 to 0.

A forward pass from Owen, Langley half back, to Quarter Back Tyrell for 40 yards, gave the Birdmen their lone touchdown in the second quarter. The effort for the extra point failed.

The defeat was the first suffered by the Pennsylvanians this season. Previously they had won nine straight games.

Michigan Captain Named.

Detroit, Dec. 3 (AP).—Tom Austin, 210-pound right tackle, will captain the University of Michigan football eleven next season.

Austin, 21-year-old athlete from Columbus, Ohio, was named captain last night at the annual football "bust" of the University of Michigan Club, of Detroit.

Tigers' Claims To Grid Title Clouded

Princeton's All-Eastern Schedule Is Not Considered Real Test.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP).—It was "curtains" for football today after perhaps the most exciting campaign on record.

Sectional championships, except in Southwest, had been decided definitely, but the mythical National throne seemed fated to go a begging for a generally recognized occupant.

The sensational overturning of both Army and Duke in yesterday's smashing finale left H. O. (Fritz) Crisler's rejuvenated Princeton Tigers the country's only major undefeated and untied team and with as good a claim as any to National honors.

Tiger Schedule Weak.

Yet Princton's schedule, almost exclusively an all-Eastern one, operates to the Tigers' disadvantage in any National title argument. Could Princeton Athletic authorities be persuaded to accept a bid to the Rose Bowl, assuming one were extended, the Tigers might be able to prove conclusively their right to the throne in a hand-to-hand tussle with Stanford on New Year's Day. Any possibility of such a meeting, however, seems to have vanished with the announcement of the Princeton Board of Athletic Control last week that the Tiger policy against postseason games still stood.

Four "breathers" were included in Princeton's schedule in the games with Amherst, Williams, Washington and Lee and Brown. The Tigers' most notable victories were scored over Yale, Dartmouth, Navy and Brown, none of which ranks among the upper strata, even of Eastern football.

The Tigers, with sophomores manning most of the posts, climaxed their first undefeated and untied season since 1922 by trouncing the Elis of Yale at New Haven, 27-2, and gaining adequate revenge for the 51-14 lacing they took two years ago.

During the early minutes of the game when Yale pushed the Tigers around and gained a 2-0 lead on a safety after a blocked kick, it appeared as though Princeton might be headed for just the same sort of disaster that wrecked the hopes of Army and Duke.

Tigers Hit Stride.

But the Tiger machine soon hit its stride, its sophomore stars, Garry Le Van and Homer Spoffard, ran wild, the linesman ripped Yale's forwards apart, and Princeton coasted in to its most decisive victory in the series which began in 1876.

Meanwhile Army's hopes of its first perfect season in 17 years crashed in the turf of the Yankee Stadium, where a crowd of 76,000 saw Notre Dame climax a disastrous campaign with a spectacular fourth period assault that beat the Cadets, 13-12. Wallace Wade's Blue Devils of Duke, at the same time, likewise were forced to accept their first defeat as Georgia Tech fought its way to a 6-0 verdict at Atlanta.

Baseball Writers Meet.

Shute Defeats Goodman at Golf, 2 Up

U. S. Amateur Winner of Open Loses on Final Hole at Miami.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 3 (AP).—Playing the same brand of steady golf that won the British Open crown for him last summer, Denny Shute, lanky Philadelphia pro, today scored a 2-up victory over Johnny Goodman, Omaha amateur and holder of the American Open title, in a 72-hole charity exhibition match billed as a mythical "world" championship affair.

Shute got off to a flying start to win the first hole of the initial 18-hole round, on which he carded a brilliant 66, 5 under par, and never was down to the Nebraskan at any time during the match.

Goodman Stages Rally.

Goodman, who was trailing by six holes at the forty-fourth, staged a sensational comeback to cut the lead to one on the sixty-ninth, however, and then carried the match to the final green on halves, where Shute's deadly approaching, which had marked his game throughout, enabled him to win by a 2-hole margin.

Immediately upon completion of the match, Gene Sarazen, P. G. A. champion, and until recently holder of both the American and British open titles, announced he would challenge Shute to a 72-hole battle.

Goodman's defeat by Shute today was due largely to unsteady work around the greens. Shute seldom was in trouble. Shute toured the 72 holes in 1 over par, carding a 66—72—73—74—285, while Goodman trailed by only 2 strokes with 72—71—71—73—286. Par for the 6,640-yard course is 71.

The match, which attracted a sizable gallery, served as a preliminary to a renewal of the $10,000 Biltmore Open championship to be held here next Friday, Saturday and Sunday with $2,500 as top prize. Shute also holds that title.

Billiardists Seek Greenleaf Crown

Chicago, Dec. 3 (AP).—The annual attempt to dislodge Ralph Greenleaf, of New York, from the world pocket billiards title throne will open tomorrow night.

Greenleaf, who has held the championship almost continuously since 1919, will open his latest defense against Charles Seaback, of Astoria, N. Y., in the tournament inaugural. Eight other stars will try for the title and the financial gain which goes with it.

The victor will receive $1,600 of the $6,500 in prize money, a share of the gate receipts and a diamond-studded medal. The tournament will continue for 18 days, with 45 games scheduled.

Stancook Named To Captain Army

Balmat, N. Y., Full Back Elected Unanimously.

West Point, N. Y., Dec. 3 (AP)—Joe Stancook, first-string full back, today was elected to captain Army's football team for 1934.

Announcing Stancook's election by a unanimous vote, Harvey Jablonsky, retiring captain, said, "Joe is the hardest blocker and tackler I have ever played against or with and I believe he will make one of the greatest captains an Army team has ever had."

"Stancook did most of the work and got less credit than any man on the team," said Head Coach Gar Davidson.

Stancook is 21 years old, weighs 181 pounds and is 5 feet 11 inches tall. He lives at Balmat, N. Y.

DavisCup Hope Of Paris Seen Meager

Borotra Is Ranked at Top; Cochet Left Off First Time in 10 Years.

PARIS, Dec. 3 (U.P.).—French tennis rankings for 1933, announced today by the French Tennis Federation, reflected France's meager hopes of regaining the Davis Cup in 1934.

First place among the men was allotted to Jean Borotra, veteran "Bounding Basque," whose play during the season would hardly merit him a high place in the world rankings, despite his previous brilliant career.

The name of Henri Cochet French ace, was absent from the list for the first time in 10 years. He was dropped by the Federation after his transfer to the professional ranks.

Boussus Is Second.

The men's rankings follow: Jean Borotra, 1; Christian Boussus, 2; Paul Feret, 3; Martin Le Gay, 4; Marcel Bernard, 5; Andre Merling, 6; Jean Lesseur, 7; Jacques Brugnon, 8; M. Gentian, 9, and Pierre Landry, 10.

The Federation's ranking committee deliberated lengthily before ranking Borota first, because he is abstaining from singles in all the major tourneys. Some committeemen favored Andre Merlin because of his strong showing against Fred Perry in the Davis Cup challenge round, but he was voted far down the list on his performances in other tournaments.

Others favored the left-handers, Christian Boussus and Marcel Bernard, because they, together with Cochet, were the only Frenchmen to reach the quarter-finals of the French championships. A few favored the former professional, Paul Feret, who played steadily though not brilliantly during the season.

Mme. Simone Mathieu was ranked first among the women, a place she held for the past five years.

Santa Clara Defeats San Francisco, 6 to 0

San Francisco, Dec. 3 (AP).—Taking to the air when line plays failed, Santa Clara's Broncos defeated the University of San Francisco Dons, 6 to 0, here today in the last three minutes of the game.

After playing on even terms for the most of the contest, the Broncos swept into scoring position when Frank Sebrero, left half back, intercepted a pass on the Dons' 39-yard line. On the next play Sobrero shot a bullet-like pass to Ike Britshgi, substitute quarter back, who caught it on the run and hiked on to cross the goal line.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP).—The New York Giants clinched the championship of the eastern division of the National Professional Football League today by hammering out a 27-3 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates before a crowd of 12,000 in the Polo Grounds.

Stopped cold in the first half, the Giants suddenly opened up a furious passing and running attack, pushed over four touchdowns and closed their home season with a clean slate of seven victories on their own field.

Pirates Take Early Lead.

The Pirates got off to a flying start as Mose Kelch, former sandlot player, booted a field goal from the 14-yard line in the second period. The Giants came back with a drive that carried to the visitors' 1-yard stripe where they were stopped on a third down as the half ended.

Portsmouth, Ohio, Dec. 3 (AP). The Chicago Bears, by defeating the Portsmouth Spartans 17 to 7 here today, clinched the championship of the Western division of the National Professional Football League and won the right to play the New York Giants for the league title.

Sizzling passes from the hands of Keith Molesworth, former Monmouth star, and "Red" Grange, the former "Galloping Ghost" of Illinois, spelled disaster for the Spartans.

Twice in the last quarter Grange drove over the Spartan's goal line only to have the plays called back because of off-side penalties, the Bears thereafter losing the ball on downs.

Who Gets the Pretty Rose?

By Paul Gallico.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (Spl.).—The agitation as to whether the currency should or should not be inflated and worry about who is going to play the Rose Bowl game against the University of Stanford at Pasadena on New Year's Day has the country divided about fifty-fifty. Two prospective guests bowed out of the picture yesterday afternoon when Duke was defeated by Georgia Tech, 6-0, and Army gave up the ghost 13 to 12 before Notre Dame's minute pogrom.

There has been a curious campaign in some of the local folios advocating the consideration of the football team of Columbia University as an opponent, but I think that it is just that some of the boys are looking for a trip to a warmer climate over the holidays. I am heartily in accord with this idea, but candor compels me to state that, much as I adore my Alma Mater and with all due affection and respect to Dr. Louis Little, the professor of football at that institution, I do not feel that the Columbians are in the same class with the Stanfords.

The logical challenger, of course, is Princeton University, which went through a brilliant and forceful season undefeated and untied, but the Princetons have developed a hauter toward this interesting postseason event which is unfortunate from the newspaper point of view because it would make a swell story for us and carry us through past New Year's, but understandable from Coach Crisler's angle, also Princeton's angle.

After many lean years, Princeton finally has come up with a good football team that whipped every team on its schedule and finished the season with but one touchdown scored against it. A fine and honorable record, as such things are accepted, a fine advertisement for Princeton University and the intellectual advantages located in its vivid towers. The team has made good. Crisler has made more than good as an instructor and coach, and what any of them would have to gain by going out to the West Coast and taking a licking from one of those red-hot coast teams playing on their home grounds is more than I can see.

And if Princeton should beat Stanford—well, what of that? The Tigers seem to have much more to lose than to gain. Smart old kitty. Gonna to stay right home in Princeton.

Army's team was a good one this year, but not good enough. Columbia still insists on playing students and did remarkably well, considering. But I would not like to see a team from this section go out there unless they had a good chance of winning the ball game. I am not rabid on the subject of football supremacy of the West Coast over the East and do not think it is one of the things that matters, but some of my Eastern clients are a little tender on the subject, and it would not hurt to see victory a little more equitably distributed.

Of course, the two best teams in the country are Stanford and Southern California, and the way to settle the Rose Bowl dispute is to toss the pair of them back in there again and let them fight it out. Each has one defeat written against it. You could charge $25 a ticket to see that one and get it. And it would mean more to the country at large from the point of view of football interest than to have another Eastern team of uncertain ability go out and take another licking to make a California holiday. I believe the thing that prevents them from doing just that thing is something in the Rose Bowl charter which says the opponents must be an invited team from another section. Well, change the charter.

In the meantime, our town is full of mysterious strangers with slouch hats pulled down over their eyes, skulking about hotel lobbies and pulling wires trying to get that Rose Bowl bid.

Every so often there is a rumor that a Stanford representative was seen getting off a train at Grand Central Station and there is a general scramble and panic until it is run down and proved false. The invite is worth from sixty to seventy thousand dollars to the invited party which same money will buy an awful lot of monogrammed sweaters, towels, silk pants and other expensive athletic equipment.

I know a lot of those Stanford guys. Nice fellows. Met 'em in Chicago when they came on to play Northwestern. That Don Liebendorfer of theirs is a personal friend of mine. Wonder if I scraped together a team whether I couldn't land that bid myself. Maybe I could get the Yales to go out with me. With that kind of dough up they could laugh merrily the whole 60 minutes. No matter how much Stanford laughs. For that dough I would do considerable laughing myself.

Irish to Get Huge Welcome On Returning Home Today

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 3 (AP).—They won't be bringing back a national championship this time, but Notre Dame and South Bend tonight were preparing a huge welcome for the Irish football force which conquered Army yesterday.

The unexpected 13-to-12 triumph took most of the sting out of the most dismal season Notre Dame has known, and the students started their celebration by parading and rushing theaters. A formal welcome will greet the Irish when they reach South Bend tomorrow morning.

The season finds no parallel in Notre Dame history since the Irish reached the front rank of football. The 1928 team lost four games, but suffered no such humiliation as being held scoreless in six games.

However, the finish of the campaign was more than a little like the climax of the 1928 season, with Army being the sufferer in both cases. Five years ago Johnny (one-play) O'Brien, caught a pass in the closing minutes to give Notre Dame victory over a favored Army eleven.

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

Monday Morning Quarter Back.

NOTRE DAME won absolution for a lot of its football sins this season when it smeared Army's clean record at Yankee Stadium Saturday. Hunk Anderson won a new lease on his life as coach at South Bend, and Joe Dokes, the man in the street, won new admiration for the Irish.

Irish eyes are smiling at the thought of Notre Dame vs. Army. Army goes into the game virtually every year as the favorite and comes out of it wondering why.

The Tiger has changed his stripes. Princeton's 27-2 score against Yale was the greatest margin ever rolled up by the Tigers against the Elis. The Bulldogs, mangy and toothless this season, never had a chance against the Tigers. Princeton's sophomores assure the Tigers a three-year domination of the Big Three.

A matter of 1 foot deprived Wallace Wade's team of a 3,000-mile trip across country to the Rose Bowl. It was the foot in front of the Georgia Tech goal line that Duke couldn't negotiate in four downs and thus was forced to absorb its only defeat of the season.

The most unkindest cut of all, as far as Duke is concerned, was delivered when its touchdown was nullified because one of its lineman was offside. It was tough enough to get that ball across in the first place. Wade knows how it feels to have a 50-to-1 shot that wins by six lengths disqualified for fouling.

That was no Kansas cyclone that struck George Washington at Griffith Stadium, but it was a pretty fair imitation of the immovable object when the Colonials had the ball. G. W. made three first downs, one by rushing.

Georgia gained partial revenge for its 60-0 defeat by Southern California two years ago. Last Saturday, Georgia reduced the margin of the Trojans' victory to 31-0. On the progressive system, it figures to be a close battle in 1938.

The G. W. band completed an undefeated season, gaining more ground in the between-the-halves parades than did the varsity in the regulation 60 minutes. That Kansas "K" was the hardest letter the band was forced to form all season, and they made it with a nifty shift to the weak side.

Alabama is making progress in its bid for the Rose Bowl invitation by elimination. The Crimson Tide foresaw a chance for the selection if they could beat Vanderbilt, if Princeton declined, if Army lost and if Duke lost. Well, They beat Vanderbilt, Princeton declined, Army lost and Duke lost. A parlay on the four contingencies would have been quoted at 100 to 1.

Marion A. C. Gridmen Lose But Win League Title-Deciding Game by Forfeit

6-0 Victory Taken From Mercurys

Maryland Is Nosed Out for Title by Marions by Single Point.

MARION A. C. automatically won the National Capital League football championship yesterday, despite a 6-0 defeat suffered at the hands of the Mercury eleven before 2,500 spectators on the rain-swept Gonzaga gridiron.

The Marions played the game with the knowledge that they had won the title before they started, since Mercury mustered into action several ineligible players. The verdict thus went to the defending champions via the forfeit route.

Among the ineligible men used by Mercury were Nig McCarver, exiled star of the George Washington University team; Nick Haniboe, Gus Merryman and Bill Howard.

Pass Nets Touchdown.

It was the swivel-hipped McCarver who collaborated in a passing attack that was directly responsible for the lone touchdown of the game. Early in the second quarter the tall Texan dropped back on Marions' 30-yard line and rifled a touchdown-labeled pass to Steve Thompson, left end, who snatched the ball on a dead run on the 8-yard line and galloped over the goal line.

Webb's try for extra point was blocked.

The Marions were the victims of a "tough break" in the opening quarter. Eddie Huff tossed a 10-yard pass to Larcaroni, end, who raced to the 8-yard line. With no Mercury men near him, and two of his players running fine interference, Larcaroni had the misfortune to fumble the slippery ball, with a sure touchdown in sight. Larcaroni, however, quickly recovered, and the Marions were held for downs.

Again in the third quarter the Marions were hammering away on Mercury's 15-yard line as a result of a concerted passing attack from their own 20-yard stripe. Mercury's front wall braced and beat off the champions' challenge.

Hold for Downs Again.

Mercury's gridders held for downs again in the fourth quarter with the Marions encamped on the 15-yard line.

Although beaten, the Marions rolled up 16 first downs to their opponents' 4, outrushed and outgamed them, but admitted defeat in the kicking department, with Full Back Webb hoisting his long out of dangerous spots with his long punts.

Marion will meet the Mohawks for the Southeast unlimited championship next Sunday.

High School Highlights.

TWO former local high school basket ball aces are busy practicing for the coming grind at Georgetown University. They are Anthony Latona, former Western forward, and Ben Zola, former Eastern guard, who played two years ago with the Maryland yearling outfit before transferring to Georgetown.

Devitt Prep evidently has thrown out the athletic towel. The football team was dismantled early in October and now all is quiet on the basket ball front. Three games were played, the Devitt eleven losing the opener to Fork Union, 6 to 0. It came back the following week to trounce Bullis School, 25 to 0, and then lost a week later to National Training, 9 to 2. Pigskin activities were then halted, games being canceled with Charlottesville School, Georgetown Frosh, Randolph-Macon Academy, Catholic U. Frosh and St. John's. The team was coached by Dick Turner, Tech all-high half back in 1924, who later turned out to be quite a back field star at the University of Virginia, graduating in 1928.

Gordon Kessler, former Tech High quarter back, generally referred to as Hap Hardell's favorite protege and later football and baseball luminary at Maryland, is now employed in the Patent Office—he also is attending Georgetown Law School.

Youths Launch Ping Pong Enterprise to Provide Expenses for Tennis Season

Passers Trim Irvington, 7 to 0

Air Attack in Third Period Leads to Victory.

BALTIMORE, Md., Dec. 3 (Spl.).—The Passers, professional football team of Washington, passed their way to a 7-0 victory over Irvington today at Gibbons Field, Irvington, before a small and rain-soaked crowd of about 1,000.

The aerial attack launched in the third quarter by Jimmy Bankhead, quarter back of the visiting eleven, not only spelled defeat for the local champions, but also smashed their record of being unbeaten on their home grounds this season.

Finding it difficult to make gains on line plays, the Passers resorted to the air. Starting the victory drive on their own 25-yard stripe, Bankhead heaved a 35-yard pass to Alenti. Several end runs failed and then another 35-yard pass, Bankhead to Alenti, placed the oval on the host team's 5-yard marker. A center rush resulted in a standstill. On the next play, Milt Berner, full back, skipped off left tackle for the touchdown. Bankhead place-kicked the seventh point.

Ping Pong Court Owners Enthusiastic Over New Venture; Plan District and Intercity Tournaments With New York and Philadelphia Teams.

AN attempt to build up interest in ping pong, and at the same time reap sufficient profit from their efforts to purchase tennis equipment, is being made by five ambitious local youths—the Sherfy twins, Laurence and Raphael; Eddie Black, Bob Lee, and Al Sappington.

The lads, the oldest of whom is 22, are operating a ping pong business in the financial district, an enterprise that is now a month old. On the job from 11 a. m. to 11 p. m. daily, they have earned thus far enough for spending money, but expect to clear a good profit before closing the doors next May.

Five courts have been erected in this musty old second-floor room, and all are constantly in use at night. The ping pong backers are now catering to between 50 and 80 cash customers each day and night. Each patron is charged 15 cents for half an hour of playing.

All Five Proficient.

The Sherfy twins are law students at George Washington University. Black, District ping pong champion, also attends G. W. They play quite a good game of tennis. The Sherfys are adept also at chess and golf.

"It costs money to buy tennis balls and have your racquets restrung," the Sherfys remarked. "We need the dough—and this ping pong business is going to help us a plenty."

Any attempts to charge money for teaching ping pong naturally would brand the five young men professionals—and so they're watching their steps. However, they're glad to offer casual suggestions to embryonic players.

Just the other night when S. E. Keating, formerly of New York, won a special ping pong championship, 100 people jammed every available nook and corner to watch the proceedings.

A series of ping pong tournaments has been planned, as have intercity matches with Philadelphia and New York.

Kansas Group Expels University of Wichita

Emporia, Dec. 3 (AP).—Acting on orders from the North Central Association of College and Secondary Schools, the Central Intercollegiate Conference of Kansas has denied the University of Witchita further part in its sports program.

Bantams Down Mohawks, 27-3

Score Three Touchdowns in Second Period.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Dec. 3 (Spl.).—The Charlotte Bantams scored 20 points in the second quarter to defeat the Washington Mohawks, 27 to 3, here today in a downpour of rain. A crowd of 700 persons saw the game.

The visitors scored their 3 points early in the first period when Paddy Bryne drop-kicked a field goal from the 14-yard line.

Johnny Branch scored the first Bantam goal on a pass from Kesler good for 36 yards. Walden scored shortly after Branch when he skirted end for 32 yards after Branch had just dashed 53 yards. Three passes gave the Bantams their third score.

The final score came late in the last period when June Underwood, center, caught Hicks' fumble before it hit the ground and ran 65 yards for a touchdown.

Phil Delaney, of the Mohawks, was a star of the contest, playing against two hefty centers the entire game without a headgear.

Two-Club Golf Beaver Dam Feature

Mrs. R. E. Kelly, J. P. Strong Take Low Gross Prize; Sasscer Shoots 70.

MRS. R. E. KELLY and J. P. Strong captured first low gross prize in the "two-club" golf tournament at Beaver Dam Country Club yesterday. They carded a total of 103.

According to the rules of the tournament, each golfer was permitted to use any two clubs in the bag, one of which had to be a putter.

Second low gross went to Mrs. D. E. Mattison and R. E. Kelly. They had 108.

Mrs. F. H. Kramer and W. C. Hoffman, with 113-33—80, won first low net prize. There was a two-way tie for second prize between the team of Mrs. W. J. LaBille and Albert Schafer, with 110-25—85, and the team of Mrs. W. A. Johns and L. C. Winters, with 116-31—85. Fourth low net was won by Mrs. Gertrude Strong and R. C. Mitchell, with 112-26—86.

The booby prize went to Mrs. Sherwood Peterson and Clarence Offutt. They had 140 gross.

Several Good Rounds.

Despite the rain, several good rounds of golf were turned in yesterday at Indian Spring.

Leroy Sasscer scored one of the best rounds of his golf career when he shot a 70, one below par, while playing with Elliott Spicer, A. H. Urban and Sam Rice. After taking a 32, three under par, on the first nine, Sasscer failed to maintain his dizzy pace on the stretch.

Tom Moore, club owner, and George Diffenbaugh, pro, broke all even in a nine-hole duel with Roger Peacock and Alex Baumgartner. Both teams had best balls of 32 for the jaunt.

The left-handed ace, Earl McAleer, shot a 73, as he and his partner, Louis Fuchs, won from Capt. K. J. Fielder and Dr. H. L. Smith, 4 and 3. The winners had a best ball of 68.

Cole Gets an Eagle.

Charlie Cole, jr., Kenwood Golf and Country Club champion, scored his third eagle 3 in five weeks over his home course yesterday. Cole holed out a 120-yard mashie niblick shot on the thirteenth, a par 5, measuring 531 yards.

His other two eagles were carved out during the playing of the club championships, both having been scored on the fifth, a par 5, 461-yarder.

Dr. Charlie Cole, sr.; E. S. Shepard, and Dr. R. W. Bolwell played with the younger Cole yesterday.

Cards, Redskins in Tie.

Chicago, Dec. 3. (AP).—The Chicago Cardinals and the Boston Redskins wound up their National Professional Football League schedules today by playing a scoreless tie at Wrigley Field, before a Ladies' Day crowd of 7,000.

The game was thrilling all the way and the strong line-plunging of the heretofore luckless Cardinals proved the surprise of the day. Dundee Stakes Title Friday In Boston

Expected to Beat Callahan; Other Good Fights on Week's Program.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP).—Vince Dundee's first defense of the middleweight title he won by upsetting Lou Brouillard a little over a month ago headlines an unusually good National boxing program this week.

Two other champions appear on the program, both in nontitle fights, and a program at Cleveland tomorrow presents an attractive array of scraps. Maxie Rosenbloom, the light-heavyweight king, who is carrying his curretn tour through the Southwest, encounters Wilson Dunn, of Oklahoma City, in a ten-rounder at Fort Worth, Tex., tomorrow; on Wednesday at Arcadia Garden, Chicago, Freddie Miller, holder of the National Boxing Association's recognition as featherweight champion, faces Paul Dazzo, of Chicago, in another nontitle ten-rounder.

Canzoneri Faces Payne.

The Cleveland program calls for Tony Canzoneri, former lightweight title holder, to face Cecil Payne, of Louisville, in a ten-rounder.

Campus Comment

By Lewis F. Atchison.

AMERICAN football has come to such a pass that the experts can't agree on the 11 outstanding players of the season. Going over the list of all-American teams published over the week-end we find only two players whose selections were unanimous, Jack Buckler, Army's bow-legged half back, and Charley Bernard, towering Michigan center. The rest were scatter shot, hitting one team, missing another.

Irvine Warburton, Southern California's peewee quarter back, was recognized on all but one team, and Fred Crawford, Duke's sterling tackle, missed only two. Beatty Feathers, Tennessee's brilliant half back, batted .500. He made three recognized teams, but was overlooked by the leading press association selectors. Feathers can play on my team every day in the week and twice on Sunday, and I think that anybody who saw him lead the Vols against George Washington will concur in this opinion.

Others Good Timber.

Aaron Rosenberg, Southern California's great guard; Joe Skladany, Pitt's end; Bill Corbus, the Stanford guard, and Francis Wistert, Michigan's tackle, are closer to being universally recognized as all-America timber than any of the others. It would be difficult to go wrong on any of them. But the point is that only Buckler and Bernard exhibited enough talent to win the Nation-wide approval of the dopesters.

Permitting our minds to drift back over the games played this season in Washington and nearby College Park where Maryland's valiants held forth, it is not difficult to single out 11 members of visiting teams who merited consideration when it came time to pick an all-star club. Two, Crawford and Feathers, were honored by the majority of selectors. The remainder—and all received no less than honorable mention—are: Rogers (Duke), and Arlail (Auburn), ends; Mehringer (Kansas), tackle; Burzio (Carnegie Tech), and Chambers (Auburn), guards; Maples (Tennessee), center; Nott (Detroit), quarter back; Hopkins (Mount St. Mary's), left half back, and Lutz (Detroit), full back.

Big, Rugged, Fearless.

The line is big, rugged and absolutely fearless. It could stand up with the best of them. In the back field you have speed, agility and deceptiveness, and above all, durability. Nott's passing, Feathers' kicking, and the ball carrying of Hopkins and Lutz—an deal combination in our humble opinion.

Basket ball bursts into the sports panorama Wednesday when Georgetown opens against Western Maryland at Tech High School. Friday Gallaudet will square off with its alumni at Kendall Green. This Georgetown combination on paper figures to be one of the best ever to wear the blue satin panties at the Hilltop. The old fault, an outstanding center, that seems to dog the footsteps of all Georgetown quintets, however, is still much in evidence.

Coach Fred Mesmer will use Bill Connors at the tap-off position, but Connors is a forward, not a center. To remedy conditions, Mesmer is building an offense whereby his team does not attempt to control the tap-off—that is, unless the center can outjump his opponent, which will not be often with such opposition as the Hoyas will encounter. Unless this handicap proves to be too much of a burden, you can feel safe that Georgetown will rank with the best in the East this winter.

Would Practice.

Crews Finish Track Job At Night

Warm Weather Today Is Expected to Lure Large Crowd.

(By a Staff Correspondent)

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., Dec. 3.—Encouraged by the impetus given toward a highly successful meet by an enthusiastic crowd of 5,000 at yesterday's christening, officials of the Shenandoah Valley Jockey Club pushed work under floodlights tonight in a successful effort to finish a few minor details of construction overlooked in the opening rush.

The running surface of the track was worked throughout the day, and the last tractor chugged off it late this evening after a most intensive grading and going-over that have whipped it into the best possible shape. The concourse in front of the clubhouse and grandstand has been filled in and tightly packed with gravel. All walks have been filled in and final touches have been added to the odds board, stands and clubhouse.

Fire Damage Slight.

Damage caused by the fire, which broke out yesterday after the races, amounted to $250 and was entirely confined to the clubhouse kitchen. All the damage has been repaired and service in the dining room will not be interfered with tomorrow. The origin of the fire has been definitely assigned to an overheated and faultily installed stove.

Continuance of warm weather tomorrow is expected to lure an attendance as large, or larger than that of yesterday, to view the second day's running. Many who were naturally skeptical about the condition of the plant have been convinced that it is really finished and in good working condition.

Well-balanced fields are offered in the seven races carded for tomorrow. The two $500 claiming races on tap have attracted the cream of the crop stabled here. Special trains will continue to operate from Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington direct to the track entrance.

S. S. Giants Triumph.

Silver Spring Giants, Montgomery County 135-pound champions, defeated the Brookland Coal team, runner-up in the Capital City League, 7 to 0 yesterday, at the former's gridiron.

A 60-yard run by Clark, full back, in the last three minutes of the game accounted for the lone touchdown. Osborn kicked the extra point.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

Strange as it seems, one of the most amazing literary forgeries ever perpetrated was by a 17-year-old boy. This boy, William H. Ireland, was the son of an English dealer in rare books and curios. Young Ireland was born in 1777. When he was 17 years old he discovered that he was able to copy old writing with remarkable accuracy. Then, perhaps as a whim, he forged the name of William Shakespeare and showed it to his father, asserting that it was genuine. The father, overjoyed at the "discovery," believed it to be authentic, as did other critics of the day.

Then Ireland went farther in his deception, producing several instruments in Shakespeare's "handwriting." Among them was a love letter to Anne Hathaway. He even copied all of King Lear and a part of Hamlet which he passed off on his unsuspecting father who, in turn, innocently published them as authentic.

The climax of the deception came when Ireland announced that he had come in possession of a hitherto lost work of Shakespeare—a play called "Vortigern." The "lost" play gained acceptance of so many scholars that it was eventually produced at the famous Drury Lane theater. The public, apparently less blind than the literary men, laughed it almost out of the theater. Then came suspicion, and finally a confession from young Ireland.

Ireland spent much of his later life writing various confessions about his celebrated forgeries.

Charles Town Race Track, Dec. 3.

Dear Jim:

L. G. McLoughlin, West Virginia's one-man racing commission, was much in evidence around this course yesterday. He visited the jockey room and told the boys that whatever their records were in other States they were starting with clean slates here. It is understood that he intimated as much to trainers and owners. What, if anything, he told the horses could not be learned. However, the commissioner, a giant of a man, made himself popular wherever he went, even if he did talk while the chartmakers, who demand silence, were doing their stuff on the fourth race. Track officials were accomplishing as much as they could today toward finishing this plant. They were given a setback by last night's fire in the clubhouse, but will be ready for business tomorrow.

BILL.

First Race—Lodorous hasn't been in the money since the spring meeting at Bowie, but displayed keen speed last out and appears ready to take a purse from this kind of a field. Stretch Call will appreciate this 5-furlong test and should be pressing the pace all the way. Big Dipper can hot-foot it and may be third.

Second Race—Triolet's handler's had hoped to win a purse at Bowie and sent the filly after Slipper King and others. She had the worst of the start but came from eleventh to be beaten some 3 lengths for all the money. Clear sailing today would give her a good chance to defeat the favored Just Remember. The latter has the No. 1 post and may find it difficult on the soft track. There was a lot of buzzing at Bowie the last time that Grayback went to the post. He could get nothing among maidens. However, that Bright Knight stamp gives him a chance on this sort of a course.

Third Race—Golden Princess got nothing on the major tracks. Her form shows her partial to soft going and a bear in her class at 6½ furlongs. Not too sternly opposed here. Bohemian Grove will be near the top as far as she goes. Energetic Boy for the rest.

Fourth race—General Lejeune has raced only once since Laurel and then turned in a victory at Bowie. A consistent plater with the early foot necessary for this 5-furlong test. Glorify and Vacillate for the rest. Westy's Junior could be dangerous but will hardly get in action.

Fifth race—Vote seems suited by conditions here and will have much to say in the distribution of the purse. Wahoo drops 10 pounds and is the one to beat. Don Guzman, after the Bowie incident, will be on the spot. I can almost give a money guarantee with this fellow.

Sixth race—Fair Crest drops down several pegs in this race. Has little to beat. Any price is a good one. Do Tell and Kaffa for the other awards.

Seventh race—Muskoday will like the soft going and gave evidence of returning to good form at Pimlico. A little hustling in the first part may find the veteran home first. Rod Rack was never better. Likes the turns and is dangerous. War Banner and Replevin evidently have slipped.

Portner Victor To Face Nebo Or Jadick

JUST to give incentive to two fighters who might otherwise be battling for only the fun of it, and their cut of a small gate, the promoters at Portner's have dangled before the winner of the Bowen-Raymond bout at Portner's tomorrow night a shot at either Johnny Jadick or Pete Nebo. A win over either of these two boxers would mean a great deal to Bowen or Raymond.

Jadick is just about king pin among the welters in the Philadelphia sector, and Nebo ranks supreme down Florida way. Bowen has attained little recognition out of this, his home town, and Raymond is practically unknown outside his birthplace—Baltimore—and the Pittsburgh area.

Scientific Bout Seen.

The ten-round contest between Bowen and Raymond offers little to those who desire blood and thunder slugging for their entertainment, but lovers of the science of the "manly art of self-defense" should find much that is pleasing in the bout. Bowen is a good boxer, who punches not devastatingly, but solidly. Time and time again he has used his boxing skill to chop down harder-punching opponents. Raymond packs little wallop, but plenty of boxing skill.

An 8-round semifinal between Buster Brown and Phil Furr holds much in store for close followers of the ring game. Brown is slipping, and many sharpshooters are wondering just how far he has descended in the fistic scale. Furr, a terrific puncher, may lay him on the canvas for a full count, or, if the one-time leading lightweight contender regains a portion of his old-time form, he may be completely outboxed.

Two Six-Rounders.

Two sixes offer Roy Manley against Tommy Bashara and Young Van opposed to Soldier Scrivenen. Both Bashara and Manley possess terrific shock punches. Bashara is perhaps the better boxer of the two, but his punch lies almost entirely in his right hand. Manley punches well with either hand, but depends upon his southpaw tactics rather than boxing skill to befuddle opponents.

Young Van, who tackles Soldier Van Scrivenen, is taking the first step on the long, long trail back to main events. His trek back to top spots may be halted before it gets well under way if he runs afoul of one of his opponent's looping right handers.

Govt. Court League Delays Entry Closing

Thanksgiving, with its consequent interruption to the efforts of court managers to organize their teams, has caused Government Basket Ball League officials to postpone the deadline for franchise fees from today until Monday, December 18. Prior to entering the fight for the National Federation Trophy, teams must forward a $5 "good faith" disbursement to the secretary, 10 B street southwest.

The modern new gymnasium and athletic building erected during the summer at Bolling Field is expected to be the site of all Government games this winter. Action will take place on Tuesdays and Sundays.

Leg Hurt May Keep Newman From Alleys Rest of Season

BOWLING in Washington may lose one of its foremost performers in "Dutch" Newman. A leg ailment which forced the star of the Occidental team to the sidelines two weeks ago may keep him there for the remainder of the 1933-34 season.

Last week the District League had a holiday lay-off. It was a timely reprieve for Newman. He had high hopes of getting back for this week's engagement, but his ailing limb is still a severe handicap.

A saddened man is Fred Buchholz. With his Occidental club in the thick of a close pennant race and the Connecticut blue ribbon match, headline intercity team attraction of the season, in the offing, he is in dire need of Newman's services.

A topnotcher for years, Newman never until last year made any serious effort to bring his rolling to national prominence. He finished the 1932-33 season with a District record average of 127, scored in the National Capital League. Paired with Joe Harrison, he won the At-

Marlboro vs. German-American.

AN upset marked yesterday's play in the Capital City Soccer League when Rockville was beaten, 2 to 1, by the Senators, the winners making their season's debut under league auspices. Incidentally, it was Rockville's first defeat of the season.

The game, played on the Monument field, was very fast and neither team had scored at the intermission, principally because of the work of Burdette in the Rosedale goal. In the second half, Cosh, Hook, Koennel and Harding were responsible for their team being frequently around Jones, and on the run of the play, the Senators were worthy winners. Hershberger and Heim were outstanding for Rockville.

British Team Wins.

British United managed to break into the winning column again, scoring twice over German-American in the last 5 minutes of play. The latter took the lead shortly after resumption—there being no scoring in the first half—a well-placed corner by Bauer being assisted into the net by McLaren, but Gowans soon evened up things and for 30 minutes it was a hammer-and-tongs affair, with possibly the British having a shade the better of it. With 5 minutes to go, Malloch cleverly beat both home backs and scored, and a minute later Knight notched his team's last goal from close in.

Gaithersburg held the league leaders to a 1-1 tie at the half, but experience told later, and Mitchell's men ran wild. Brandywine also put up a nice fight against the more seasoned Marlboro eleven, holding the latter to a 2-1 count at the interval. The losers played with only ten men throughout.

ROSEDALE took the lead in the Recreation League as the result of a victory over the Miller Furniture team, 3 to 2, in a hard-fought game on the Monument field yesterday. The Millers took an early lead, Donovan's fast shot backing Henderson over his goal line with the ball. Looseness on the part of the Miller backs accounted largely for Rosedale's two goals in the latter part of the game, but Nau equalized the score midway through the second half and for a time it looked as if the teams would remain tied. Pressure on the Miller goal resulted in a penalty kick and Simonds beat Gorin with a high drive to end the scoring.

It was a cleanly played contest between two equally matched teams which was full of interest every minute, the ball traveling from end to end without cessation.

Takoma Park went into a tie for fourth place by defeating Virginia Avenue. This was another good game, both teams showing considerable improvement over their early season playing.

Tributes Paid To Dr. Finlay's Work in Cuba

Expressing the gratitude of the Cuban government for the contribution made in its history by Dr. Carlos Finlay, the Cuban Ambassador, Senor Dr. Manuel Marquez Sterling, last night paid tribute to Dr. Finlay, discoverer of the transmission of yellow fever by mosquitoes, at a memorial meeting held in the Cuban Embassy by the Washington Chapter of the Pan-American Medical Association.

Commemorating the centennial of the birth of Dr. Finlay, the Cuban Ambassador cited the birth of the great physician as the means of contributing "an abundant source of welfare for our hemisphere, liberating it from the most cruel of calamities, yellow fever, rendering it capable at the same time, to attain the achievements of liberty."

He recalled that it was in "the remarkable city of Washington, where an international health conference was in session on February 8, 1881, that Finlay made the announcement to the world of his famous theory, which 18 years after, became confirmed.

Tribute From Army.

Col. Roger Brooke paid a tribute from the Army Medical Department. Senor Don Luis M. de Irujo, charge d'affaires of the Spanish Embassy; Dr. L. O. Howard, Brig. Gen. J. R. Kean, Dr. Victor Alfaro, Dr. John O. McReynolds, president of the Pan-American Medical Association, and George H. Finlay, a son of the late Dr. Finlay, and Surgeon Gen. Hugh S. Cumming, president of the chapter, were among the speakers.

Gen. Kean spoke of his personal memories of Dr. Finlay and told of his work in the yellow fever epidemic of 1900 in Panama. Dr. Alfaro spoke of Dr. Finlay's discovery in its relation to the building of the Panama Canal which took a heavy toll in lives, numbering 22,000 of the French alone.

Dr. McReynolds brought greetings from 24 countries of the Pan-American Medical Association and described the work of Dr. Finlay as that of a pioneer. Presiding over the meeting attended by more than 75 medical men and members of South American embassies, Gen. Cumming said it was not so generally well known that Dr. Finlay took a large part in the forming of the Pan-American Sanitary Conference, which has done much to promote health and fellowship throughout the Western continent.

Appreciation From Son.

George H. Finlay, a New York civil engineer, closed the meeting with a few remarks about his father. He voiced the appreciation of his family at the high tributes paid to his memory.

Court Order Arouses Cuba

Government May Resist Civil Writ to Free 15 Rebels.

Havana, Dec. 3 (AP).—Possibility of political repercussions to a habeas corpus writ, ordering release of 15 political prisoners, was foreseen here tonight by students of Cuban affairs, who believed the order might meet with opposition in high circles.

The order, issued in a civil tribunal, called upon Col. Fulgencio Batista, chief of the army general staff, to release the prisoners who were accused of participating in the revolution of November 8 and 9. One soldier is included.

There was much speculation whether Col. Batista would comply with the order. A hearing on the writ was scheduled for early this week.

The government, apparently fearing some sort of military move by its opposition, has increased the number of soldiers on patrol duty in Havana.

Policeman Killed By Theft Suspect

Falls Near Spot Where Bandit Shot Brother.

Oklahoma City, Dec. 3 (AP).—Douglas Gates, scout car patrolman, was killed today in a revolver fight with a motor car theft suspect a few blocks from where his brother, J. D. Gates, also an officer, was slain by a holdup man, March 22, 1930.

Cab Drivers Beaten In Philadelphia Strike

Philadelphia, Dec. 3 (AP).—Violence flared again today in the strike of taxicab drivers, with five cabs being wrecked and their drivers badly beaten.

Milk bottles and bricks were hurled through windows of other cabs. Near Rittenhouse Square, police and a group of men they described as strikers battled for 10 minutes before six were arrested.

NRA Flag Confuses Ships.

New York, Dec. 9 (AP).—The NRA flag atop the Weather Bureau in lower Manhattan is hauled down nowadays whenever it is necessary to hoist a storm warning. Too many mariners inbound for the first time thought the blue and red flag was some new kind of weather signal.

Rockville Walton League Stocks Preserve With Catch From Canal.

A fisherman's paradise is being created at Seneca, Md., by the Rockville (Md.) Chapter of the Izaak Walton League.

The upper and lower levels of the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal have been seined for two weeks and the game fish obtained placed in an 8-mile fish preserve extending from Seneca to Whites' Ferry.

Already more than 2,000 game fish, including bass, crappie, sun perch and bream, have been placed in this preserve. Next July when the fishing season opens, anglers will be able to catch their quota there.

It will not be necessary to belong to the Izaak Walton League to fish in this preserve; the required county or State fishing license will be the only requisite.

The league also has stocked a pond near Cabin John, Md., with 600 brown trout as an experiment to ascertain the practicability of stocking streams in the county.

Convicts Wreck Self-Starting Gallows; Gas Takes Its Place

Antiquated Death Device Built on Plans Given by Prisoner.

Denver, Dec. 3 (AP).—A crew of convicts swarmed into the death chamber at Colorado Prison today and dismantled the antiquated "self-starting" hanging machine.

Back in 1890 prison authorities decided they wished to evade the responsibility of pressing a button or other apparatus which would cause a man to be hanged. A convict, whose name is not known, suggested the apparatus by which a condemned man would hang himself.

It consisted of a platform, a system of weights and ropes and a noose. When the condemned man stepped upon the platform his weight released a trigger which in turn pulled a plug from a tank filled with water.

When the water receded to a certain point, it pulled another trigger which released a 500-pound weight attached to one end of the rope. Thus the condemned man was jerked into the air and hanged. All the prison officials were called upon to do was adjust the noose before the man stepped upon the platform.

Walter Jones, of Flint, Mich., was the last of 45 persons hanged on the machine. He was executed Friday night.

Yule Play Here For Ninth Time

Local Talent Will Present "The Other Wise Man" Dec. 27, 28, 29.

Dr. Henry Van Dyke's immortal legend of "The Other Wise Man," will be dramatized for the ninth consecutive season, December 27, 28 and 29, at 8:30 p. m., in the Luther Place Memorial Church. Tentative arrangements have been made for a children's matinee Saturday, December 30.

First produced here in 1925, by Bess Davis Schreiner, the spectacle has been presented to thousands every year since. More than 100 persons chosen from drama groups and church congregations take part in this play each Christmas.

The Chapel Players of Washington, who have sponsored the play each year, again will supervise the production.

Miss Schreiner is assembling the 1933 cast. Preliminary rehearsals will be held tomorrow and Friday at 7:30 p. m., at the Luther Place Church.

Wine Blast

Chicago Pair Finds Oven No Place for Jug.

Chicago, Dec. 3 (U.P.).—With only two days to go until all liquors become legal again, Arthur Lencioni and his wife learned today that there is one thing that shouldn't be done with a jug of wine.

Lencioni, 35, and his wife, Rose, drew a gallon of wine from a keg and planned to drink part of it with their dinner. The wine seemed too cold, however, and they decided to warm it.

The oven of their stove was warm, so they put the jug of wine in the oven. A few minutes later the jug exploded. It blew the stove to pieces. Lencioni and his wife, both suffering severe face burns, were taken to St. Anne's Hospital.

Reich Pastors Split on Rites

Uniform Service Orders Flatly Disobeyed As Coercive.

Berlin, Dec. 3 (AP).—The uniform church service which Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller tried to make obligatory in the Protestant Churches of Germany proved another stumbling block today in the widespread religious controversy which, despite the appointment of a "provisional cabinet," is not yet settled.

Pastors of the Emergency Federation, headed by the Rev. Martin Niemoeller flatly disobeyed orders of the Reichsbishop to hold the uniform service, which they regarded as resembling "a military drill."

Bishop Mueller's "missionary office," in order to make his service a success, had prescribed a uniform text for all churches and had published an appeal "to heads of families" to "Unite Under God's Word."

County Welfare Board Will Discuss Projects

Era of Church Cooperation Declared Here

A new day of church cooperation has dawned, Dr. Samuel McCrea Cavert, general secretary of the Federal Council of Churches, said in a statement yesterday. The statement was prepared to be sent to the special meeting of the council here Wednesday and Thursday. President Roosevelt will address the meeting Wednesday night.

"Division is giving way to world-wide cooperation," Dr. Cavert said, in discussing the 25-year history of the council. The council serves 25 communions with 22,000,000 members.

"The old era of divisive, unrelated, competitive denominations is definitely passing," he continued. "When the Federal Council came into being in 1908 it was not just another of many denominational organizations. It was rather the denominations themselves consciously entering into a new relationship. The council is a federation of existing forces, not a superorganization. It conserves liberty and diversity—according to the Protestant genius—at the same time that it secures a needed unity of action.

"A much greater cooperation than has yet come into existence is still demanded, but the current is now moving clearly in the direction of a larger unity.

"Twenty-five years ago there was little teamwork among denominations. There was no national body through which they could cooperate in their many common tasks. Today 25 denominations are working closely together in the Federal Council. The principle of regular conference and of organized cooperation is now firmly established."

Year of Honesty Asked by Pastor

Dean Gates Urges Flock to "Pay Your Bills."

New York, Dec. 3 (AP).—Advice to "pay your bills and don't buy things you can not pay for" was given a congregation in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine today by Dean Milo H. Gates in a sermon on honesty.

"I want to ask you to think of all that could be done," Dean Gates said, "all that would be accomplished in a year if we could have for one year honesty—just that old-fashioned, common virtue of honesty.

"It is within the power of every single one of us to have common honesty during the next year, and I am therefore preaching this kind of a sermon on this Advent Sunday."

Woods Searched For Missing Pair

5,000 Fail to Find Trace; Couple Feared Slain.

Wichita, Kans., Dec. 3 (AP).—Darkness tonight halted a day-long search over three southern Kansas counties for a trace of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pritchard, Wichita couple, missing since November 23, and believed by officers to have been slain.

Police estimated 5,000 persons participated in the hunt about hedgerows, culverts, timber, and stream beds of Sumner, Cowley, and Chautauqua Counties. American Legion members assisted.

Pritchard's car, bloodstained and bullet-marked, was found abandoned near Depew, Okla., last week.

Seven Rescued at Sea After Schooner Sinks

Gloucester, Mass., Dec. 3 (AP).—The sinking of the fishing schooner Colonel Lindbergh and the rescue on high seas of her crew of seven became known tonight with the arrival here of the fishing vessel Annie and Mary, which brought the survivors ashore.

The Colonel Lindbergh sank within nine minutes. She was of about 80 tons and 75 feet in length.

Thos. F. Cadwalader's Life Ended by Bullet

Norristown, Pa., Dec. 3 (AP).—Thomas F. Cadwalader, 58, former Baltimore and Philadelphia attorney, was found dead from a bullet wound in the head in his home near here today. Coroner Ronald T. Dettre said he committed suicide.

The body was found by a maid who heard the shot.

Predicts Americans Soon Will Be Drinking in European Cafe Style.

The repeal of prohibition won't even revive "Sweet Adeline" in the opinion of John McCormack, Irish tenor.

No longer will waiters gather and sing barroom ballads while patrons shed tears while sipping their drinks, for the saloon and all of its convivial atmosphere are dead, he believes.

"I believe the American people have outgrown the saloon and all that went with it," he told newspapermen at the Willard Hotel last night. But he smiled reminiscently as he spoke.

Liquor drinking after repeal will become temperate, he predicted, and will follow more closely the cafe style of Europe.

Mr. McCormack, while admitting that he likes an occasional cocktail and fine wines, said he had never been in a speakeasy.

"And now, I guess I never will," he added.

Radio Held Blow to Singers.

Turning to radio, the popular concert singer predicted that the day is near at hand when people will no longer pay to hear music sung or played.

"I'm glad I got my start some 20 years before radio appeared," he said. "It's going to be tough on these newcomers."

While enthusiastic over his own experience with radio, he lamented that radio singers, such as crooners, go on the air with such little background and training. Too much is left to the mechanical twisting of volume control, he observed.

Starting his thirtieth year as a concert singer, Mr. McCormack declared he wouldn't retire until the public said, in the words of "The Last Roundup," "Get along, little dogie get along."

Sings Here Tonight.

He recalled that he made his first appearance in Washington just 12 years ago in the Philadelphia-Chicago Grand Opera Company, and that President Taft was in the audience at the time. In all he has sung before five Presidents—Theodore Roosevelt, Taft, Harding, Coolidge and Franklin D. Roosevelt, the latter just after his inauguration.

Mr. McCormack is in Washington to sing tonight in Constitution Hall at a benefit performance staged for the St. Vincent de Paul Society, Catholic charity organization.

2d Scottsboro Trial Near End

Decatur, Ala., Dec. 3 (AP).—The State of Alabama tomorrow will conclude its case against Clarence Norris, second of the seven Negro Scottsboro case defendants for whom the death penalty is asked in connection with an alleged attack on two white women.

Norris was brought to trial on a charge of attacking Mrs. Victoria Price, Huntsville mill worker, who the State alleges was attacked with Ruby Bates by a group of Negroes aboard a Southern Railway freight train in Jackson County March 25, 1931. The trials are being held here under a change of venue.

On adjournment of court yesterday afternoon, the State had only two more witnesses to offer, Orvel Gilley, the "wandering poet" of Albertville, Ala., and Luther Morris, a Jackson County farmer.

Gilley testified in the trial of Heywood Patterson, convicted in the case and his punishment fixed at death for a third time last Friday, that he witnessed, the attacks.

Crude Oil Stocks Of Refiners Drop

Bureau of Mines Reports Figures for October.

Crude oil stocks at refineries declined 1,521,000 barrels in October, according to the Associated Press.

The United States Bureau of Mines reported total October receipts at refineries were 74,335,000 barrels, daily average of 2,399,000. Daily average crude runs to stills were 2,434,000, a decline of 77,000, or 3 per cent below September. Crude stocks at refineries were 63,025,000, October 31, compared with 64,546,000 barrels on October 1.

Total deliveries of domestic crude to refineries were 72,429,000 barrels, a daily average of 2,337,000. Compared with September, this indicates a decline in daily average domestic deliveries of 5 per cent.

First Lady to Get Yule Tree From New Hampshire by Air

Girl Scouts Find Perfect Fir and Put Their Tag on It.

Lancaster, N. H., Dec. 3 (AP).—A million other New Hampshire Christmas trees are speeding to all parts of the country on everyday railroad cars, but a 6-foot fir that has yet to feel the ax's edge will be flown by airplane to gladden the heart of the First Lady of the Land.

Four members of the White Mountain Troop of Girl Scouts first conceived the idea when Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was a summer visitor here several months ago.

They confided in C. S. Herr, Coos County Farm Bureau agent, and with his help picked what all agreed was the perfect tree. Now it bears a big red tag with bright red ribbon which reads, "Mrs. Roosevelt, White House, Washington, D. C.," to guard against its accidental felling by the busy woodsmen.

Some time next week the fir will be escorted by the four girls to Portland, Me., where other Girl Scouts will see it safely on a plane for Washington.

Challenge Sure For All-White Crawford Jury

Leesburg, Va., Dec. 3 (Spl.).—Because no colored persons are on the list of the 104 men drawn for jury service in the case of George Crawford, colored, former convict, it is expected that Charles Houston, counsel for Crawford, will challenge the entire array of veniremen from which the trial jury will be taken.

Crawford is charged with killing Mrs. Agnes Boeing Ilsley, wealthy Middleburg sportswoman, and her maid, Mrs. Mina Buckner, January 12, 1932.

The same issue—that Negroes are excluded from jury service in Loudoun County because of their race and color—is expected to be raised at the trial here as was raised at the hearing before Judge James L. McLemore when counsel vainly sought to quash the indictment against Crawford.

The trial, set for December 12 in Loudoun County Circuit Court, may be delayed until a new group of jurors, including Negroes, can be obtained if Houston wins his challenge. He explained that if his demand should be denied he would take the issue to the Supreme Court in case of conviction. The case, which has gained Nation-wide attention, is expected to attract a large crowd to the trial.

Commonwealth's Attorney John Galleher will be assisted in the prosecution by Senator Cecil Connor and Capt. Frank Wray, Commonwealth's attorney of Clarke County.

Bridge Players Balk at 'Widow'

"Most Absurd," Says Sims, Hinting Culbertson Might Play "500."

Cincinnati, Dec. 3 (AP).—The suggestion of Ely Culbertson that a "widow" be introduced into contract bridge was tossed out the window today by experts assembling for the National Championships of the American Bridge League, which opens tomorrow.

Culbertson suggested that each player should be dealt 12 cards and the "widow" should contain four cards, the winner of the auction selecting one card from the four and giving one to each of the other players.

"Most absurd" was the comment of P. Hal Sims.

Sims said lovers of bridge "should resent Culbertson's assertion that a widow would add the zest of uncertainty and promote skillful play by the declarer."

"Contract bridge," he said, "is considered the most skillfull of all card games, and the uncertainty of results is proved by widely varying scores on the same hands in duplicate tournaments. Let those players, who desire a widow stick to five hundred, pinochle and euchre."

Lawrence Norton Gale, 38 years old, of Rosaryville, Prince Georges County, Md., was fatally hurt yesterday on the Crain highway about a mile and a half north of Central avenue.

Gale apparently fell asleep and his automobile, in which he was traveling alone, crashed into a culvert. He was found about 5:30 a. m. by Raymond and Floyd Lent, who were delivering a Washington newspapers. It was estimated he had been there at least two hours.

Mrs. Margaret P. Discher, of 2348 Lauretta avenue, Baltimore, sister of Gale, said he attended a treasure hunt in Baltimore Saturday night and had left that city for Rosaryville at 2:30 a. m.

Was Sales Manager.

Judge Altumus was informed that Gale, who was unmarried, was sales manager of a notebook company with offices in Baltimore, with whom he had been employed for 12 years. He had lived for the last five years with Mr. and Mrs. William Hollander at Rosaryville.

Gale's parents are dead. He was a native of Galesville, Kent County, Md., and besides Mrs. Discher leaves another sister in Baltimore.

The body, now at Gasch's undertaking parlors in Hyattsville, will be sent to Baltimore today.

Trade Decline Flattens Out, Bank Report

National City Declares Change Is "Heartening" After Long Slump.

New York, Dec. 3 (AP).—The National City Bank says the decline in trade and industrial operations which has been under way since July showed signs of flattening out in November and that some of the accepted measures of business activity held their ground or advanced.

"This is a heartening change after four months of steady recession," the bank says in its review of business, "and indicates that in some cases at least the necessary adjustment of overstimulated industries to the going rate of consumption is being completed."

The bank says the new gold-buying operations of the Government "have overshadowed all other developments in the financial situation" and "provoked a storm of controversy, with repercussions extending into practically all markets."

Tells of Apprehension.

"Instituted for the purpose of raising commodity prices," the Review says, "the new departure from tested monetary practice represents an experiment in price control which is regarded with satisfaction by those who believe that prices can be controlled by monetary means, and with deep apprehension by others who deny that the present low prices are due to monetary causes."

In a discussion of debtors and creditors, the bank says governments, corporations and credit institutions are the largest debtors in the country and individuals are the largest creditors. The Federal, State and local government debt is estimated by the bank to total $42,000,000,000 against the combined indebtedness at the beginning of the year of $134,000,000,000.

Farm Mortgages Small Part.

The bank says farm mortgage debts amount to 6.7 per cent of the total; urban mortgage debts, 21.7; railroad debts, 11.3; public utility debts, 8.9; industrial debts, 8.2; financial debts, 17.3; Federal debt, 11.2, and State and local debts, 14.7.

"If any generalizations about debtors and creditors are possible," the bank says, "it is probably true that in terms of dollars the majority of debtors are corporations and the majority of creditors are individuals. The great bulk of investments represent individual savings, averaging small sums."

Securities Act Revision

Present Measure Goes Beyond Needs of a Liberal Program

By Ralph West Robey.

Reports that President Roosevelt wants the securities act examined with a view to modifications are rather too indefinite to be the basis for much hope. Nevertheless, inasmuch as this is the first time that there has been even so much as an intimation that such revision would have the support of the Administration one perhaps is justified in feeling a little encouragement. Heretofore the gossip out of the White House has been that there was no occasion for an overhauling of this measure because the lack of security issues was not at all the result of its provisions, but because the investment bankers simply were opposing the policies of the Administration.

Some of the Washington reports have gone even considerably further than this. On several occasions it has been said the Administration was no longer interested in having additional issues for private investment. At times this point of view has been explained as reflecting a desire on the part of Government to replace private investors and make all concerns in need of additional long-term capital look to the Federal Government for it. At other times the explanation has been that the President was convinced we already are overbuilt in this country and whether there is any additional private investment at this time is of little importance insofar as recovery and meeting the current problems are concerned.

Stories Have Some Basis, But Have Been Exaggerated.

Such stories, by and large, do not get started, or at least do not attain wide circulation, unless there is some basis for them. Frequently, however, by the time they have been passed along from one person to another for a few days they get exaggerated beyond all reason. This appears to have been true in the case of these reports about the attitude of the Administration on the necessity of new capital investment and upon the desirability of this being provided by the Government rather than privates investors.

Thus it is quite obvious that some members of the Administration quite definitely are of the opinion that the Government gradually should take over a large and larger share of American business. Within the ranks of the Administration, in fact, one can find individuals that by any reasonable definition must be classed as Socialists. Others perhaps more properly would be termed as favoring only State capitalism. Both groups, however, look with favor upon an extension of Government ownership and management in activities that heretofore have been privately owned.

There also are several members of the Administration that apparently are convinced the country's productive equipment was, and is, overextended. The President himself virtually has said this once or twice. This group, of course, finds it impossible to get greatly aroused over the drying-up of the continued flow of private long-term funds into an extension of our capital equipment. Rather, it is its conviction that we should limit production and develop consumption ability through pouring funds into the hands of the public in some manner that will not result in plant expansion.

The Two Points of View Are Not Contradictory.

Actually, of course, these two points of view are not mutually exclusive. Many people hold both of them. The result is, especially when one adds the much talked of belief that the old laissez-faire philosophy is finished, that it is easy to draw the conclusion the present Administration is opposed to any further private investment.

It seems to me, nevertheless, that this is not the case. Rather, insofar as I see, all the Administration as a whole wants is to prevent a repetition of some of the practices that were common before 1929. I think that this was the sole purpose of the securities act as it was passed and I think it will be the dominating idea in a revision of the act. Further, in view of the record in the years before the depression, I do not see how one can question that this is a laudable purpose. To enjoy the benefits of private investment it certainly is not necessary to have a complete absence of governmental supervision and the carrying on of the business of underwriting and selling of securities without any regulation for the protection of investors.

At the same time it is undesirable to go so far in the regulation and imposition of penalties that investment bankers can not afford to accept the responsibility of issuing any private securities. This was the error made in the securities act passed last spring. When regulation goes to this point it no longer deserves to be classed as part of a liberal program. Unless the Administration cares more for following the ideas of its inexperienced professors than it does for a smooth-working financial system, accordingly, the act should be overhauled.

Black on Yellow Background Found Best for Danger Sign

Federal Scientists Study Plan to Cut Road Accidents.

Can you read a "Stop" or "Curve" warning at 200 feet in less than one second? Yes, if it has six-inch letters on a yellow background, say Federal scientists, who have found that this color combination is the best for highway warning signals.

To standardize road signs for Nation-wide use and learn what kinds were most easily and quickly read by drivers, scientific tests have just been completed at the Bureau of Standards in cooperation with the Bureau of Public Roads.

"Federal yellow," which is close to the yellow of a lemon, is the best "eye-arresting" color for general use, they found. It also is most conspicuous against all natural and artificial backgrounds.

Would Bar Advertising Use.

They suggest this distinctive shade might be made illegal for use in roadside advertisements or any signs except official warnings, making doubly sure that motorists would at once recognize this hue as a warning.

At 200 feet, within which a car traveling at legal speed can be stopped, 6-inch black letters with a stroke 1-inch wide on a "Federal yellow" background were read in eight-tenths of a second by 90 to 100 per cent of those undergoing tests, when three-quarter inch reflecting buttons were attached to the letters to make them luminous at night. When such a sign was illuminated at night only by the motor headlights, only 70 per cent of the observers read it correctly in the required time.

121 Persons Tested.

In daylight almost all observers could read the sign at 200 feet in the required time, but at 350 feet less than 80 per cent could do so.

Three-quarter inch reflecting buttons set with their centers 1 inch apart decrease the readability of signs only slightly by day, it was found.

They made 7,710 observations of different combinations of colors at different distances from the signs and with various amounts of time allowed for observing.

Tests were made at all seasons of the year and under varying weather conditions.

State Support Of Schools Held Most Efficient

The State as a unit for control and support of schools has been found economical, while the township or smaller unit has proved wasteful, the Federal Office of Education revealed yesterday.

In a pamphlet published by the Federal Office, "Larger Units for Educational Administration," by Timon Covert, it was stated that while the State plan for financing schools is most efficient, evidence is available indicating the county is an efficient unit for school revenue.

Twelve States provide for administration of all or part of their public schools on a county-wide basis, while multiplicity of units within a county has been found wasteful in Los Angeles County, California; Lake County, Indiana, and in the counties of Oklahoma and New Jersey, is shown.

A report on the cost of government in Illinois points out that "in 102 counties there exist 1,443 civil townships. Each of these townships is a separate and independent tax-levying unit of government and elects one or more supervisors, a town clerk and an assesor." Counties under such an organization are spending twice as much per capita as counties under the county-unit organization, it was reported.

The township unit for school administration is used in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Indiana and six other States.

Trade Strikes Level Between High and Low

Volume Is Still Holding Above 1932; Declines Flatten Out.

New York, Dec. 3 (AP).—Business and industry have reached the final month of 1933 with most statistical indices indicating a level of activity about half way between the year's low reached in March, and the peak registered in July.

But most indicators show a volume substantially above December of 1932, and the statistics of the past three weeks indicate that the decline from the July peak has finally flattened out. In fact, the trend has shown an inclination to turn upward.

High hopes have therefore been engendered that the usual December slump in industrial activity will be slight this year.

Autos May Expand.

With the start of manufacture of 1934 models, automobile production is expected to expand over the remainder of the year, and with the renewed automotive demand for steel, together with buying for public works and for the railroads, the steel industry would not be surprised if its volume began to expand before the end of the year, although usually it does not quicken until January. Ingot output has held at an almost stationary rate during the past three weeks, somewhat under 30 per cent of capacity.

Retail trade, after expanding sharply to new highs for the season, under the impetus of favorable shopping weather, showed a little inclination to level off during the past week, according to the Review of Dun & Bradstreet, which said: "While the slowing down of consumer demand has not been pronounced, last week's good showing was not held in many centers. * * *.

"The best reports were received from the agricultural and industrial sections, where those employed by the program of the Civil Works Administration received their first pay envelopes last Saturday (November 25)."

Upturn Is Not Held.

The upturn in automobile production of the preceding week was not held, as some producers shut down for inventories, but Cram's survey said dealers' stocks of both new and used cars were extremely low, real shortages developing in some instances, the trade felt that the market was, therefore, in a healthy condition to receive the new models which are beginning to appear.

The freight car loadings and electric power production reports for the week ended November 25 showed moderate recessions from the previous week. Comparisons with last year, however, were distorted by the fact that Thanksgiving fell in that week in 1932, and came a week later this year.

Power production was placed by the Edison Institute at 1,807,546,000 kilowatt hours, against 1,617,249,000 in the previous week, and 1,475,268,000 in the like week of 1932. Freight car loadings declined 17,942 or about 3 per cent from the previous week, but were nearly 18 per cent over the like week of last year, since it included the holiday.

Sales for Holidays.

With the passing of Thanksgiving, Christmas trade is now beginning, and merchants in most parts of the country are anticipating a volume substantially above last year. Some report that already it is apparent that more emphasis is being placed by the consumer on quality than last year, when prices seemed to be almost the sole consideration.

The coming of prohibition repeal in many States this week is also expected to have its effect upon business, providing renewed impetus to sales of store and restaurant fittings, glassware, and other lines, as well as tending to stimulate transportation business generally, including rail and truck.

Copper-Lead Prices Ease; Tin Is Steady

New York, Dec. 3 (AP).—Lead and copper eased this week while other nonferrous metals ruled relatively steady. Reductions of $5 per ton, New York basis, in lead reflected an indifferent demand and increased selling presure in some quarters.

Consumers, who still are said to have part of their December needs to fill, were cautious pending stability of prices and awaiting improved demand for finished products.

Smelters reduced electrolytic copper quotations ¼ cent per pound in the week, following a period of stagnant domestic demand, as well as in sympathy with lower export prices.

Lower Basis Effect.

The lower basis of 8 cents, Connecticut Valley, however, failed to attract improved consumer buying, although a fair demand from European sources was said to continue, especially at times when foreign exchange fluctuations made dollar prices relatively more attractive.

Tin ruled comparatively steady as sterling price changes ruled in a narrower range. These steadier conditions attracted fair consumer buying.

Tin-plate mill operations were expected to be sustained to the end of the year in order to complete shipments on old contracts prior to first-quarter price advances. End-November trade statistics revealed a further reduction in world visible supplies.

Zinc Is Unchanged.

Zinc remained unchanged in a quiet market, but a firm undertone still characterized this metal as mine curtailment in the Joplin district continued for the second week and ore output was sharply cut. Dullness of demand for galvanized products, however, was said to have caused buyers to withhold metal purchases.

Antimony was quiet but steady, with business still on a restricted basis.

Steel production schedules were being maintained at a steady basis on miscellaneous buying and moderate rail releases. The trade anticipates that activity during December will be dependent upon resumption of automobile production and public works projects. Some additional price advances for the first quarter were announced, although bars, shapes, plates and some finishes of sheets were unchanged. Advances in pig iron have been confined to eastern Pennsylvania and New England.

Insurance Firm Reelects Head

Frederick Mutual Had Only 2 Losses in Year.

Winchester, Va., Dec. 3 (Spl.).—W. Erle Edwards, Winchester attorney, was reelected president of the Frederick Mutual Fire Insurance Co., at a meeting of stockholders and directors here today.

Other officers named included Harry L. McCann, vice-president; Lester Daily, secretary-treasurer, and Mr. Edwards, Mr. McCann, F. B. Cadwallader, C. E. Cougill, John R. McKeever, V. O. Baker, L. H. Ramey, M. J. Pease, R. A. Cooper, and J. M. McAboy, directors.

During the fiscal year since December 1, 1932, only two losses, totaling $52,50, were incurred, officers reported. The company now has $576,122.29 insurance in force on property valued at $996,173.26.

If the Dog Bites People Every Day, Why Muzzle Him Only on Fridays?

By Robert Quillen

North Carolina police arrested a man who carried a knocked-down machine gun in a suit case. The man gave bond and was released.

The following day three men mounted a machine gun in the street, held up a mail truck and escaped with bags containing $100,000 in currency.

In New York a man attacked and killed a little girl. After his arrest, reporters discovered that he had previously molested several small girls and in each instance had escaped with little or no punishment.

Police records in all parts of the country establish the fact that the boldest and most heinous crimes are committed by habitual criminals—escaped convicts, men on parole or under bond, or men who have served prison terms for major crimes.

Why are such men permitted at large when liberty in their case is equivalent to a license to prey on the public?

Crime has kept pace with modern invention, but our system of jurisprudence is hobbled and handicapped by precedent.

How can the law determine that the effective punishment for a given crime is 5 years instead of 2 or 10 or 20?

The present system makes equal justice impossible of attainment. It punishes the crime instead of the criminal.

No two men, having committed the same crime, deserve exactly the same degree o. punishment. One may be an innocent, trapped by temptation in a moment of weakness, and the other a vicious rebel born to crime.

If the object of the law is to protect society, the punishment for any offense should be the amount required to afford protection—neither less nor more.

In one instance it might be no more than a warning; in another it might be life imprisonment.

Is the law fulfilling its purpose when it protects society from an outlaw part of the time?

The confirmed and habitual drunkard should be imprisoned for life, regardless of the nature of his latest crime—not because of what he has done, but to protect society from one who is determined to make war upon it so long as he remains at liberty.

No Scarlet Nails.

'Tis little that I know of style,
Nor is it mine to care
What fashion comes to reign awhile,
What hats the wife must wear.
Let skirts be short or skirts be long,
I will not open my lips
To say what I deem right or wrong.
I'll stand for all
That may befall,
But scarlet finger tips!

I'll let my Nellie dress her hair
Whatever way she will
If earrings she's inclined to wear
I'll patiently be still.
I've shown to her through many years
A love that never fails,
But there'll be hot words in her ears
The day she comes
With painted thumbs.
And scarlet finger nails.

With woman's love for stylish things
To quarrel isn't wise.
I've learned such wrangling only brings
The teardrops to her eyes.
So silently I let her choose
Her dresses, hats and veils,
But absolutely I refuse
On either hand
Of hers to stand
For scarlet finger nails!

Stocks Hold Almost Unchanged Through Week of Dull Trading

Transfers Total Only 4,611,424 Shares, or About Half of Previous Period; Some Encouragement Develops in Business Outlook.

Although the yellow metal was lifted 25 cents an ounce to $34.01, the most substantial advance in more than a fortnight, the dollar failed to decline in the foreign exchange market, and commodity prices on the whole made virtually no progress.

Rumors of an impending stabilization of the dollar with the sterling bloc, although greeted with laughter by President Roosevelt, undoubtedly had an influence in keeping the dollar from declining further, foreign exchange dealers said, for speculators seemed anxious to cover short positions in dollars.

Gold Sponsors Undismayed.

Proponents of the gold control theory were undismayed by the failure of exchange rates or commodity prices to respond, explaining that an immediate adjustment of prices to the gold value was not to be expected. Furthermore, it was reiterated that gold control was but one of a number of measures adopted by the Administration to lift commodity prices.

Recent nervousness over the Government's credit appeared largely to have vanished, and fluctuations in Federal securities narrowed.

Silver was a little stronger, along with further discussions of possible action at the forthcoming session of Congress to stabilize the metal. It showed a net gain for the week of ⅝ of a cent an ounce.

The stock market turned extremely dull, and ended the week almost unchanged, as measured by averages. Transfers in the stock exchange, reflecting in part the Thursday holiday, were only 4,611,424 shares, little more than half of last week's.

Business statistics which appeared were not particularly illuminating, although there were further indications that the slump in industrial production between midsummer and autumn was being checked. Steel production again showed little change, but there was some expectation that it might turn upward this month, although seasonally it does not usually do so until January. Corporate earnings continued to make favorable comparisons with a year ago.

France's Gold Loss.

The Bank of France's weekly statement showed a loss of about $56,000,000 in gold, the largest for any week since the post-war stabilization of the franc. Opinion was still mixed, as to whether France could hold the gold standard fortress. One school of thought among economists is that it would be desirable for France to go off gold, so that there could be a general revaluation of currencies, thus increasing the world's effective supply of monetary gold.

Argentina, which has been pegging its currency for two years at approximately 60 per cent of its gold parity, abandoned the control, and let it fall about 20 per cent further, thus adopting a somewhat inflationary policy, designed to help her wheat growers.

Whether this will have a depressing effect upon the world wheat market remains to be seen, but as understood here, the Argentine government intends to prevent such an effect, by buying grain from the farmers and holding it back to prevent dumping, so the farmers may get the full benefit of the depreciated currency. The Argentine position differs from that of the United States, since it sells a large part of its crop in the world market, while America has reduced its to a domestic basis.

Bonds Trail Dollar's Fate During Week

Corporate Loans Look to Federals as Guide; Trading Light.

New York, Dec. 3 (AP).—Corporation bonds trailed United States Government securities and the latter followed international dollar rates rather closely during the past week's trading in the loans market.

Buyers and sellers in all categories, however, generally maintained cautious positions and the volume of transactions was the lightest since the week of October 14.

Both Government and corporate maturities, as a whole, managed to finish with their heads above water despite their nervous fluctuations during the five business days.

Buyers Are Hesitant.

Followers of the Government section, aside from nervousness over dollar movements, apparently were hesitant to expand commitments to any great extent pending announcement of the Treasury's December 15 financing terms.

On that date Federal obligations approximating some $370,000,000 come due. While it was believed that the refunding of this paper might require a slightly higher interest rate, the consensus in financial circles was that there would be no resort to "greenbacks" to meet payment.

Leading bankers were of the opinion that, owing to the fact that the banks hold most of the forthcoming maturities, the financing would be merely a matter of exchanging one piece of paper for another.

Banks Loaded With Cash.

The majority of the banks, it was pointed out, have more cash now than they know what to do with and, consequently, few, if any, of them would think of demanding currency in payment. Banking institutions, of course, would like a little higher rate in the refunding, but there was no certainty that this would be granted, notwithstanding the action of the listed Federal Loan Market.

Secretary Morgenthau announced early in the week that the Treasury had acquired a total of $8,748,000 in governments during the previous week. The purchases, it was explained, were for various accounts.

The statement for November 28 showed a purchase of $1,137,000 of Federal obligations for the Treasury's sinking fund. Total acquisitions for this fund is roughly $430,000,000 annually, but requirements have been suspended and sinking fund buying is not now mandatory.

Most foreign government bonds rose and fell with their currencies. But French issues turned heavy during the latter part of the week due, principally, to the continuing heavy gold shipments from Paris and further budgetary difficulties.

Mayor of Detroit Replies to Smith

Replying to criticism of the Civil Works program by Alfred E. Smith, Mayor John W. Smith of Detroit, in a telegram to Paul V. Betters, secretary of the United States Conference of Mayors, yesterday upheld the C. W. A. program as "a great task efficiently and quickly performed."

Mr. Betters said the conference has received many letters and telegrams since former Gov. Smith's statements were made public. Mayor Smith of Detroit wired:

"It gives me pleasure to testify to the merit and efficiency of the C. W. A. program. When Gov. Smith says he does not know how men could be put to work under the regulations, I believe it proper to say that Detroit should be introduced as Exhibit A, where 10,000 men are busily engaged in necessary public works. Mr. Hopkins has performed a great task efficiently and quickly and holds the confidence and appreciation of those public officials who are closest to the problem."

Gold Drainage, Strike Threat Worry France

Employes of Government Fight Pay Slash; Woes Mount.

Paris, Dec. 3 (AP).—A rapidly emptying treasury, drainage of gold from the Bank of France, the threat of a general strike by disgruntled functionaries if pay cuts are voted, and manifestations for "work and bread" are piling up difficulties for the already unsteady, recently-formed cabinet of Premier Camille Chautemps.

While several hundred hunger marchers rested at St. Denis, 3,000 miners paraded today at St. Etienne in continuation of victorious "work and bread" demonstrations.

As the finance commission of the Chamber of Deputies studied the government's budget - balancing scheme, a committee of government employes renewed its protests against proposed pay cuts.

Meanwhile 2,000 farmers assembled at La Rochelle, angry at the functionaries' attitude, and adopted a resolution in favor of depriving State employes of the right to vote.

The finance committee had before it Finance Minister Georges Bonnet's warning that with money draining out of the treasury it was essential to restore confidence. He revealed that while the treasury has 500,000,000 to 600,000,000 francs, it must meet engagements of 770,000,000 francs.

To add to Premier Chautemps' troubles, the finance commission made drastic changes in his financial restoration program and refused to give the government the necessary power to cut the pay of government functionaries, a vital point in the economy program.

The commission by decree set up its own scale of pay, reductions which were regarded as bound to produce a hot fight in the chamber.

Curb Trading Drops in Week On Dull Sales

New York, Dec. 3 (AP).—Volume of trading on the Curb Exchange dwindled last week and prices generally maintained their recent narrow limitations. The Thanksgiving Day holiday on Thursday contributed to the wavering speculative interest.

Alcohols shares attracted renewed demand as the date neared for legalized sale of alcoholic beverages. Hiram Walker made substantial progress, while Distillers Corporation-Seagrams and Canadian Industrial Alcohol "A" and "B" also moved higher. Mild buying interest appeared in oils, Humble and Gulf experiencing several quiet flurries upward. International Petroleum improved, but Standard Oil of Indiana showed scant change.

Metals firmed after a poor start in which leaders sagged 1 to 3 points. Increases in the R. F. C. gold price contributed to the late firmness in the group. Public utility stocks were narrow and lightly traded.

Among industrial specialties Aluminum Company steadied after an initial 6-point drop. The Ford of Canada issues improved on the declaration of a $1 dividend, the first payment since June, 1931. Steadiness prevailed in Pan American Airways, Swift & Co. and Sherwin Williams.

Transfers, which ranged below the level of the previous week, averaged less than 200,000 shares for each five-hour session.

Confessed Wife Slayer Faces Charge Calmly

"I'm Not Afraid to Die," He Says; Other Marriages Investigated.

Albuquerque, N. Mex., Dec. 3 (AP).—Carl W. Wickman discussed a murder charge, filed against him for the death of his fourth wife—the third to die under circumstances which caused investigation—squared his shoulders and told reporters today "I'm sorry—but I'm not afraid to die."

The plump, middle-aged Denver pharmacist, whom one of his feminine admirers called a "glorious sheik," freely discussed a confession in which District Attorney T. J. Mabry said he admitted beating his bride of two weeks to death with a tire tool, but he denied any responsibility for the deaths of two previous wives. His first wife, Mina Mohr Wickman, of Edmond, Okla., divorced him.

"I feel terribly sorry," Wickman said, as he discussed the statement. "But there's nothing to feel like that about my other wives. I didn't kill the others."

Mabry said he confessed striking Mrs. Donolda Chicione Wickman, former Denver nurse, as she stooped to examine the steering mechanism of their car on a highway north of here a week ago Saturday night.

While the ruddy-faced pharmacist talked with reporters, investigators in four States were delving into his past life. Mabry said he was seeking to learn whether Wickman was married more than four times and how much insurance was collected on the two previous wives.

In the pharmacist's possession, Mabry said, was found a letter addressed to a Chicago insurance firm asking death proof papers in connection with his fourth wife's policy be forwarded to him at Jefferson, S. Dak., where he planned to have funeral services held.

Mrs. Wickman formerly lived at Jefferson. Wickman said there were two policies, each for $1,000.

Walt Mason, Himself

The Safe Topic.

When people get together it's always safe and sane to talk about the weather, about impending rain; about the frost that teases, about the soughing breezes, for all such harmless wheezes can make no man complain. Too often when we gather the gossiping begins; we talk, until we lather, about our neighbor's sins; we tell with much elation old yarns, an aggregation that hurts some reputation, and barks some fellow's shins. We pass along old stories that should have long been dead, and strip the well-earned glories from some exalted head; as busy as cheap vandals we dig up ancient scandals and hold them by the handles until all eyes are fed. The clouds grow darker, fatter, the wind is in the east. I can discuss this matter for half an hour at least; no caustic word is spoken, no friendly heart is broken, and by this sign and token I'm good to man and beast. I try to be a wizard, accomplished and alert, and I predict a blizzard full soon will do its dirt; such talk is never garnished with ill reports unvarnished, and no one's fame is tarnished, and no one's feelings hurt.

Radio Waves and Ripples

ABLE and courageous must be the man WJSV has found to teach women how to prepare a man's meal.

But not foolhardy.

For he lurks behind the anonymity of a title—"The Man About the Kitchen," though he admits he knows more about cooking—good, substantial home cookin', that is—than any woman in the world.

And if that implied challenge fails to stir our good wives to listen to the Woman's Hour along about 9:50 this morning, the best of the WJSV minds can shave their heads and renounce the world pronto.

Whitecaps.

WRC—John Martin, juvenile story writer, in a 15-minute program of tales for children, 4:15 p. m.; Voice of Firestone, Barytone Lawrence Tibbett and Tenor Richard Crooks, of the Metropolitan, 8:30 p. m.; Benny Meroff's orchestra, dance, 11:15 p. m.

WMAL—Radio Guild in presentation of Jerome K. Jerome's play, "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," 3 p. m.; Mme. Frances Alda, retired Metropolitan diva, song recital, 7:45 p. m.; Secretary Swanson discussing the Navy's end of the recovery program, 10:45 p. m.

WJSV—First of a series of Monday concerts by Howard Barlow and the New World Symphony Orchestra, 4:35 p. m.; Boswell Sisters, special arrangement of "Supper Time," 11:15 p. m.; Abe Lyman's Orchestra in program of dance tunes, 12:30 a. m. (Tuesday).

WOL—Dance band broadcastings, Horace Hustler's orchestra, Meyer Davis, Frank Winegar, Irving Aaronson, 10 p. m. to midnight.

Around an incident in the lives of two Franklin, Idaho, boys, N. B. C. has built three radio programs.

The boys are Holling and Richard Lowe, aged 10 and 11 years, who offered a manufacturing company 45 kinds of birds' eggs, a "Baby" and "Mama" sheep and a 7-week-old calf for a "refegerator" which would keep their sick mother from walking up and down steep stairs to the cold, damp cellar.

In the first broadcast Wednesday, December 13, Author Charles Francis Coe will read their letter to the refrigerator company. The following Friday he will introduce the boys from Radio City microphones, and on the next Wednesday Richard and Holling will broadcast New York impressions to folks back home. Each program will come through WEAF at 6 p. m.

National will carry the President's address before the Federal Council of Churches to the country Wednesday at 10:30 p. m.

Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, "Radio Pulpit" broadcaster, will make the preliminary talk and will introduce the President and Dr. Albert W. Bevin, president of the Colgate-Rochester Divinity School and of the council. The broadcast period is from 10 to 11 p. m. and probably will include a portion of the Westminister Choir concert and Army Band playing.

Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians have been signed for a series of half-hour programs under a motor company sponsorship, which indicates early separation of the bandman from his cigarette account.

Glen Gray and the Casa Loma Orchestra are said to be ready to begin another much talked of cigarette series Thursday with Irene Taylor, blues singer, and the Do Re Mi Girls. The program will be broadcast also on Tuesdays from 10 to 10:30 p. m.

Columbia will use the man-in-the-street broadcast idea to put New York, Chicago and San Francisco on the air as they receive repeal from midnight Tuesday to 1 Wednesday morning.

Microphones will be set up in a New York hotel and a night club before an announcer asks the crowd around Times Square what repeal means to them. The same plan will be followed in Chicago and San Francisco.

Because he could pronounce it and practically no one knew how it was spelled, Fay Fleidner, WOL blues singer, has given notice that hereafter she is to be known as Fay Allen.

That boxing match which some people insist will be a fight between Johnny Risko and Walter Neusel Tuesday night will be broadcast through WOL at 9:30. And Nick Kenny, New York radio editor, will act as master of ceremonies for a musical revue to be aired through the same station Wednesday afternoon at 4.

Part of the entertainment at the Gridiron Club banquet Saturday night will be Barytone Edwin Steffe from WRC's Pageant of Melody, which shows the same night from 8:30 to 9 o'clock.

It is said the B. & O. rolled out a new and shining locomotive especially for a picture with the Horace Hunnicuts. Sponsors of the Hunnicut "Sunshine Special" program wanted the picture. The B. & O. didn't want the Hunnicut hands and clothing soiled.

A couple of incurable gagmen, Olsen and Johnson, hang themselves. But not with benefit of noose, for the boys will be back on the air with Columbia next Friday night at 10 o'clock.

Lecture on Christian Science to Go on Air

A Christian Science lecture will be delivered in the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Columbia road and Euclid street northwest, Tuesday evening at 8 by Gavin W. Allan, of Toronto.

The subject of the lecture is "Christian Science Illumines Prayer." Allen will be introduced by Walter H. Moling. The lecture will be radiocast over Station WOL.

Auxiliary of V. F. W. To Hold Party Tonight

The District of Columbia department of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars will give a bingo party tonight at the Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Club, Eleventh and L streets.

Veterans of the three branches of the service and their wives are to attend.

Benefit Party on Wednesday.

A card and bingo party will be held for the benefit of the Shrine of the Sacred Heart in the parish hall, Sixteenth street and Park road, Wednesday.
